Election Unlikely

Cockeyed Session Ahead

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

The legislative session opening today may go down in history as one of the most cockeyed British Columbia has ever seen.

The two opposition parties have virtually no hope of unseating the powerful Social Credit government, yet both New Democrats and Liberals have prepared for this session as though future government may hinge upon what happens in the next few months.

Liberals plan a mid-session provincial convention here so they will be ready if an election is called. And the NDP extended its normal two-day pre-session caucus to three days this year to further consolidate strategy. (For other Legislative stories: Pages 8, 9, 27.)

Opposition Leader Strachan jumped the gun, to let the public know two days ahead of the throne speech what his party feels the government should do this year. Reporters observed that the NDP had even drawn up its own 12-member shadow cabinet, just in case.

Meanwhile, there were no leaks on what could be expected in the Speech from the Throne.

Empire Iron Mine

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

A smokey ruin is all that remains this morning of a growing iron mining and milling operation on northern Vancouver Island.

Wednesday, it raged on, smashing through the main mill, melting valuable machinery, turning the big building to ash.

JOBS GONE

The loss in equipment and structure is estimated at $1,000,000. Also probably gone are jobs of up to 50 men.

The underground mining operation had been struggling toward full production.

BEACH CAMP

A trucking firm from Port Hardy had been taking ore from the mill to Beach Camp near Port McNeill, for shipment to Japan.

The operation was rapidly reaching its anticipated 12,000 tons-a-month production.

Then the fire came.

OIL HEATER

One report from Port McNeill said the fire started in the pressure plant, when the bottom fell out of an oil heater.

All men at the mill were mobilized in a vain effort to stop the fire.

BIG CRUSHER

Beach Camp is about one mile south of the Empire mine site. Big ships arrive about once a season to take iron ore to the Japanese market.

When the ore came out of the hol, at the pithead, it was crushed by two big crushers, and was then shipped down a big tram to the mill.

FINE POWDER

There, another set of giant crushers ground the rock into a fine powder.

It is impossible for the mine to continue to ship because of its loss of equipment, and doubtful whether much work can be done at all, until the mill is replaced.

The mine operation is owned by Empire Development Co. Ltd., head office in Vancouver.

The company has a 50-year lease with Quatsino Copper-Gold Mines on the property.

Rolling Hills Copper

'Seized' Core Raises Howl

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Attorney-General Robert Bonner's statement Thursday that the drilling core of Rolling Hills Copper Mines Ltd. had been "seized" by the B.C. securities department raised a howl of protest Wednesday from the company's secretary-treasurer.

"A week ago we implored the Vancouver Stock Exchange and the B.C. Superintendent of Brokers to take possession of the single hole core from our new property near Pine Point," said Murray Pezzim.

"I cannot understand how Mr. Bonner can claim he has seized the core. We offered it to him."

WENT WILD

Mr. Pezzim explained that a week ago trading in Rolling Hills became out of hand because of insufficient stock on the market.

"I called upon Mr. Van Luven (president of the VSE) to help us control the market, and he advised me to call upon Mr. Bill Irwin (superintendent of brokers)."

RUMORS FLEW

"The next day rumors were flying and eventually the VSE stopped trading in the issue," went on Mr. Pezzim.

"It was at our request an official of the B.C. superintendent's office flew to Pine Point at the weekend to pick up what remained of the core. He did this and brought it back to Vancouver where it is now in the office of the assaying firm of J. R. Williams."

IN OFFICE

Earlier, Mr. Pezzim explained, a part of the core had already been air expressed from the property, and it too was in the Vancouver assay office.

The only information available about the cores, acording to Mr. Pezzim, were wired to a Vancouver reporting agency by Frank Avory of First Northern Exploration from whom Rolling Hills had recently bought the property. The wires claimed mineralization.

The drilling was done by Pa-

Haiphong Ready For Attack

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Communist Party Newspaper Pravda reported Wednesday that the principal North Vietnamese port of Haiphong has been partially evacuated and mobilized in anticipation of U.S. air strikes.

In its raids on North Viet Nam, the U.S. has never struck at Haiphong. The nearest raid, before the bombing was halted for the Christmas truce, was 13 miles away.

Reds Charge:

Mott Death 'Used' By West

MOSCOW (UPI) — Moscow Radio said Thursday that American tourist Newcomb Mott had slashed his throat with a razor "in a state of violent nervous disorder." It accused the West of trying to stir up the incident into a "political scandal."

The broadcast accused the "capitalist press and radio" of "giving a sensational new slant to the suicide" and said these media were even urging tourists to stop coming to the Soviet Union.

SOVIET LAW

"We welcome visitors," Moscow Radio said. "In fact we open the front door to them and courteously ask them not to use the window. Those who venture to cross our border will have to be held responsible before Soviet law."

Backyard Billions

Don't Dig Yet Wait a While

It's not science fiction.

* * *

It's all part of science's new horizons as described Wednesday by Dr. C. Guy Suits, vice-president of General Electric Co., before the House space and astronautics committee.

The dirt is the raw material of silicon, which scientists have purified to the point where it is a basic component of today's $6,000,000,000 computer industry.

* * *

Suits foresaw the day when plastics made from common carbon will be hardened to the point where they will become "the basic structural materials of our civilization."

In the future, he said, one of the commonest things of all—ocean water—may yield equal values.

* * *

If you excavate a small lot to a depth of 100 feet, Suits said, you would have the raw material for silicon which could be purified to a value of $1,000,000,000—a million times more than the value of the dirt as dirt.

But don't start digging yet, he cautioned, unless you don't care about money. Right now the cost of the processing probably would be at least $1,000,000,000, too.

All Eyes On Winters

Tax Vote Aimed At Liberal Split

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Conservatives moved Wednesday to overthrow the minority government with a non-confidence assault aimed at splitting the Liberal camp.

The move, it successful, would repeal the Liberals' controversial 11 per cent sales tax on building materials and manufacturing machinery.

The Tories, who had earlier let it out that they would move non-confidence on the issue of integrity in government, switched to the sales tax at the last minute.

WINTERS WATCHED

The strategy is to smoke out Liberals who disagree with the tax that their government imposed two years ago.

Most eyes will be on him when the vote is counted in the Commons tonight.

THIRD TIME

It is the third non-confidence vote in a week and, again, it should be a close finish.

Moving non-confidence Wednesday night, Tory Marcel Lambert said he was sure that the Liberals—"in their heart of hearts"—would like to do away with the tax.

"We now give them the opportunity. This is the first step that the government can take, remove the tax.

"If this were done, it would remove at least one area of pressure in the inflationary trend in this country."

NO HINT

He said only that he was "taken back" by the Tories moving such a motion in the Throne speech, instead of in the budget debate in a few months' time.

Parliament Hill is swept with speculation that the sales tax may come off in the budget.

But informed sources here say the tax will, in fact, stay on and that the business community has learned to live with it and its less-than-feared effects.

While the vote may be close and the minority government will have to corral as many of its members as possible, the opposition is not expected to form the same, near-solid line

Intriguing Scandal In Special Report

The Ben Barka scandal which is rocking France is proving a nightmare to President de Gaulle himself.

It is now accepted that the outlaws and gangsters, paid handsomely to set the scene for de Gaulle's original accession to power, are responsible for this latest outrage.

Moroccans Blame Frenchmen

RABAT (Reuters) — The Moroccan state radio Wednesday accused France of behaving disgracefully over the Ben Barka affair and of trying to put the blame on Morocco.

* * *

It said the investigation showed the disappearance of Moroccan Opposition Leader Mehdi Ben Barka in Paris last October to be the work of police, spies, counterspies and gangsters—all of them French.

The broadcaster added that France was looking for a "sacrificial beast" and had turned the spotlight on innocent Morocco to divert attention from France.

* * *

The commentator said French Ambassador Robert Gilet asked King Hassen last November to dismiss his interior minister, Gen. Mohammed Oufkir, on the ground that he took a personal hand in Ben Barka's disappearance.

He said this was revolting for Morocco's dignity and offensive to its honor, and added that Oufkir had nothing to do with the kidnapping.

No Break Indicated By Paris

PARIS (UPI)—The French government charged publicly again Wednesday that Morocco's interior minister engineered the kidnapping in Paris of Moroccan leftist leader Mehdi Ben Barka. It said this was why the French ambassador to Rabat was recalled last weekend.

* * *

French police and judicial authorities have received "the clearest orders" to bring to trial everyone connected with the kidnapping, the government said.

* * *

However, responsible French government sources said there is no question of breaking diplomatic relations or of halting $40,000,000 in economic aid, although the aid agreements might be "reviewed" when they come up for renewal in a few months time.

Ready 'Within a Year'

Plastic Hearts Beat True

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—A substitute heart, made of plastics, is almost ready for placement in a heart patient's chest.

It is designed to do the pumping work of an ailing human heart, for days or weeks, and then easily could be removed. It has passed careful tests in animals, a surgeon said Wednesday.

* * *

The spare, powered by a bedside air pump, should be available for first human use within a month, said Dr. Michael E. Debakey of Baylor University Medical Centre, Houston. Its first trial in a suitable patient could come anytime "within a year."

The plastic heart is truly a spare, to be placed between a person's ribs. Plastic tubes take blood returning from the lungs and then pump it out through the body.

* * *

—AP

Debakey and substitute heart

* * *

The air pump could later be made in miniature and powered by battery, so the patient could easily walk and work with his substitute heart, Dr. Debakey said. A dog given an artificial heart was equipped with a small, portable air pump.

Dr. Debakey showed the latest design of the substitute heart at a press conference sponsored by the New York Heart Association and the American Heart Association.

* * *

The Baylor pump could help heart patients who need temporary aid, until their own hearts recover, and might benefit some persons who face constant danger of a severe heart attack.

If produced in quantity, the artificial heart might cost about $200 to $300, Dr. Debakey said.

Another Confidence Vote Today

as it did in the earlier votes on raising the old age pension.

Wednesday night, the New Democrats, who had opposed the imposition of the tax in Commons votes, weren't sure how they would vote this time.

CAOUETTE MAD

A special caucus was set up and leader T. C. Douglas declared: "We haven't made any decision."

Creditiste leader Real Caouette was incensed that the Tories had slipped in with a second non-confidence amendment before the Creditistes could move one.

"I am mad at the Tories taking the floor all the time," he sniffed.

"We had an amendment ready to move, that loans without interest should be made by the Bank of Canada to provinces, municipalities and school boards."

However, despite their anger at the Tories, the Creditistes were expected to vote with them against the government.

"I certainly will," said Caouette lieutenant Gilles Gregoire.

The five Socreds, once more, would vote to save the government. In this case, too, they are voting against the implementation of an election promise.

In the campaign, they wanted an increase in pensions to $100 but voted with the government twice in the past week against opposition attempts to raise them.

Socred leader Robert Thompson Wednesday night conceded that his party was against the tax in the campaign.

"But supporting the motion now won't bring about the intention of the motion, the abolition of the tax," he claimed. "It will just cause an election."

Another Socred, Bert Leboe, said: "We will vote just exactly as we have been voting, with very good reason.

"The only result is the defeat of the government and an election or some other constitutional confusion that would be bad for the country."

The crop of non-confidence votes is punctuating the throne speech debate, which enters its fifth day today.

Wednesday night, Mr. Lambert, former Diefenbaker cabinet minister, warned of the danger of inflation and added:

"I am warning that unless adequate steps are taken and people are made aware of what is happening, we are in for some rough bumps in relation to the maintenance of industrial activity in this country in the next several months."

Students Flee

WHITE ROCK (CP)—A number of students filed quickly out of Semiahmoo Senior Secondary School Monday when a fire broke out in a washroom.

The flames spread to a portion of an adjacent gymnasium but the school escaped with light damage. Cause of the fire was not known.

Weird Session

This legislature's normal life runs until September, 1968, and there appears to be no issues on the horizon likely to bring on an election much before that.

* * *

Premier Bennett, who earlier predicted it would be a "vigorous" session which could possibly affect the timing of the next provincial election, reversed his field about mid-January by saying on at least two occasions that he had changed his mind. It would be a "friendly" session, he added.

An easing of the traditional hard line against the Liberal administration in Ottawa was also noticed in recent weeks.

* * *

Perhaps with a hope that B.C. might obtain a charter for a Bank of B.C. this year, the premier echoed Education Minister Peterson's appreciation of an announcement by Prime Minister Pearson that federal university per-capita grants would be increased from $2 to $5.

It seems certain there will be long debates this year on labor-management relations, effects of automation, the question of high car insurance rates, forest management problems and the government's new "close utilization" policy.

* * *

A bitter struggle is likely to ensue on the floor if the government decides to redistribute some of the existing provincial constituencies after a redistribution commission report is tabled in the House.

The government, comfortably settled in the driver's seat, will probably content itself with bringing in a number of housekeeping bills aimed at keeping up with the needs of a province rapidly outgrowing its own pants.

* * *

Every politician will have his day on the floor. Tempers will become frayed and the weeks will wear on. Eventually, near exhaustion, the legislators will begin ramming through a stack of bills and departmental estimates.

Around Easter, when everyone is tired of talking, the MLAs will draw their sessional cheques and go home.

* * *

It will then be all over for another year. Premier Bennett will reign supreme and some 3,500 civil servants in Victoria will get back to the serious business of running governmental departments and planning their 1966 vacations.

'Seized' Core

cific Diamond Driling, a Vancouver company.

Earlier on Wednesday, Mr. Bonner said that the lifting of the core has not been a routine matter but he had no more to add at that time.

Mr. Irwin said that as the matter was now in the hands of the Attorney General's department it was to "some degree sub judice" and he was unable to comment.

"I am sick of the whole affair," said Mr. Pezzim. "Only a single hole has been drilled and so far as we are concerned it was merely to test the structure. It does not have any real meaning."

But the mining promoter was unable to explain how the rumors got around that created a mining fever and sent the stock of Rolling Hills within a few days from 45 cents to $3.00.

Ore Mill Ruined

The mill started work in 1957 with 2,000-ton capacity which was increased to 3,500-ton daily capacity.

Your Good Health

Remember Doctor's Orders When Taking Nembutal Pills

By JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Four years ago I was under great strain, was nervous, and had difficulty in sleeping. I was given Nembutal and took one each night and had a good sleep.

When I read in magazines and newspapers two years ago of the danger of taking this drug, and the terrible withdrawal consequences, nausea and convulsions, I went to my doctor, who is an eminent one, and asked him for something different.

He said, "One Nembutal has never hurt anyone. If it relaxes you and helps you, take it." I later consulted another doctor and he prescribed a different drug, but it makes my lips swell and after a time is nauseating.

So I am writing you to ask if you will suggest a less harmful sedative. I don't want to take barbiturates.—MRS. M. D.

It was only a year or two ago that I was talking to the doctor in charge of the government hospital at Lexington, Ky., a man of enormous skill and stature, and we talked about barbituates. His comment was this.

ADDICTION

"Yes, some people use excessive amounts of barbiturates. They take so much—and they can't get that much except by buying "bootleg" supplies—that they become addicts, and this certainly is dangerous.

"But what bothers me is this. The barbiturates, properly used, rank among the most useful medicines known to man.

DANGERS

"Certainly over-use is dangerous, but normal use is not. This publicity about the danger of over-use isn't going to be heeded by the addicts, but it is going to frighten people who are using safe amounts and they'll stop, and lose the benefit of one of our most useful medicines."

Mrs. M.D.: He might have been talking directly to you. He saw what would come of that spasm of publicity. Sure, I agree we musn't conceal the facts, even for what we regard as worthy motives. There IS such a thing as barbiturate poisoning—when people go hog wild.

SMALL DOSE

You were perfectly safe, and comfortable, when you followed your first doctor's advice—the doctor you called "eminent."

You then shopped around until you found a doctor who prescribed another drug, and it upset you. This doctor, I feel sure, did the best he could for you—in view of the fact that you insisted on another drug.

You're no addict. But why don't you go back to your first doctor, and stop worrying. You have just worried yourself into a tizzy. You confused proper use of this drug with over use. There's a world of difference.

Arms Talks

17 Countries At Meeting

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

GENEVA (AP)—Delegates of 17 countries, including Canada, gathered for a new round of talks beginning today in Geneva's drawn-out disarmament conference. The Vietnamese war and China's growing nuclear power added urgency to the meeting.

The conference was preceded by what was generally regarded as a conciliatory statement by Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin.

Instead of his usual blasts against the West, Tsarapkin indicated Tuesday that the Soviet Union does not consider the Viet Nam conflict and American involvement there as an obstacle to disarmament negotiations.

His words were praised Wednesday by U.S. delegate William C. Foster.

Canadian negotiator, Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, and Britain's Lord Chalfont told reporters they are "encouraged" by what Tsarapkin said.

But not all was optimism. Western officials were acutely aware of differences not only between the East and West but also between Western delegations, which in the past not always saw eye to eye on major problems.

Dominating this year's conference is the plan to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

American proposals for a multilateral nuclear force within NATO, including West Germany have faded. There is more talk about a plan for nuclear consultation among Western allies —which eventually may be acceptable to the Russians.

Viet Shysters Get Fat On U.S. Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unknown amounts of U.S. aid to Viet Nam are being stolen and diverted to illegal black market operations in which Communists are well as Americans may be sharing profits, the House of Representatives foreign affairs committee was told Wednesday.

BIG BUDGET

The disclosure was made as Secretary of State Dean Rusk and aid director David E. Bell testified in support of an additional $415,000,000 in economic aid for this year, including $275,000,000 to go to Viet Nam. The current aid budget for Viet Nam is $566,000,000.

In reply to questions by Rep. Wayne L. Hays (D--Ohio) Bell confirmed there was some diversion of U.S. aid funds.

"We are trying to track it down and stop it," he said. "But it is a fast-moving operation, the movement of goods and money into Viet Nam.

"We will make it as airtight as we possibly can. But there is a black market and the Viet Cong play that black market."

Both Bell and Rusk disclaimed knowledge of Hays' report that one American woman dependent in Saigon had sent home $36,000 worth of money orders in six months.

EMBASSY KNOWS?

Hays said the U.S. embassy in Saigon knew about it and had informed him.

The Congressman indicated that the unidentified woman was one of a number of dependents of representatives of private American business firms under contract to the U.S. government in South Viet Nam. Some of these families have been engaged in black market operations, he said.

"That's a very serious matter," Rusk said. "We certainly ought to do something about it."

U.S. Troops Scatter Guerrillas

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. troops riddled two Communist guerrilla forces in separate ambush actions in Viet Nam Wednesday. In one clash, troops using jeep-mounted radar foiled a Viet Cong ambush along the "Highway of death."

Near Da Nang, a Viet Cong patrol unit walked right into a U.S. Marine ambush just 500 yards west of the big marine Seabee installation at Da Nang east.

Can Science Now Cure Baldness?

Until recently, any claim to cure baldness was suspect. Constant failures have made people skeptical of such claims. But now, February Reader's Digest describes the new "punch-graft" technique that has proved effective in 10,000 cases! Read how it works, how much it costs. Read, too, about the new experiments with hormones, which may soon bring us a simpler cure. Get your copy of February Reader's Digest.

To Resume Blasting North Viet Nam

Lethal Bombers Await Johnson's Signal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is expected to issue soon orders that will send U.S. planes on renewed bombing missions over North Viet Nam.

Two members of the United States Congress, briefed at the White House, said they believe Johnson will act quickly to renew—and intensify—the aerial attacks suspended since Christmas Eve.

State Secretary Dean Rusk said the U.S. has carried its Viet Nam peace efforts "from A to Z and almost through Z."

White House Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said Johnson is "weighing all the factors involved in our position in Southeast Asia and is assessing and evaluating those factors."

But some congressional leaders who spent 2½ hours at a White House briefing Tuesday came away with the impression that Johnson and his top advisers see no alternative to renewed bombing.

Two of them, one Democrat and one Republican, said the administration officials presented pictorial evidence that the North Vietnamese have used the bombing lull, in its 34th day Wednesday, to rebuild roads and bridges, enlarge supply depots and to move new military equipment toward South Viet Nam.

Britain Complains

NEXT to the United States, Great Britain is Canada's best international trade customer. Unlike the U.S. however it also buys much more from Canada than Canada buys from Britain. The converse is true between Canada and the U.S.

Lord Brown, the British minister of state at the Board of Trade, this week told members of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon in London that he was not impressed with the way in which Canada was treating its "best customer."

Speaking primarily as a businessman, Lord Brown said that when his best customers sought help, concession, special deliveries and so forth it seemed to him the acme of good business to respond with alacrity.

He said that British firms trading with Canada complained of nagging difficulties which on investigation usually proved to be very real.

He referred specifically to the Canadian anti-dumping laws which were applied by Canada "without any requirements on the part of Canadian industries to prove they suffered injury as a result of the imports."

The amendments to the Customs Act made by the Canadian government last year dealing with features which weighed unfairly on British goods, had been hailed with delight in Britain, but he was sorry that the amendment was not yet being administered as expeditiously as had been hoped.

British imports of manufactured goods from Canada are now running 30 per cent higher than they were a few years ago and Lord Brown said this was largely because Canadians found fewer barriers to their trade with Britain than British manufacturers do in trading in Canada.

He asked the Canadian Chamber of Commerce for aid in easing the path of British exporters.

It is a matter of some interest that the bluntness of the remarks made by Lord Brown are comparable with those made little more than a year ago by Mitchell Sharp, who was then Canada's minister of trade, when also in London he bruskly told British business of its shortcomings in attacking the Canadian market.

As Mr. Sharp's strictures did not fall on deaf ears and Britain since then has been tackling its trade with Canada in a much more vigorous manner, it is possible that Lord Brown's remarks too will find a similar response on this side, clearing the air for an improvement of relations between the two oldest members of the Commonwealth of Nations.

In Peace and Quiet

THE funeral of the most illustrious figure of his age, Sir Winston Churchill, was sublime in its historic grandeur, but the first anniversary of his death this week has been marked in his native land with the reticence of deep respect. No special observances were held and his grave in a peaceful churchyard was undisturbed by thronging crowds.

This was in keeping with the great statesman's desire to be buried in the quiet confines of a country village beside his forebears, rather than in that Valhalla of national renown, Westminster Abbey, where a tomb of honor was assured.

The Churchill grave in a small Oxfordshire village will inevitably become a mecca for visitors from all over the world. Already it is estimated that over a million people have made the pilgrimage to Bladon during the past year. But the parish council intends that as far as possible commercialism will not be allowed to spoil the atmosphere of the village.

"We must prevent the exploitation of private profit or greed in the last resting place of one of England's greatest sons." So says the parish clerk and there will be many who will agree with him.

It is often a disturbing incidence for visitors to famous shrines in the Old World, to abbeys and cathedrals of sacred impact, that these places of interest become in large measure tourist lures replete with undesirable sale of tawdry souvenirs and the setting up of commercial stands aimed only to make capital out of the historic nature of such centres of attraction.

If Bladon can manage to keep its pristine quality of rural peace free of objectionable features yet facilitate the public homage that will be paid in person at the Churchill grave it will be due for unusual commendation.

The great statesman himself moved all his life in the bustle of public affairs, but he chose to be at final rest far from the madding crowds. It may be difficult, even impossible, but if his burial ground can be secured against tourist inroads that rob it of peace and quiet then propriety will prevail.

A Cousinly Salute

THIS WEEK Australia celebrates the 178th anniversary of the arrival of its first pioneers. On January 26, 1788, eleven vessels dropped anchor in Sydney Cove and landed just over a thousand people charged with the duty of establishing a new British colony in a vast wilderness of which they knew nothing.

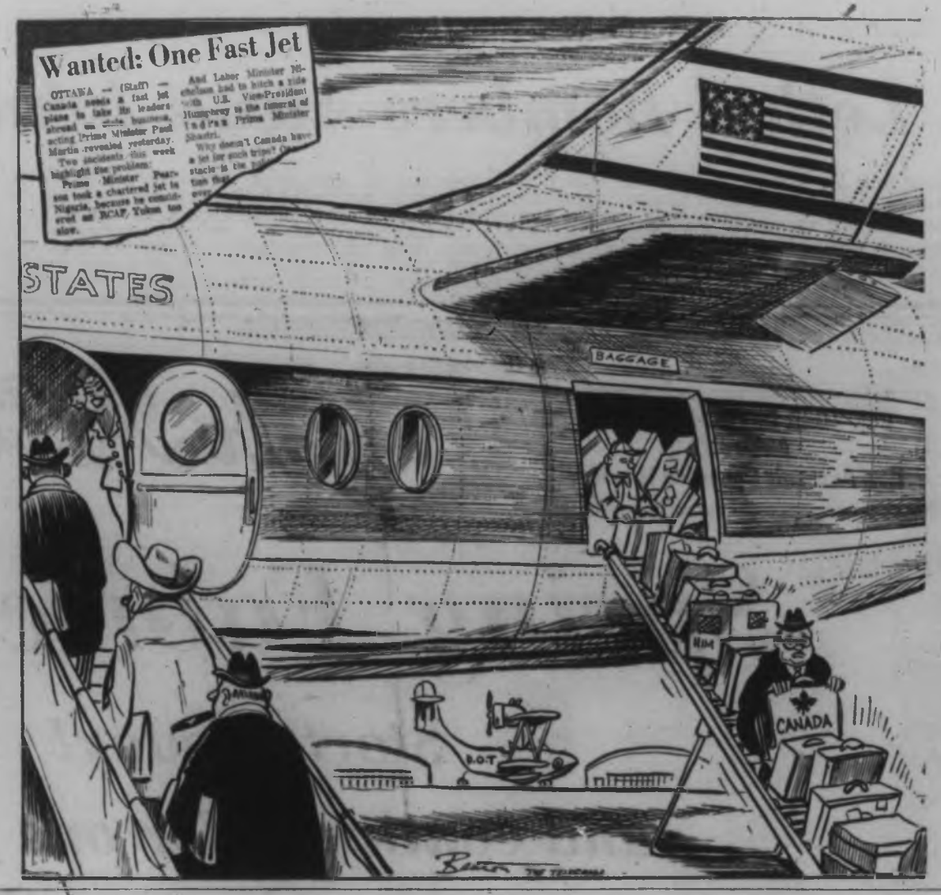
An inventory taken just a few months later shows that this first colony to be established in Australia had seven horses, seven cattle, 29 sheep, 19 goats, 74 pigs, five rabbits and about 200 fowl.

Undismayed the hardy group battled successfully against the dense forest, penetrated the mountain barrier which separated the coast from the hinterland, and drove their multiplying sheep and cattle on to the inland plains to fight the hazards of drought, bushfires and floods.

Today as a direct result of the fortitude and perseverance of these early pioneers and the foresight and courage of those who followed them, Australia is a prosperous, vigorous, independent and still developing nation of more than eleven million people.

In the twentieth century Australia has more than proven itself. It enjoys one of the highest living standards in the world, it has a soundly based economy, it is booming industrially and is contributing much to world achievement in science, the arts and communication.

As citizens of a fellow member nation of the Commonwealth, as old comrades-in-arms in two world wars, and as individuals who admire the accomplishments of others, Canadians will be pleased to doff their hats this week to their Australian cousins.



Lords, Lunatics Cannot Sit . . .

. . . And U.K. Service Men Can't Run

By COLIN McGLASHAN

BRITISH politics are curious to outsiders: probably never more so than during elections. These are hedged about with a host of restrictions designed to stop contests being decided by the cash a candidate can spend on his campaign; to remove the slightest suspicion of bribery or malpractice; even to foster the myth that political parties don't exist.

The rules are well-meaning, but they are sometimes ironic. For example, it is possible that the current contest for the vacant seat in the east coast port of Hull is the most crucial byelection ever.

Labor holds Hull North by 1,181 votes: losing it to the Conservatives would reduce the Labor government's barely-workable majority of three in the House of Commons to one. It might even force Labor's Prime Minister Mr. Harold Wilson, to call a general election.

Yet during the three weeks of this desperately-important campaign, each candidate and his party can spend no more than £833 plus a few odd shillings and pence. This odd figure is arrived at because each parliamentary candidate is allowed a budget of £450, plus 1½d. per voter for a urban constituency, 2d. in a county area.

The accounting is precise: every piece of campaign literature, from the biggest of posters to the tiniest of throwaway leaflets, must carry the name and address of the candidate's agent. Every sum of money spent must be recorded: and at the end a return, signed by a magistrate, must be made.

Voters are being told the fate of the government may hang on their choice: yet the ballot-papers they mark on January 27 will record, as usual, only the names of the candidates and not the parties they represent.

This is occasionally an embarrassment when two have the same name: one local election in the island of Anglesey, Wales, produced seven candidates called Jones. Their first names, happily, were all different.)

British election law lays down that voters must not be treated in any way: thus, though a judge has ruled that bonafide party workers who are also voters can probably safely be given refreshments, the cautious political agent normally makes them pay for their own cups of tea when they come back to headquarters after a hard day's footslogging.

Political parties cannot hire vehicles—nor even, specifically mentioned, horses—to take their voters to and from the polling booth. Cars can be, and are, lent—but these must not include taxis, hire cars or buses. Canvassers mustn't be hired, either—nor must bands of music, torches, flags or banners.

Radio and television appearances of candidates are closely regulated, too: all candidates must agree to take part in a broadcast or it can't take place. This means that John Smith, standing as an independent on a platform demanding free beer for miners and dearer dog licenses, can veto the appearance of candidates from the major parties.

Independents tend to be discouraged by the need to deposit £150, returnable only if the candidate receives one-eighth of the votes cast. But not always—three independents are standing at Hull.

A pop-singer known as Screaming Lord Sutch stood at a byelection a couple of years ago: he got 300 votes, and an incalculable amount of free publicity.

Anyone can stand for Parliament: but quite a lot of people cannot take their seats if elected. Among them are peers, under-21s, lunatics, foreigners, priests, or those holding "offices of profit under the Crown"—which rules out judges, policemen and civil servants. This leads to odd situations. A member of Sinn Fein, the militant movement that wants a united Ireland, campaigned from jail in three elections: he won the first two before voters decided it was pointless electing a man who couldn't take his seat.

Members of the armed forces can't engage in politics: which has meant that the easiest way out of uniform was to announce an intention to stand for Parliament. This loophole was blocked in 1963, after 667 servicemen tried to stand at two byelections: a hastily-formed committee was empowered to toughly veto their applications.

Behind all this, though, professionalism is creeping in: the restrictions on spending during elections, for example, do not stop lavish spending on political image-making between them. Vote-winning techniques, too, are changing: the Conservative at Hull has used a team of six for him to rush between handshakes at the rate of up to two a minute.

This, by American standards, is hardly revolutionary—here it has attracted headlines and a certain raising of eyebrows. It is by no means certain that it works: British voters tend to dislike brash campaigning methods.

High-Rise for Revenue

TWELVE acres of high-rise apartments in the city of Victoria will produce over $300,000 in taxes each year. Unlike the city, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, Saanich high-rise apartment sites are non-existent.

The proposed 12-acre high-rise apartment site on Haro Road can be a most productive and needed source of revenue if the reeve and council approve the zoning. As this site does not interfere with the view of Cadboro Bay residents; as services for the apartments will be installed on a local improvement and/or paid for in cash; as the school taxes paid by the owners of the high-rise apartments will result in an estimated subsidy of $45,000 (apartment residents generally do not have children of school age), what possible reason could the reeve and council have to refuse this application?

Now that the planner has been instructed to set out a plan for the Cadboro Bay-University area the "thin edge of the wedge" argument is invalid.

The purchase or expropriation of the property by the university would result in a tremendous loss in revenue to Saanich as the university does not pay taxes.

In all other towns, cities and municipalities where there are established universities large tax revenues are received from apartments built nearby. Can Saanich which needs more revenue because of its great expansion of services and parks etc., plus its lower tax sources (mostly house taxes) afford to be different? If this sole Saanich high density site is not properly zoned for apartments it will cost the residents of Saanich millions of dollars over the years.

'Strong and Free'

I have never seen anything more ludicrous than the plans Canadians are getting up to celebrate their centennial. Were these "true north, strong and free types" not the parasites they are, borrowing from and living on U.S. sport, entertainment, industry and money, then I too could evince some pride.

How any Canadians can plead that centennial celebrations have been left for American firms to organize in cities right across the country (and Victoria is included in this category) without feeling his usual apathy—is not surprising. This very attitude was probably the same reason that Canadians could swallow with equanimity the idea of an American rose being chosen for the Centennial.

Let us include among our fatuous schemes some worthwhile projects. I propose that money be set aside for the training of Canadian athletes. Let us select and train athletes to represent Canada internationally and for a change, win something. Let us have at least one truly Canadian trade union that isn't beholden to the United States. I nominate the barbers' who display an American eagle and flag on their wall, showing clearly where their allegiance lies! Let us promote our own national theatre and drama!

I ask Canadians not what they are proud of, but of what they cannot be ashamed. Some "courier de bois"!

Journey's End

Your correspondent L. A. Yellowlees in his letter "Guarding freedom" has obviously forgotten several important facts when he defends U.S. intervention in South Viet Nam.

(1) Viet Nam is one nation, not two, North and South. The country was artificially divided at the time of the Geneva Convention.

(2) The first South Vietnamese dictator—Diem—was brought from the U.S. where he was studying, and installed in power by the U.S.

(3) President Eisenhower openly stated that if free and supervised elections were held as called-for under the Geneva Convention at the end of two years, 80 per cent of the vote would have been in favor of unification of the country. However the U.S.-sponsored government in Saigon refused to comply with the Geneva Convention and allow a free election under the supervision of the United Nations.

(4) Two of the leading American correspondents, Walter Lippmann and James Reston, have steadfastly opposed the action of their government in Viet Nam. Neither of them is a Communist.

(5) Your correspondent says that "the poor peasant with his bit of rice would far rather have the U.S., etc." If such a statement is factual why did not the U.S. allow the free and supervised elections?

If your correspondent really believes freedom exists in Viet Nam, Franco Spain, so-called Nationalist China, Portugal, and many countries of Latin America which are said to be in the "free world." I would strongly urge him to travel and establish the true facts for himself. The only freedom allowed in many of these countries is the right to live in abject poverty with a tiny minority enjoying great wealth.

Democracy such as we know it cannot come to these countries overnight but I do know that the present policy of the U.S. in supporting military and other dictatorships in these countries cannot lead to any end except the one they are trying to avoid—a revolt of the masses and Communism.

From the Record

A speaker, Lt.-Cdr. Wiwcharuck is reported to have told the United Nations Association at a recent meeting that in the period before 1959 the North Vietnamese government would not allow inspection by the International Control Comission while "by contrast, the South Vietnamese hid nothing from inspection."

The sixth interim report of the International Control Commission, reviewing the situation to July 31, 1956, states (Para. 84):

"As has been revealed in the preceding paragraphs, the degree of co-operation given to the commission by the two parties has not been the same. While the commission has experienced difficulties in North Viet Nam, the major part of its difficulties has arisen in South Viet Nam."

A year later the commission reported:

"The situation described in paragraph 84 of the sixth interim report showed no improvement during the period under review."

In its 1958 report, the commission states:

"It will be seen from these chapters that while in North Viet Nam the commission generally continued to receive the necessary co-operation . . . in South Viet Nam the commission received during the period under review an increased measure of co-operation . . ."

This statement is followed by a number of specific examples of non-co-operation in which the government of South Viet Nam still persisted.

The 1958 report of the commission lists one disagreement in interpretation with the government of North Viet Nam, and numerous instances of lack of co-operation and contravention of agreements by the government of South Viet Nam.

All these passages in the reports were unanimously approved by the commission, including in each case, the Canadian delegate.

It would appear that the speaker was challenging the integrity of the Canadian members of the control commission who submitted these findings. Does the Victoria United Nations Association support his position?

We Are of Age

Many of us may remember "When We Were Very Young" by A. A. Milne.

In it is a short poem. I quote a verse:

What is the matter with Mary Jane?
She is perfectly well and she hasn't a pain,
But look at her now, she's beginning again,
What is the matter with Mary Jane?

Recovered Freedom

Neighbors Cross Balkans' Borders

By ROLAND HUNTFORD
from Kranjska Gora, Yugoslavia

THERE is something distinctive about the old Hapsburg territories of Eastern Europe. It is as if the memory of the days before the First World War, when they belonged to Austria, keeps breaking through their present Communist allegiance, and edges them towards the West. The closest of them all is Slovenia, the northernmost province of Yugoslavia and the region bordering on both Austria and Italy.

In days gone by the Slovenians were among the best and most faithful mountain soldiers of the Austro-Hungarian Empire; today they feel most in touch with the West. Here the frontiers are almost as open as those between Western countries and here, in the Eastern Alps, the Yugoslavs have mountain resorts for the amusement of their new and rising middle class.

Kranjska Gora is the oldest. Between the wars, it was (together with the neighboring Planica) a recognized haunt of skiers and mountaineers, for the surrounding Julian Alps have always had a reputation for intricate climbs. Allowing for the depredations of the past decades and a certain native Balkan disorder, it is little different from a comparable Western winter sports resort.

It lies a few miles from the Austrian border but, unlike similar regions of Czechoslovakia or Hungary, and the other satellites, there is neither barbed wire nor watchtower. Photography is free, and the only frontier guard I saw was rather more concerned with the behavior of his diminutive horse in the deep snow than the presence of two strangers close to the border.

Like the population of Western European frontier regions, the inhabitants of Kranjska Gora and neighboring districts have special identity cards which permit them to cross the border freely. They often visit the nearby Austrian and Italian towns, either to shop or to visit relations, for many Yugoslavs now work abroad.

"The trouble is, you can't save at home", a Kranjska Gora taxi-driver explained to me. "I spent a holiday in Holland last year—some Dutch guests at the hotel here invited me—and I asked about work. I could have got some, but it wasn't worth while. The pay exchange was bad. I want to work in Germany, for you earn twice as much there, and the exchange is so good, that after two years I could save a lot and come back to Yugoslavia with many dinars in the bank, and then do something proper."

He was trying to get a work contract in Germany. He could, if he wanted to, have gone to West Germany, and nominally on holiday and have found a billet on arrival. But he wanted to do things absolutely by the book. A Yugoslav emigration visa was only granted when work and accommodation had been secured before departure, and, as he wanted to return home eventually, he said that he wished to avoid all trouble with the authorities.

With travel to Austria virtually free—at least for the inhabitants of the Slovenian border districts—shopping is possible and people are dressed in a Western manner. By skimping and scraping and with a little manipulation sub rosa of the rather stringent Yugoslav exchange regulations, it is possible to acquire sufficient Austrian currency to do all major shopping in Villach, which is the nearest Austrian town.

There, the Yugoslavs buy their clothes and sports equipment. Austrians, on the other hand, cross the border to buy meat and spirits, which are so much cheaper in Yugoslavia. The Austrian customs officials display a close interest in housewives' shopping bags on the local trains.

A young man at the border station of Jesenice, practising his English, explained how he had managed to save enough to buy three pairs of Austrian skis at £50 apiece in two years. These he had obtained on visits to an uncle working near Villach and, since he was but an assistant at a travel agency, he could not have earned a very high salary.

In the Iron Curtain countries, privately-owned motor cars are still a rarity. This does not appear to be so in Yugoslavia—at least to judge by the traffic at Kranjska Gora. The better off visitors arrive in their own vehicles, all imported from Italy or Germany, or in a West German stationwagon and bus which is assembled under licence in Yugoslavia from imported components.

The top hotel at Kranjska Gora houses, besides large parties of Western tourists in search of cheap holidays, many Yugoslavs from the professional classes. Besides higher pay, they have the added privilege of longer holidays, for in Yugoslavia leisure is granted in proportion to position. A lawyer has one month's holiday a year, a factory worker only a fortnight. At Kranjska Gora the poorer guests were catered for by smaller pensions rather than the official rest homes found elsewhere in Eastern Europe.

Many guests here have Yugoslav skis which, in manufacture and finish, are comparable to certain Western products. They are at all events so cheap that they are marketed both by Norwegian and British firms.

The local shops may not be well stocked by Western standards, but they seem to have enough of the essentials. They lack (at least in this region) the shoddy Russian and Cuban goods seen in other Communist countries. On the other hand, Western imports are common. The local version of a supermarket had a Norwegian cash register, while a number of West German products were on sale. Since these bore factory labels in Serbo-Croatian, it seems as if German exporters have now established a considerable Yugoslav market.

Perhaps the most surprising feature of the country is the perfunctory nature of the customs and passport control, with none of the prodding, reching, and guarding of railway carriages found say, at the Czechoslovakian, Russian and East German borders. One suspects that all this is largely due to the patience and diplomacy of the Austrians, who have shown that they understand how to deal with their Slav neighbors.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart was born 210 years ago today — in 1756 — the son of an Austrian composer. He began harpsichord lessons at three and a year later was composing short pieces of music. At six years old, Mozart was taken on a tour of the princely courts of Germany. In later life the composer was often in debt, but his genius never flagged. When hard-pressed, he wrote the overture to his opera Don Giovanni in a single night. He died of typhoid fever at the age of 35, believing he had been poisoned by a rival composer.

Iconoclast at Work

The Romeo Image

By CASSANDRA from London

THE Englishman has always rather had it in for the romantic Italian male.

Certainly at Lord's and Twickenham these fellas have been regarded as foreign cads who could neither play straight bat, nor make their weight tell in the scrum.

In my time, it began with Rudolph Valentino, who made more women swoon than the Beatles and, when he died, the cult of sex worship followed him to the grave and beyond, and lingered on for years afterwards.

He was born in Italy and given the formidable name of Rodolpho Alphonzo Raffaelo Pierre Filibert Guglielmi di Valentina d'Antonguella.

Later he emigrated to America and, after two films, "Monsieur Beaucaire" and "The Sheik," the female half of the United States was enslaved for decades.

The romance of this pasty-faced little chap has been partly revived by cheap holiday tours to Italy and the violent attraction these Romeos are said to have for visiting English girls.

It has remained to an Italian girl (and who can be a better authority?) to put the dynamite under Rudolph and his swarthy chums.

Signorina Gabriella Parca fired the detonators when she recently conducted a survey at Turin University among nearly 3,000 students of both sexes into the behavior of the Italian male.

Signorina Parca is an anthropologist, a journalist and a widely travelled lady who has written a book on her findings and called it "The Sultans." Judging by her opinions of the Italian male she might have entitled it "The Insultans."

The passionate gallant from the land of romance turns out to be a calculating, snobbish, mother-loving little bigot. Half of the men she consulted put the material assets of a woman way up near the top of desirable qualities.

The formidable passionate Latin lover of fiction sweeping all before him in his burning desires, keeps a sharp lookout, it seems, on the chances of a good permanent supply of spaghetti.

Still more important than the pasta, in his estimation, is the social position of the girl's family. Valentinos of the mid-sixties, according to the signorina's researches, are also deplorably concerned with their mothers and suffer from what the Italians call "Mammismo," which complaint is self-explanatory.

Wherefore art thou, Romeo?

The Barbouzes Haunt de Gaulle

By EDWIN ROTH
from Paris
Special to the Colonist

The Ben Barka scandal now shaking France is only part of de Gaulle's comeuppance for the way he came to power.

This squalid embarrassment now suffered by de Gaulle was caused by the very same people who played essential and sordid parts in the rightist conspiracy which brought de Gaulle to power in 1958 by a military revolt that blackmailed France's parliament into the choice between de Gaulle or civil war.

Later, de Gaulle betrayed these rightist conspirators. But until now he has never cleaned up the most secret and most disreputable secret service organization — the "Barbouzes," which means "men wearing false beards."

He used them to fight, terrorize, kidnap and kill his extreme-right enemies of the so-called Secret Army Organization, who were trying to overthrow and kill him after he gave Algeria independence.

These "Barbouzes" were always enormously well paid. For years they were above and beyond the law.

Still Haunted

French newspapers are calling de Gaulle's regime "The Republic of the Barbouzes." This is a true and apt description.

The "Barbouzes'" original creator was Jacques Soustelle, who brought de Gaulle to power, broke with him when de Gaulle abandoned Algeria, and is now in exile. De Gaulle's Fifth Republic was always—and still is—haunted by its disreputable origins.

The French Service de Documentation Exterieure et de Contre-Espionage — abbreviated SDECE — is the "Barbouzes'" employer.

Its head until he was dramatically fired by de Gaulle a few days ago was the 55-year-old air force general Paul Jacquier, who was previously deputy chief of staff for plans and policy at Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Powers in Europe.

Jacquier was said to get an official budget of $7,000,000 a year — plus a lot more from Prime Minister Georges Pompidou's secret fund.

Old Incident

In 1963, the "Barbouzes" took the terrorist Secret Army Organization's leader, Colonel Antoine Argoud by force from a Munich hotel, drove him across the French-German frontier and left him bound and gagged in a truck near Paris police headquarters. Although West German sovereignty was grossly infringed, de Gaulle did not return Argoud to West Germany.

It is not surprising that the mercenary "Barbouzes" and the French police were willing to carry out a very highly paid operation for the Moroccan regime of right-wing extremists.

What happened in the Ben Barka scandal is so melodramatic, so fantastic, and so complicated, that no writer would dare to use it as plot for the most lurid fiction.

Very Careful

The 46-year-old Moroccan left-wing leader Mehdi Ben Barka lived in exile in Switzerland. As he was sentenced to death in Morocco in his absence for an alleged plot to murder Moroccan politicians, and knew that Moroccan agents might kill him, he was very careful on his travels.

Ben Barka's most powerful enemy was the Moroccan general, Mohammed Oufkir, at present Morocco's interior minister, and chief of Morocco's army, police, and secret service.

Their fierce personal hatred went back a long time. While Morocco was a French protectorate and Ben Barka was fighting against the French, Oufkir was an officer in the French army and an SDECE agent.

Oufkir wanted Morocco to stay French. This gave him many friendly contacts in the French secret service. He is a tough man of extreme personal violence. According to one story, he once personally beheaded an offender.

Amnesty Fear

General Oufkir had reason to fear that King Hassan II of Morocco — who is monarch, prime minister, and supreme spiritual leader—might amnesty Ben Barka and recall him to Morocco for membership of a "government of mutual reconciliation."

But Ben Barka would never have joined any government containing Oufkir. This is still only conjecture—but the hard facts of Ben Barka's fate are now clear.

Since Morocco became independent, the secret services of France and Morocco have often exchanged favors. One of the "Barbouzes" highly paid by the SDECE was 41-year-old Antoine Lopez, a senior Air France official at Orly airport—the international airport of Paris. He was also paid by the Moroccan secret service.

The Gangster

Lopez knew Georges Figon, a gangster who in 1955 was sentenced to 20 years for firing on the police. He was paroled. There are excellent reasons for believing that Figon was also a "Barbouze."

★ ★ ★

BACKGROUND

According to various witnesses who corroborate each other's evidence, General Oufkir offered Lopez an enormous amount of money for Ben Barka's capture.

Ben Barka was betrayed by Philippe Bernier, a freelance journalist whom Ben Barka believed to be his friend—and who now says that the Moroccan secret service offered him more than $80,000 for his part in the plot.

To capture Ben Barka, Lopez recruited several Paris gangsters—and the head of the Paris police drug squad, Louis Souchon, and Souchon's deputy Roger Voitot, whom he knew through his secret service work. Apparently he told them Ben Barka's capture was another "Barbouze" operation covered by higher authority.

Lure Set

Bernier lured Ben Barka to Paris by telling him that a movie was to be made about his revolutionary activities. The gangster Figon posed as the movie's financial backer. Ben Barka arrived at Orly airport Oct. 29. He had a lunch appointment in Paris with Figon.

When Ben Barka went to the appointment he was accompanied by a freind — the young Moroccan historian Azzemouri.

Outside the restaurant, they were approached by the two real police officers who showed Ben Barka their real police cards and asked him to get into their real police car.

Ben Barka, who did not resist what he believed to be a genuine police operation, drove off in the police car with the two policemen—and two gangsters.

The gang's fatal mistake was to leave Azzemouri. If they had taken him, too, there would have been no Ben Barka scandal.

Enter Oufkir

What happened next is known only from statements of French participants which have since emerged.

According to Figon, General Oufkir flew to Paris the next day, drove to the gangster's house where Ben Barka was kept prisoner, and killed Ben Barka with a Moorish dagger.

Official records at Orly airport prove that Oufkir arrived at Orly at 5 p.m. on Saturday, October 30—the day after Ben Barka disappeared—and flew to Switzerland at 5 a.m. next morning.

For de Gaulle, the tremendously embarrassing scandal is the official French handling of this affair in the following days and weeks. The police officer Souchon confessed immediately after Ben Barka's disappearance became known. Apparently out of consideration for the presidential election in December, nothing was done.

Hopes Dashed

But the gangster Figon wrecked all hopes of a cover-up. He was mentally unstable, liked money, and loved publicity. Apart from the law against attacking the president, de Gaulle's Fifth Republic has press freedom. Newspapers and magazines offered Figon money, and got his story.

Although a warrant was issued for Figon's arrest, he gave press and television interviews while allegedly every policeman in France was looking for him.

He even posed for a photographer of the top-circulation magazine Paris-Match beside a policeman outside Paris police headquarters, feeling absolutely sure that he would not be arrested. Figon's certainty of this is a vital item of the scandal.

On Monday, January 17—only a few days after the sensational photos were printed in Paris-Match—a large number of policemen ostentatiously surrounded the apartment in which Figon was hiding.

Attracting much public attention, they yelled to Figon to give himself up. According to police statements, they found his corpse with a gun beside it when they broke into the apartment.

Lesson to All

Figon's death is a lesson for anyone else who may be tempted to talk too much.

Only after Figon's death was de GaBatie seen to take action. He fired the SDECE chief General Jacquier, and publicly removed the secret service from the control of Prime Minister Georges Pompidou to the Ministry of Armed Forces.

Sensationally, France issued an international police warrant for the arrest of General Oufkir—but only after Figon's death. This shattered diplomatic relations between France and Morocco. The whole affair may also cause a tremendous explosion in Morocco — with much bloodshed.

In an official communique, de Gaulle's government described the Ben Barka scandal as "a criminal enterprise planned from abroad which has benefited from a certain complicity of the French secret services or police officials." Another official French government statement publicly accused General Oufkir.

Both these statements were issued only after Figon's violent death 12 weeks after Ben Barka vanished.

At least three men close to de Gaulle appear to be compromised: Prime Minister Georges Pompidou, Interior Minister Roger Frey, and de Gaulle's personal intelligence aide Jacques Foccart.

Five men are now under arrest in Paris: Lopez, the police officers Souchon and Voitot, Bernier, and a Moroccan senior police officer who shortly before Ben Barka's abduction became a student in a Paris business school. Three gangsters have disappeared.

The big question is whether de Gaulle will dare to hold the arrested men's trial in public — and when.

But Government Gets There First

Miners Rush to Barkerville

The government is buying $50,000 worth of mineral claims on the outskirts of Barkerville, to keep new mining interests from hemming in the old gold rush town.

The government has already spent nearly $1,000,000 on the purchase of land, provision of services for visitors and restoration of old cabins at Barkerville Provincial Historic Park, about 45 miles east of Quesnel.

Expenditure of $50,000 from the Consolidated Revenue Fund for acquisition of the extra property was approved by an order-in-council Wednesday.

Government officials said that so much money and effort had already gone into the restoration program that the extra land was needed to ensure that no harm would come to Barkerville through diversion of creeks and other mining activity.

High-Ranking Lodge Member

Arthur Carrington Funeral Today

Funeral services will be held at 1:15 p.m. today for Arthur John Carrington, 64, well known in Victoria since moving here in 1939.

Mr. Carrington was an electrician and construction specialist.

Formerly of Calgary, he was a retired chief petty officer with the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve.

Mr. Carrington was a member of the Salvation Army and Britannia Lodge 73 AF and AM, BCR, Victoria Lodge of Perfection Scottish Rite and Rose Croix. He was a 32nd degree Mason.

Cremation will follow, with the scattering of the ashes at sea.

Mr. Carrington is survived by his wife Gladys, 1060 Craigdarroch Road; one son, Arthur, of North Vancouver; two daughters, Mrs. W. Tambling, of North Vancouver, and Mrs. Fred Ferrel of Alaska; 10 grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. Gertrude Bennett, of South Pender Island.

Flippant Salesman Fooled by Looks

"Have you got cars on hand?"

"Sure we have," the salesman answered.

"I want 16 cars, if I like the model."

"I have no time for jokes—buzz off," the salesman said.

He made similar inquiries and got full service. The man in overalls really wanted 16 new cars and paid in cash—500,000 Norwegian kroner ($77,000).

He belonged to a 16-man crew of a Norwegian trawler that caught record quantities of herring last season. Each fisherman netted 70,000 kroner during the season.) They decided to buy new cars and to buy all 16 at once, to get the highest possible discount.

FOOD WATCHES MEN

Some Indonesians believe rice, their main food, has a soul and therefore keep harvesting equipment out of sight until it is used.

Bruch Chairman

Socreds Meet in Caucus

Premier Bennett, his cabinet ministers and MLAs met behind closed doors Wednesday in the Legislative Buildings to thresh out party policy for the coming session.

Esquimalt MLA Herbert Bruch was re-elected for the eighth year as chairman of the caucus and James Chabot (SC, Columbia) was elected deputy chairman.

★ ★ ★

Thirty of the government's 32 members attended caucus. Absent were Donald Robinson (SC, Lillooet) and Mr. Speaker William Murray (SC, Prince Rupert), who does not sit in on caucus because of his position in the House.

Details of the 2½-hour caucus were not disclosed.

"It was a friendly caucus," one Socred member said in the corridor.

★ ★ ★

Senior Metals Make New Highs

MONTREAL (CP)—Stock prices turned upward for the first time this week.

Banks and utilities were off but all other sections moved fractionally higher in moderate trading.

Senior metals held the spotlight most of the day. In the base section International Nickel jumped 1⅜ points to a new high of 105½ and Noranda ⅛ to 54. Consolidated Mining and Smelting and Falconbridge each added ½. Among the primary issues Aluminium rose ⅝ to a new high of 37¼.

Domtar jumped 1⅜ points and Consolidated ½. Moore Corp. added one point to 79½ and Dominion Textile ⅛.

Cowichan Higher

VANCOUVER—Prices were mainly lower among mines. Brenda dipped 3.55, Pyramid to 14.75 while General Resources was off 20 cents at .43. Kamloops, Pat Silver and Camsa were also lower.

A broker said weakness stemmed from the fact that this was monthly settlement day for margin accounts.

Late Rally Helps

TORONTO (CP)—Speculative issues provided most of the activity as they rebounded from heavy declines in morning and early-afternoon sessions.

Wilco led the group as it jumped 17 cents to 1.10. D'Eldona advanced 3 cents to 2.65. Earlier in the day it had been as low as 2.32.

Texaco led industrials as it gained 1½ while Domtar moved ahead 1⅜. Aluminium and Atlantic Sugar each rose ⅜.

New York Sputters

The top steelmakers and motors took moderate losses. The aerospace stocks continued to ride on U.S. budget provisions for defence.

Gaglardi Gets Okay

An additional $1,000,000 needed by the highways department for roads, bridges, ferries, wharves and tunnels, was allocated from the consolidated revenue fund Wednesday by the provincial cabinet.

The $20,300,000 contained for this purpose in the 1965-66 estimates had already been fully committed, according to Highways Minister Gaglardi, who requested the extra money.

Embryo Bank Pleads For More Time

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The thousand's of people who subscribed to the proposed Bank of Western Canada are being asked to give the embryo bank another year in which to win its federal charter.

The agreement made with the subscribers was that the money would be returned by Feb. 28, 1966, if the charter had not been granted by that time.

The proposed directors of the new bank are asking for a year's extension because they hope that the charter will be awarded at the current session of parliament.

COYNE INCLUDED

The directors who include James E. Coyne, former governor of the Bank of Canada, say they have reasonable hopes of getting the charter and that they know of no objectors.

The bill to authorize its charter received a second reading in the house last June and the third reading did not take place before the dissolution a few days later.

UP TO SUBSCRIBERS

If the subscribers agree the Bank of Western Canada will renew its bid immediately.

Meantime the officials of the would-be Bank have had the funds entrusted to them placed in short term securities and as a result of interest received subscribers will receive shortly 60 cents for each subscription share held.

ALGOMA MAKES DEAL

Algoma Steel Corporation has signed an agreement with Steep Rock Iron Mines that will ensure for the big Sault Ste. Marie steel manufacturing firm a continuity of raw material supply for many years.

Algoma has acquired title to substantial reserves of hematite ore from the Roberts and Hogarth mines at Steep Rock's western Ontario property.

LONG RANGE

The agreement is that Algoma will buy 1,100,000 tons a year of pelletized iron for a period of 22 years. The mining, pelletizing and shipping will be handled by Steep Rock.

Construction of the pelletizing plant has started and production will start in the spring of 1967.

Steep Rock is also negotiating an extra sale of 250,000 tons of pellets to another steel company, and the initial pelletizing plant is planned to produce 1,350,000 tons a year.

ALL-TIME HIGH

Spot copper rose to another all-time high on the London Metal exchange Wednesday when news arrived of a threatened strike in the Chilean copper industry, and to further U.S. and Canadian restrictions of copper exports.

The closing price for spot copper was £665 a ton which is the equivalent of 84⅛ cents a pound in U.S. funds. The previous close was £645 a ton.

The strike in Chile at present is confined to Kennecott's Braden mine where the operatives have been out since Jan. 3.

Union officials threaten to extend the strike to other operations in Chile if there is no settlement quickly. Chile had a one-month general strike last October.

Jim Taylor FROM LEFT FIELD

I hope Doug Fletcher understands when I say I wish he wasn't president of Victoria Shamrocks.

Not that he won't be a good one. There's not a man more experienced, more dedicated or better suited to the job. I just wish he hadn't taken it.

Doug Fletcher is 73 years old, and it's time he packed it up.

It's time he changed his phone number, dropped out of about half of the committees he's on, and started being Doug Fletcher, spectator, instead of Doug Fletcher, sports machine. Because the best of machines run down without proper care.

There isn't a sports figure in Canada I admire more than Fletcher. Often we have disagreed, but we have never fought. So maybe he'll understand when I call him stubborn.

Last summer, Fletcher was ill. He came out of hospital determined to slow down, play it cool, not get excited about anything.

Two nights later he was bounding up the stairs of the press box at Memorial Arena, making sure the boys knew what a great game his Shamrocks were playing.

And now he's president of the lacrosse club, and he says he's going to slow down and let other people do the work. Who is kidding who?

Fletcher says he did not want the job, took it only because the club pleaded with him to do it. That may be true, but deep down where he keeps the secrets locked away, I'll bet he's delighted he was asked. And he'll throw himself into the job with all the wild enthusiasm that he's shown in every sport for years and years.

Oh, he's formed committees, all right. But will be let them do the work? The very all-consuming interest that has made him so outstanding in the past will have him taking on the work that other people are willing to try.

No, don't shake your head as you read this, Doug, because you know it's true.

So please, slow down. Hand the work to others, let them do it and relax.

It's not that you can't do it anymore. Everyone knows that you can. But you don't have to do it all.

Sports will stagger when you pull out, Doug, but they won't fall. And even if they do, better them than you.

Some time in the next week or so, the Shamrocks are going to name their new coach. One of the names presented will be that of Jim McNeill, who took over last year, but there will be others.

Last season McNeill was the league's youngest coach, and he came under considerable pressure, first because he wouldn't play himself (he made the logical choice of job security over sports) and secondly because the Rocks weren't winning.

McNeill wants to coach again. He also wants the Rocks to win. So he made a proposal to the club directors at the last meeting.

"If you want me again, fine," he said. "But if you can make a deal with a big-name player and he wants to coach too, say so and I'll step down."

BOXLA BITS: When the Rocks go hunting, two of their targets will be defenceman Barry Ashbee, who just might be back, and Jack Blonda, a free agent now who is said to be interested in moving here and opening a branch of a business interest he has in Portland . . . Nirmal Dillon, who had been seeking a release to play junior lacrosse in New Westminster, now says he'll stay with the Rocks . . . On the mainland, the word is that everyone will go all out to help the Shamrocks. Commendable attitude, that. Maybe someone should mention it to Coquitlam Adanacs, who are trying to steal Jack Showers. . . . Ted Liebich, the big defenceman who was about the most consistent of Shamrock's Nanaimo imports, may come to Victoria for the summer just so he can stay with the team. Now if Larry Biggs would do the same, the Rocks would be a couple of big steps ahead. They're going to need a lot of help.

Different Than Kenya

Kipchoge Keino, new track sensation who reportedly learned to run fast while herding fleet Kenya cattle, takes a look at Madison Square Garden with his manager, Tony Vaz (left) explaining things to him. Keino, who holds world's 3,000 and 5,000-metre records and owns a 3:54.2 outdoor mile, will run Wanamaker mile against Canadian half-miler Bill Crothers tonight as feature of Millrose Games. Experts predict a sub four-minute affair, perhaps approaching indoor record of 3:56.4.—(AP)

Wings Brought to Earth By Late New York Shot

Detroit Red Wings were brought crashing back to earth in the National Hockey League last night, shot down in the last two minutes by New York Rangers.

Jean Ratelle's 14th goal of the season, scored at 18:02 of the third period, gave the Rangers a comeback 4-3 victory in New York, ended Detroit's unbeaten string at nine games, and tightened up the NHL standings considerably.

	GP	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Detroit	41	25	13	3	143	108	53
Chicago	41	22	14	5	140	113	49
Montreal	40	21	14	5	124	107	47
Toronto	39	19	15	5	114	105	43
New York	41	16	22	3	117	148	35
Boston	40	10	26	4	90	163	24

Last night's scores: Chicago 4 at Montreal 2; Detroit 3 at New York 4. Next game: Tonight — Chicago at Boston.

While the Wings were losing in New York, Chicago Black Hawks were ending a six-game winless streak with a 4-2 win over the Canadiens in Montreal, breaking their second-place tie and moving to within two points of the Wings.

Rangers had to make quite a comeback for their win as the Wings, who hadn't lost a game in 1965, went up 2-0 on goals by Alex Delvecchio and Floyd Smith.

But they got a break when Delvecchio accidently pushed the puck past Roger Crozier into his own net in the second period, the goal being credited to Vic Hadfield. Before the period ended Bob Nevin had tied it with his first goal in 10 games, only to have Bill Gadsby put the Wings ahead again less than two minutes later.

SHOVED IT IN

Don Marshall tied it again midway in the third period, and Ratelle finally pushed Reg Fleming's pass under Roger Crozier's pads for the winner.

In Montreal, Phil Esposito scored twice and Glenn Hall turned in a fine goaltending job for the Hawks in their battle with Canadiens. It was only the third defeat for Canadiens in eight games with the Hawks this season.

Bobby Hull scored his 39th goal and made the pass for another by Red Hay, giving him a league-leading point total of 53. He has 29 games left to get the 12 goals he needs to break the season record of 50 he shares with Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion.

Canadiens, who outshot the Hawks, 32-29, got one goal in the second period by J. C. Tremblay and one from Claude Provost in the third, when they outplayed the Hawks by a wide margin, only to be thwarted by Hall.

The move paid off with Provost's goal, but Hall made several sparkling saves, including two on breakaways by Beliveau and Provost, to keep them from getting any closer.

Hawks were without centre Stan Mikita, defenceman Pierre Pilote and rookie-winger Ken Hodge. Defenceman Ted Harris was not in the Montreal lineup.

Gets Five Days

Earl Battey, star catcher for Minnesota Twins, was sentenced to five days in county workhouse yesterday in St. Paul after pleading guilty to a Minnesota income-tax violation. Battey presented a Cheque for $4,227.80 claimed by the state and will start his sentence on Feb. 3.

Another Trotter Success

Harlem Globe Trotters did it again last night at Memorial Arena, bringing in 6,235 fans to watch their zany basketball antics and their fine supporting vaudeville show and leaving scores unable to get in.

Island Rink Eliminated In Vancouver

VANCOUVER—(CP) — Marg Cooke and her Vancouver Curling Club rink of Ruth Hebert, Eva Glover and Marion Ellison will represent the Pacific Coast district in the provincial women's curling final in Kamloops, Feb. 7, 8 and 9.

Mrs. Cooke, who forced a playoff with a win Tuesday night, downed Myra Perriman's Campbell River rink, 10-5, in the sudden-death game on Wednesday morning.

Doris Christensen, Edie Grant and Jackie Langdon were the other members of Mrs. Perriman's Vancouver Island zone champions.

Yanks Will Miss Him

Tony Left as He Came

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tony Kubek went out the same way he came in — quietly, inconspicuously and without anything approaching a 21-gun salute.

It was typical of him that he didn't think his retirement was even important enough for him to make the official announcement himself. He let the Yankees do it.

Kubek wasn't much for making announcements of any kind.

SELF-EFFACING

The only times he did during his nine years with the Yankees were those times when there was any question about who really made the error in a play in which he might have had a hand.

"It was entirely my fault," he would say many of those times. "I'm the one to blame."

Probably the most important announcement Kubek ever made was a rather private one. He made it to his wife, Margaret, after returning from Mayo Brothers clinic last October.

"They told me I'll have to quit," he said.

"Is that final?" she asked him.

"They left very little hope," he replied.

The 29-year-old former all-star shortstop nursed that meager hope until last Monday when he was examined by Dr. Sidney Gaynor, the club physician. Then all remaining hope vanished.

ONLY PART OF IT

The Yankees announced Kubek was quitting because of a pinched nerve in his spine which transmitted pain to his left shoulder and dulled his reflex action. That's true as far as it goes. But there's a lot more to it than that.

First of all, he never liked the idea of spending so much time away from his wife and three children.

Secondly, he's one of those rarities who doesn't attach paramount importance to the material things in life. And when is the last time you heard of a 29-year-old ball player voluntarily turning his back on a $32,000 contract?

DISAPPOINTED

Thirdly, and possibly most important to all, Kubek was discouraged about not being able to help the ball club any more than he did last year when a .218 batting average represented the lowest one of his major league career.

"Never once since he made up his mind to quit has Tony said he'll miss baseball," revealed his wife. "But I know he will. It'll probably be hardest for him when spring training rolls around in a few weeks. He has his eyes open, though, and I know he'll be all right."

Around the Yankee clubhouse, Kubek will be remembered for three things.

He was a bit of a prankster, he was also considerate, the kind who invariably was first to console and encourage any other young player being sent down. And, above all, he was a pro.

MICKEY SAW IT

This was shortly after Kubek reported to the Yankees as a 20-year-old rookie in 1957 and was assigned a uniform with the number 34 on the back.

"Why don't they give him a decent number to wear instead of that 34?" Mantle inquired. "He's gonna be around quite awhile."

So they gave Kubek No. 10 to wear.

Typically, he never knew the reason for the switch. Typically, too, he never bothered to ask.

McNeill Keeps Up Firing Bucks Within Two Points

Vancouver's Billy McNeill pulled away in the scoring race and Portland Buckaroos closed in on Victoria Maple Leafs in the Western Hockey League last night.

McNeill, centreing the league's hottest line, got two goals and assisted on two others last night as Canucks beat Los Angeles Blades, 8-4, in Los Angeles. Meawhile, in Portland, the Bucks edged San Francisco Seals, 4-3, to get within two points of the first-place Leafs.

McNeill's four points gave him 60 for the season, breaking a tie with Portland's Cliff Schmautz, shut out last night.

NOW TOP UNIT

Bruce Carmichael had two goals and two assists and Howie Hughes a goal and three assists, giving the line 63 goals, one more than Victoria's Andy Hebenton-Milan Marcetta-Bob Barlow unit.

McNeill has 21 goals, Hughes 28 and Carmichael 14. Barlow has 25, Hebenton 15 and Marcetta 22.

The win was the seventh straight over the Blades for Canucks this season. They are 4-1 against the Seals, and play in San Francisco Friday.

SPURT WINS

Goals 27 seconds apart by Chuck Holmes and Gerry Goyer in the third period gave Portland its sixth win in seven tries against the Seals.

Meanwhile, Seattle Totems, who started their American Hockey League tour with a victory, ended it with another last night, scoring five times in the third period for a 5-3 win over Hershey Bears.

Students Arrested For Sweater Theft

MONTREAL (CP) — Between 40 and 50 University of Montreal students were herded into paddy wagons by police Wednesday night after they swarmed onto the ice of the Montreal Forum following a Montreal - Chicago National Hockey League game, wearing Detroit Red Wings' sweaters.

The 45 sweaters, valued at $1,000, were taken from the Forum late Friday night after a game between the Detroit and Montreal NHL Old-timers.

IT'S A JOKE

Seven students told reporters earlier Wednesday that they had removed the sweaters and had hidden them as one of a series of pranks connected with the University's winter carnival.

The students who wore the sweaters onto Forum ice Wednesday night were detained in a dressing room for more than an hour before they were escorted away.

Police declined to comment on whether charges would be laid.

At least 12 uniformed police were on hand at the Forum when the game ended.

Earlier Wednesday, four large oil paintings depicting scenes of Stanley Cup hockey action vanished from the Forum walls and officials said they were stolen.

The pictures, which were bolted to Forum walls, decorated the foyer leading to the business offices of the Montreal Canadiens Hockey Club.

They were painted by Tex Coulter, a former star with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference.

David Molson, Canadiens' president, said Canadiens plan "every action against them (the students) and I presume the Detroit Hockey Club will do likewise."

Mr. Molson said the arena has been plagued with all sorts of "stupid telephone calls all day" and said he no longer considered it a joke.

President Gets Tough After Spokane Brawl

Colin Kilburn
. . . suspended

NELSON (CP) — Suspensions have been handed Spokane Jets and Nelson Maple Leafs of the Western International Hockey League as a result of a riot at a game Sunday afternoon.

Spokane Jets must post a $1,500 good-behavior bond before they can play another game, president Milo Fabro of Kimberley announced Wednesday.

INDEFINITE

Nelson Maple Leafs were also suspended and must post a $500 bond.

Carl Chwachka of the Leafs also received an indefinite suspension.

The riot occurred when a fight broke out in the Leafs' players' box and involved players, fans and Spokane police.

REFEREE KAYOED

A fan threw a chair at referee Buzz Mellor of Kimberley knocking him unconscious, and Fabro said the Spokane Coliseum management will be asked to ban the fan.

Bonds similar to those assessed against the two teams will be required from any club that gets out of line in the future, Fabro said.

"The time has come to rid ourselves of irresponsible people who upset or destroy such a pleasurable game as hockey," Fabro said.

"We as directors have tried to control the players of clubs within our league, appealed to presidents and managers alike to be good sportsmen, have suspended and fined players, coaches and managers to no avail in many cases.

"The action I have taken is in my opinion in the interest of all sportsmen."

Young City Stars Top Net Rankings

Victoria's ever-growing tennis prestige has received another big boost with the announcement that three Victorians have been ranked first in their divisions in the 1965 B.C. Tennis Association rankings.

Theodora Booker and Roger Skillings, both Canadian champions in the under-18 singles class, were on top of those divisions in the new B.C. rankings, and Donnie Marnell placed first in the under-14 bracket.

TWO CLOSE UP

Margo Maysmith and Miss Booker were ranked second and third, respectively, behind Vancouver's Stephanie Green of Vancouver in the under-18 class, and Pat Skillings placed in a tie for ninth spot in the under-16 class topped by his brother.

Former-Victorian Sharon Whittaker, now of Vancouver, was ranked third in the ladies' singles, behind Trudy Lees and Lee Dobson, also of Vancouver.

John Fraser and Don McCormick of Victoria, who would normally rate at or near the top, weren't listed in the men's singles because of "insufficient data," which means neither played in enough B.C. tournaments.

Bob Moffat and Ken Dahl of Vancouver were ranked first and second, respectively.

UCLA Rules Ineligibility For Bowl Ace

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Defensive-back Bob Stiles, star of the UCLA Rose Bowl team on Jan. 1 when he made two interceptions and several key tackles in the upset win over Michigan State, has been declared ineligible for further football at UCLA.

Athletic-director J. D. Morgan, who made the announcement, said that Stiles had attended University of Mississippi for a few weeks prior to attending a California junior college for two years and then transferring to UCLA.

Claremont Remains Undefeated

	W	L	D	F	A	Pts.
Claremont	1	0	1	21	11	3
Mt. Douglas	1	0	1	14	6	3
Mount View	1	0	0	16	6	2
Oak Bay	0	2	0	0	34	0

Next games: Wednesday — Victoria High at Mount View; Oak Bay at Claremont.

The inter-high school rugby reason is only four games old, but already one player has emerged as the hottest scoring threat around.

His name is Mick Eckardt, and he's helped boost Claremont into a first-place tie with Mt. Douglas.

Eckardt scored two trys and set up the third by Phil Newton yesterday as Claremont beat Victoria High, 15-5. Last week he scored both trys in a 6-6 tie with Mt. Douglas.

Dennis Mahon converted all three trys yesterday and Lorne Hamilton had a try, converted by Pat White, for Vic High.

Meanwhile, Mt. Douglas kept a share of the lead with an 8-0 win over Oak Bay.

Chess Results

Results of the Victoria Chess Club games played the week ending Jan. 22 are in the city championship, Frank Mazza defeated A. Higgs; James Holman defeated A. Stradyk.

In the club championships, Danny McCoy defeated A. Johnstone; Otto Schumacher defeated E. Woodcock; Martin Olsen defeated A. Johnstone; Danny McCoy defeated J. Hanley-Lewis.

Leaders in the city championship are Alan Lane, seven points, and James Robson, 4½ points. In the club championship Otto Schumacher and E. Woodcock are tied with six points.

Jamaica Bars Rhodesians From Games

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters)—Rhodesian athletes travelling under passports issued by Ian Smith's regime will not be allowed into Jamaica for the British Empire and Commonwealth Games here in August, a government spokesman said tonight.

The spokesman said the government had made it clear in Parliament that Jamaica did not recognize the Smith government, and this non-recognition extended to documents issued by it.

The position of Rhodesian athletes with passports issued before the unilateral declaration of independence is "a borderline case" which will have to be considered further, he said.

Argos Stock Up on Catchers But Pitchers Are a Problem

TORONTO (UPI) — The Toronto Argonauts obtained two accomplished pass receivers Wednesday in a four-player trade with the Calgary Stampeders. But the question is who will throw to them.

Pete Manning, a 28-year-old split end, and Bobby Taylor, a 26-year-old flanker, are the newest hands on the somewhat listing Argonaut ship.

YIELD QUARTERBACK

Taylor, a Canadian, led the Canadian Football League in pass receptions in 1963 with 74. Manning, a former Chicago Bear, was a fine receiver until he switched to the defensive backfield last season.

With Liske, who did a satisfactory although not spectacular job during the turbulent 1965 season, safely dispatched to dry land, the boatmen will have to come up with a replacement if they are to take advantage of Taylor and Manning and end their four-year monopoly on last place in the eastern conference.

Wally Gabler, a 21-year-old product of Michigan appears to be the best bet to call the Argonaut signals next season. Bill Van Burkleo of Tulsa, could be a challenger but don't bet against the possibility of further quarterbacking candidates coming aboard.

Liske, a 24-year-old import, "lacked mobility," according to coach Bob Shaw. Gabler, although inexperienced, is reputed to be a superior scrambler and runner.

"We felt we had to improve on Liske to become a contender," Shaw said. Warren was dropped by the Argos before last season's opener, but rejoined the team midway through the season and performed creditably. Shaw admits he may develop into a good receiver.

The acquisition of Taylor, who has played some hockey in the Toronto Maple Leaf farm system, will probably end Pat Brosnan's brief stint in Toronto.

Brosnan, an American, was Liske's favorite target last season.

TWO-WAY STAR

Manning has been an all-star at both split end and in the defensive backfield. This versatility, a necessity not a luxury in the Canadian game, makes him a valuable piece of property.

Manning will likely be used at end, freeing Canadian Len Sparks for duty in the defensive backfield.

Calgary's trade is not quite as clear as Toronto's.

The Stampeders finished on top in the western conference last season, but failed once again to win a Grey Cup berth.

Eagle Day, the number one quarterback, is 34 and has fallen into disfavor in some quarters.

However, Liske will have his work cut out in trying to put Day among the unemployed. Jerry Keeling, Calgary's reserve quarterback last year, cannot be counted out either.

Vikings Play U.S. College

This time the opposition will be provided by the Bremerton Junior College Jayvees in games Friday at 8 p.m. and Saturday afternoon at 1.

Rhodesian Ruin Awaits Invaders

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Acting information minister Peiter Van Der Byl said Wednesday Rhodesia would adopt a scorched earth policy if Britain used force against the rebel government.

"Everything in the path of an advancing army would be destroyed—all amenities and all installations," he said. "Let (Prime Minister Harold) Wilson realize this before he attempts to embark on something that could only end in disaster."

"If he were to prevail in this country he would take over a smoking ruin and a desert."

Van Der Byl told a meeting of the Chartered Institute of Secretaries he was convinced Wilson's government was moving toward the use of force despite talk of negotiations.

"He may well attempt to manufacture an incident which will make it look as though British troops were coming in to rescue their kith and kin from some hypothetical fate in this country," Van Der Byl said.

Premier Ian Smith was at his farm in the Selukwe district Wednesday and made no comment on Wilson's statement Tuesday outlining what Britain planned for Rhodesia once Smith's regime fell. A government spokesman said Smith would be making a "major statement" in the next few days.

Van Der Byl gave the first high-level Rhodesian reaction to Wilson's statement by discount-ate African rule.

Bonn Offers Proposal For Monetary Reform

PARIS (UPI) -- West Germany was reported Wednesday to have drawn up a compromise plan designed to break a deadlock between France and the United States over the reform of the international monetary system.

Financial quarters said the German Plan will be discussed by the Deputy finance ministers of 10 leading western powers at the French finance ministry next week.

The conference will include representatives of nations which in 1961 pledged stand-by creditsthe worth $6,000,000,000 to increase the lending capacity of the International Monetary Fund.

The 10 nations seeking an overhaul of the international money system are, in addition to France and the United States: West Germany, Canada, Japan, Britain, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Sweden.

The compromise plan was drafted by Dr. A. Emminger, German chairman of the committee of deputy finance ministers, which meets regularly at the French finance ministry in the Louvre palace.

Emminger's plan is a cross between "expansionist" theories expounded by the United States and France's conservative views urging a return to the pre-First World War gold standard.

General's Charges Quashed?

OTTAWA (CP) -- The Citizen says that on instructions from the attorney-general conspiracy charges against Brig. John Baxter Allan of Ottawa and brothers Ben, Mark, Morris and Edward Levy of Toronto are being withdrawn.

In December, Brig. Allan, former vice-quartermaster-general of the army, was acquitted on a charge of accepting advantage or benefit from the Levy brothers while he was an official of the government and while the Levy firms were doing business with the government.

LIMIT EXPIRED

At that time, Crown Attorney John Cassells said the decision on whether to proceed with the conspiracy charge against Brig. Allan must await decision on wheather an appeal would be lodged against the December acquittal.

The Citizen says the time limit for an appeal on the first charge has expired and that written instructions have been received here from the attorney-general's office ordering that conspiracy charges be withdrawn.

Record Low In North

DAWSON CREEK (CP)—The temperature has plunged to 50 below zero at this northern B.C. Peace River city, a record for low readings in the area. The previous low was recorded last week when the mercury dipped to 49.1 degrees below.

As a result of the extreme cold, school buses did not run and attendance at school in the area was cut to about half of normal.

Un-world-shaking events that happened in 1883.

"Margo, daughter of H. Abney, the well-known livery stable keeper, and J. L. 'Jack' Clifford, raconteur, have eloped. Margo, it is said, was engaged to marry J. Baker, a Toronto barrister, but met Clifford and surrendered to his superior charms."

Also in 1883, Seagram's 83 was introduced to Canada and that caused a great deal of no excitement.

Somebody at the House of Seagram who owns a pencil and is also pretty fair at arithmetic did some figuring and discovered that this year is the 83rd birthday of Seagram's 83 whisky.

If this world-shaking news doesn't thrill you, maybe the taste of 83 will. That taste didn't thrill Canadians in 1883. This whisky was much too easy tasting, and the people of that time wanted harsh whisky that burned all the way down.

Time passed, and people started clamoring for whisky that was smoother, more gentle. And a lot of unsold 83 was around to meet the demand.

So 83, the unwanted, became 83, the very much wanted.

Seagram's 83
Easy tasting. Easy mixing

Nationalize CPR: Farmers

TORONTO (CP) — Sitting in the CPR's Royal York Hotel, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture has decided that the Canadian Pacific Railway should be nationalized.

A resolution carried at the CFA annual meeting Wednesday said the CPR's assets should be taken over by Canada "at actual value, less a reasonable amount for all land grants, mineral rights, and other concessions received from the Dominion."

"When this resolution was debated at the western conference last year people were darned mad at the CPR because it wouldn't haul their grain," said Nelson Malm of Calgary. "They said it wasn't compensatory."

Other speakers mentioned what they called the "idiotic" system of hauling grain in Saskatchewan.

Said Paul Babey of Edmonton: "Grain should go through straight to Vancouver. But because there are two railway systems, it must make a side trip of 700 miles to Edmonton."

C. W. Gibbings, Regina: "That's right. Grain shipped from areas east of Swift Current, Sask., comes back to Regina, then up to Saskatoon and away north to Edmonton before starting on its way west."

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government will appeal to the federal cabinet the decision of the board of transport commissioners which allowed the CPR to remove its Dominion passenger train.

Premier E. C. Manning told a press conference Wednesday the government plans to appeal through its special counsel in Ottawa, J. J. Frawley. He said he hopes it can be made jointly with the other two Prairie provinces.

A date for the appeal has not yet been set.

AFTER PEARSON

Mayors of eight Prairie cities on the CPR main line met in Moose Jaw Tuesday and voted to arrange a meeting with Prime Minister Pearson and the federal cabinet as soon as possible to fight for better rail passenger service.

Premier Ross Thatcher said Saskatchewan is "perfectly willing" to join Alberta's appeal. The province already has sent a telegram to the federal cabinet protesting the Dominion's removal and asking for a staying order against the board's decision until an appeal can be heard by the cabinet.

Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin was unavailable for comment.

City Blight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has proposed a $2,300,000,000, six-year program to revitalize distressed areas in U.S. cities.

White House sources said the program could affect 60 to 70 cities of various sizes.

Border Patrol

Canada Ends Egypt Duties

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada next month will abandon the reconnaissance role it has performed for the United Nations in Egypt since April, 1957, the defence department said Wednesday.

A squadron of the 8th Canadian Hussars will return to Camp Petawawa, Ont., in mid-February and the 112-man B Squadron of the same regiment will not go to Egypt as originally announced by the department in October.

Instead of supplying a reconnaissance unit, which has patrolled a 25-mile desert section of the Egyptian Israeli frontier, Canada will provide 30 more transport drivers and 12 more signallers to the UN force.

There are 906 Canadians serving in the force, now being reduced to a strength of about 6,600 after UN Secretary-General U Thant sent a survey team to Egypt last fall to recommend stream-lining and economies.

Mountain Hideaway Unveiled

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—A new $142,400,000 command centre for the North American continent's air defence system, hidden deep inside a mountain, was unveiled Wednesday by the U.S. Air Force.

A 1,600-foot granite roof, the top of Cheyenne Mountain, is designed to protect the centre from nuclear attack when it goes into operation next July. It will replace a two-storey block structure in Colorado Springs, seven miles away.

A former commander of the North American Air Defence command (NORAD) described the present building as vulnerable to any man armed with a bazooka.

NORAD is jointly operated by the United States and Canada, and made up of fighter and missile squadrons from both countries.

Officers wouldn't go so far as to describe the mountain installation as invulnerable.

Reporters were told the command centre could operate "completely buttoned up" for 30 days, drawing on its own power supply, on water stored in five underground reservoirs and on air drawn through a filter system designed to remove residue from a nuclear blast.

Eleven buildings form an underground city about one-third of a mile into the mountain. They are mounted on 937 coil springs to cushion the shock of any nearby blast.

Barbados Keeps Distance

Wary of OAS

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Errol Barrow of Barbados said Wednesday Barbados "may have walked into the Organization of American States with its eyes shut" if it had not been for United States intervention in the Dominican Republic.

"Now we must be careful of what we are doing," said the premier during a visit to Montreal before leaving Canada for the United States.

"I still think Commonwealth countries can make a contribution (to the OAS)," he told a press conference. "But we don't want to substitute one form of imperialism for another."

He said he is "a bit alarmed" that the OAS "should have allowed one member to intervene in the internal affairs of another without consulting fellow-members."

Barbados "will have to be sure" of its position before joining the organization, he said.

Barbados, now internally self-governing, probably will proclaim its independence from Britain before the end of the year. The eastern Caribbean island has a population of 243,000.

She Set Them Afire

Man-Hating Blonde Nabbed

MIAMI (UPI) — A man-hating blonde, once confined to a mental hospital for enticing would be lovers to motels and then trying to set fire to them, has been arrested on a suspicion of arson.

June Ann Olsen, 41, described as "very capable," was picked up shortly after six fires were set in a two block area of northeast Miami.

TRAPPED

One of the fires raced through the hallway of an apartment house, trapping two elderly women who were rescued by firemen using ladders. Damage to the building was estimated at $5,000.

Police said Miss Olsen was found "wandering around" in the vicinity of the fires. She was taken to the mental ward of Jackson Memorial Hospital.

BEARD FIRES

"We won't say she did it (set the fires) for sure right now," said Miami fire marshal Dewey Yates, "but whoever set them—and no doubt all six were set — almost killed those two old ladies."

Miss Olsen was sentenced to the criminal section of the South Florida Mental Hospital in 1962 for picking up men in Miami bars, promising them romance and then setting their beds afire in hotel rooms. She said at the time she hated men.

Miss Olsen spent six months after her parole from the mental hospital a year ago working as a receptionist at the Salvation Army transient centre in Ocala. Later, she went to work as a children's nurse in a private home.

Her employers at the Salvation Army centre described her as "very capable." She had no trouble with the law during the time she was in Ocala.

Pipes Service Ships

Massive pipes which will carry compressed air, steam and other services to ships being repaired in drydock at HMC Dockyard are in place and renovations are going ahead for $250,000 job by Burns and Dutton. Job started in October and is due for completion in spring.—(Ian McKain)

Appeal Upholds Oak Bay Bylaw

B.C. Court of Appeal Wednesday restored an Oak Bay bylaw and ruled a lower court should not have heard a motion to quash it.

The bylaw was passed by the municipality late in 1964 to rezone land on Beach Drive for apartment block developme...

But three residents took the decision to the B.C. Supreme Court, with the result that Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton set aside the bylaw.

* * *

Wednesday, the Appeal Court found wording of the originating motion to quash did not give the Supreme Court jurisdiction on the issue, and the appeal of the municipality and propery owners Siegfried and Veronica Marquardt was allowed.

* * *

Before the court's ruling, William McIntyre, counsel for the Marquardts, had argued that Mr. Justice Wootton was wrong to find that persons attending a public hearing on the proposed bylaw had been prevented from addressing it.

The lawyer also disputed the justice's finding that there was an uncertainty about the bylaw and that the municipality had an obligation to explain it before it became legally valid.

Bagpipes Cuddled

WINNIPEG (CP)—In below-zero weather the kilted piper worries about the wheeze, not his knees.

Two pipers who performed at a Robert Burns dinner Tuesday arrived with the pipes cuddled in baby blanket and towel and warmed by a hot water bottle.

"The bagpipes are delicate instruments," said Pipe Major John J. Reay. "They crack easily in the cold."

The bare knees?

"They just have to suffer," he said.

Universities

Alberta Grants Increase

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government will raise per capita student grants to the University of Alberta to $1,600 effective April 1, Premier Manning announced Wednesday.

He said the increase would amount to $235 for each student. The present grant is $1,365.

FEES DOWN

"This is a very substantial sum of money," the premier told a press conference. "We hope it will make a fee raise next term unnecessary, although this must be the decision of the board of governors of the university."

The increase will cost the government nearly $22,000,000 this year, based on the university's present enrolment of 13,500 students.

GENERAL REVENUE

Mr. Manning said the money would come from the province's general revenue fund.

He said student fees now paid only 16 per cent of the university's total operating expenses, which have risen to $2,087 for each student this year from $1,757 in the 1963-64 term.

The premier said, however, he saw no chance for a student fee reduction in future.

Child Killer Ruled Insane

HONOLULU (AP) — An air force captain's wife is insane and cannot stand trial in the bathtub drownings of her five small children, Honolulu circuit court has ruled. The woman, Mrs. Maggie Young, 38, is charged with the death of her son, James Frankie, 8. Police say she also drowned the other four youngsters.

Courtroom Parade

Adult Remanded for Slapping Boy

Twenty-four-old Guy Le Burel took direct action when an eight year-old boy threw a rock at him Jan. 9, central magistrate's court was told Wednesday.

Le Burel, 1006 Fenn, slapped the boy in the face when they were on the porch at the house next door.

He pleaded guilty to common assault and was remanded to Feb. 4 for a pre-sentence report.

BOY SLAPPED

Prosecutor Walter Anderson said the boy suffered swelling and an abrasion from the slap.

Magistrate William Ostler asked if Le Burel was married. He said he was not.

"You do not know much about children, then," Magistrate Ostler said.

He told Le Burel that he could have spoken to the boy's mother or called juvenile authorities instead of taking such direct action.

* * *

A finding of guilty was brought in by Magistrate Ostler against Kenneth Roy, who had been charged with assaulting Constable James Ramsey Nov. 27.

Roy, 2501 Wark, was remanded to Feb. 2 for a pre-sentence report.

Magistrate Ostler said the issue was one of credibility and he was not impressed by the evidence of the defence.

USED CRUTCH

"I am satified beyond any doubt that the police have given a truthful account of what occurred," Magistrate Ostler said.

The Crown claimed that Roy clubbed Constable Ramsay over the head with his crutches during a fracas outside the home of Ralph Roy.

HE SLIPPED

Roy, who had a broken leg, claimed that he had the crutches gripped in the normal manner. He had put out his right crutch to protect himself and had slipped.

Magistrate Ostler said he was satisfied that Roy could manipulate the crutches in the manner described by the police.

Roy's brothers, Ralph and Robert, will appear before Magistrate J. A. Byers next week on charges of assaulting peace officers.

They have already been convicted by Magistrate Ostler of creating a public disturbance.

* * *

Marie Martins slipped some household linen and clothing into a bag while shopping at Hudson's Bay Jan. 10 and made no effort to pay for them, court was told.

Mrs. Martins, 380 Stannard, pleaded guilty to shoplifting and was remanded to Feb. 2 for a pre-entence report. The goods were valued at $20.98.

* * *

David Blake fished in fresh water for the first time in three years Jan. 8, and did so without a licence.

Blake, 1216 Basil, pleaded guilty and was fined $10.

* * *

He got the licence number and the result was that Dave Frenchie, Cole Bay, pleaded guilty to failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Frenchie was fined $75.

* * *

Check, 260 King George, pleaded guilty to having an inadequate muffler, passing on a single solid line, speeding and a violation of a driver's licence restriction.

He was fined a total of $60.

Old 'Woolsack' Softened Up

LONDON (UPI) — The Woolsack, the official seat of the lord chancellor in the House of Lords, has been re-stuffed with wool from 14 Commonwealth countries, the government announced Wednesday.

Wool from Australia, Basutoland, Canada, Cyprus, The Falkland Islands, India, Kenya, New Zealand, Pakistan, Swaziland and the four countries of the United Kingdom — England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland, was included.

Rhodesia was not invited to contribute wool because, the spokesman said, the country does not produce wool in commercial quantities.

New Wines Ready

Six new B.C. wines will soon go on sale.

Cardin Tells Brewin:

'Bankruptcy Amendments Almost Ready for House'

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal government has just about completed its draft amendments to the bankruptcy act, Justice Minister Cardin told the Commons yesterday.

In reply to a question by New Democrat Andrew Brewin, Mr. Cardin said he hoped "those amendments will have parliamentary consideration as soon as possible."

Mr. Brewin described fraudulent bankruptcies in Canada as "20th century robbery on a grand scale" when he referred to a recent statement by Percy Houghton, manager of the Canadian Credit Men's Association, that liabilities of bankrupt estates could top $500,000,000 in 1965—more than double the 1964 figure.

UNDER PRESSURE

The federal government has been under heavy pressure from many business associations and the Quebec justice department to put more teeth into the bankruptcy act.

Several authorities have charged that organized crime is behind many of the bankruptcies.

MORE AUTHORITY

It is understood the federal government may extend its authority to investigate more closely suspected fraudulant bankruptcies.

Last fall the federal superintendent of bankruptcies announced he was going to hire investigators to work in Toronto and Montreal.

PURPOSE DEFEATED

It was learned yesterday however that because of the low salaries being offered, he has been unable to fill the two posts.

Outside the House Mr. Brewin charged that present bankruptcy laws "are now used not to protect the honest debtor, but to enable smart fellows to rook decent merchants.

'SERIOUS MATTER'

"It's a very serious matter, one of the worst examples of inadequate administration I know of," he added.

Also in the Commons yesterday, the federal government was urged to bring in legislation protecting investors.

George Hees, former trade and commerce minister, urged the government to introduce a bill requiring all companies in Canada trading on any stock exchange to give full disclosure of their operations.

He referred to proposed Ontario legislation controlling inside trading and takeover bids.

Davie Demands Law

OTTAWA (CP)—Davie Fulton (PC — Kamloops) Wednesday called for government legislation to make it clear that Indians treaty rights are "unfettered" by a Supreme Court decision which says their hunting rights are subject to the Migratory Birds Convention Act.

Northern Affairs Minister Laing declined to say what action the government might take but said the matter would normally be handled by the proposed Indian Claims Commission.

The Supreme Court, in a 6-to-1 decision announced Tuesday, imposed a $10 fine on Calvin George, a Chippewa Indian who shot two mallard ducks out of season, on the Kettle Point, Ont., reserve for food.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

In Bill

Noose Faces Test

OTTAWA (CP)—A third private member's bill that would abolish capital punishment was introduced in the Commons Wednesday by Robert Stanbury (L—York-Scarborough).

He proposed life imprisonment replace hanging as the penalty for murder and treason and the Parole Board Act be changed to ensure each convicted murderer is not released without cabinet approval.

SIMILAR BILLS

Similar bills were introduced Monday by James Byrne (L—Kootenay East) and Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth). A bill for the retention of capital punishment was submitted by Ralph Cowan (L — York-Humber).

One of the private members' bills or a combination of them is expected to be the vehicle for a debate and vote free of party lines.

FIRST ON LIST

Prime Minister Pearson has said the debate will be the first order of business once the 1965-66 spending estimates have been cleared. This debate begins Tuesday and there is no indication how long it will last.

House leaders of the five parties are expected to meet next week to discuss arrangements for the debate.

Rainmakers Face Umbrella?

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill that would result in government control over rainmaking machines was introduced in the Commons Wednesday by Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming).

Mr. Peters said that rainmaking machines may infringe on the rights of others and regulations must be established to protect these people. He said the legislation would allay fears among Northern Ontario farmers "who have been plagued by this problem for some time."

Rainmaking operations to protect against forest fires in northern Quebec and Ontario sparked a flurry of protests from farmers of the areas and the matter was raised several times in the Commons during the previous Parliament.

Dinner Amid Glitter

Lights blazed Wednesday night at Government House when Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes was host to senior chieftains of the province before the opening of the legislature.

A motif depicting B.C.'s centenary in icing sugar, and another, an "invitation" made with chocolate and sugar, were prepared by students and teachers at the B.C. Vocational School in Burnaby.

Drama Off Tofino

Eight Lives Saved In High-Sea Rescue

By BOB PETHICK

TOFINO — The lives of eight men were saved in a daring rescue when their ship foundered in 50-mile-an-hour winds off Cox Point, five miles south of here Wednesday.

With 170 tons of herring aboard the 100-foot seine boat Atlantis had been weather bound in Tofino for 24 hours and had come out to make a run for the Anglo-B.C. Packing Company's reduction plant at Steveston on the Fraser River.

Malcolm Robertson, production manager at the plant who had been in touch with the crew since the vessel sunk said it apparently started taking water in the engine room.

HEAVY SEAS

Fighting high winds and heavy seas the fish packer Ernest Todd laid alongside the crippled Atlantis once it was found she could not stay afloat. The eight-man crew was taken aboard.

A few minutes later the Atlantis, valued at $125,000 with a $15,00 seine net aboard, slowly disappeared beneath the waves. She lies in 15 fathoms of water near Lennard Island.

The crew, under command of Capt. Mirko Loncarich, was taken to Tofino. They are hoping to catch a plane to Vancouver today.

Production manager Robertson said there was insurance. He said the boat was capable of carrying 200 tons of herring. This is 30 tons less than she was carrying.

"We may never know exactly what happened," said Mr. Robertson.

But as far as the Coast Guard is concerned the episode isn't finished.

They are concerned that the 300-fathom seine net aboard the Atlantis will break loose and float to the surface, causing navigation hazard. The keeper at nearby Lennard Island Light has been alerted to keep an eye out for the net and the Tofino lifeboat is standing by in case the net should surface.

Burglar Plagues Oak Bay

Oak Bay's house burglar struck again Tuesday night when three homes were broken into. But nothing was stolen.

Oak Bay police believe the same person is responsible for the three break-ins and also for the rash that has spoiled the area recently.

Nanaimo

Film Site Ready

NANAIMO — Plans have now been completed for CBC's Reach for the Top to be filmed here Feb. 22, 23, 24, and 25.

NANAIMO MATCH

SEMI-FINAL

March 22 Victoria High and Shawnigan Lake will be on the screen.

March 29 and April 5 there will be the semi-finals of the Vancouver Island zone, and the final will be seen on April 12.

Winners of the zone competition will obtain for its school a $400 scholarship, and the team members will receive pen and pencil sets.

SCHOLARSHIP

In June the zone winner will compete in the grand championship for a $2,000 scholarship.

This popular quiz program is in its sixth year with Terry Garner as the host.

'She Mouthed Two Words'

Music Breaking Coma, Girl's Mother Claims

Familiar music played by her hospital bedside is helping bring a 13-year-old Victoria girl out of a coma, her mother says.

Both Suzanne Baker and her injured brother Christopher, 10, are showing improvement, reported Mrs. J. R. Baker, 3034 Wasldowne, on Wednesday.

Both children have been in a coma since a car crash in Oregon Dec. 22 as the family was driving to California.

Since the children were flown back to Victoria Mrs. Baker has spent four or five hours daily by their bedsides in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Christopher has opened his eyes, but until this week there was little sign of awakening from Suzanne.

On the weekend the family brought a record player to the hospital and began playing Suzanne's favorite music, mostly Maritime folk songs and country music by Don Meser.

"She mouthed two words in time with the music," Mrs. Baker said on Wednesday. "She knows me at times.

"The music has relaxed her and we think it's helping her."

Mrs. Baker, wife of Wing Commander J. R. Baker, also thanked the dozens of people who have offered help and good wishes.

Ill-Wind Blows For Oboe Owner

Death Accident

DUNCAN—A coroner's jury at Duncan Wednesday found that the death of Michael John Ferguson, 15, Jan. 15, 1966 was accidental with no blame attached to anyone.

The boy died as the result of a gunshot wound, in a suite above Ordano's Boathouse, Cowichan Bay at approximately 12:40 a.m.

Commercial

Personal Licences Required for Fishing

Under a new system of licensing, personal fishing licences will be required for anyone wishing to engage in commercial fishing in British Columbia.

The new system was announced by Fisheries Minister H. J. Robichaud Tuesday and will go into effect April 1.

$10 COST

In addition, all vessels engaged in any commercial fishing operation are to be registered at Pacific Area headquarters of the department in Vancouver. Annual registration cost will be $10 and commercial fishing licence plates will be issued.

Vessels taking part in salmon fishing will have to obtain an additional licence which will cost $5 in 1966.

The licence fee will not be based on the size of the vessel as proposed earlier.

Further steps to control fishing effort will be discussed by deputy fisheries minister Dr. A. W. H. Needler and other department officials during talks with representatives of British Columbia's fishing industry in February.

But Not Here

Search Flotilla Exists

A small-boat search and rescue squadron capable of joining in searches for missing boats exists on the B.C. coast, but apparently there are no members in Victoria.

The organization known as Searchmasters, is made up of small-boat owner's with radio telephones, towing gear and firefighting equipment. The yacht owners are volunteers and receive no pay.

Harold Snider, president of the Council of British Columbia Yacht Clubs, Searchmasters' parent body, said at present there are no searchmasters in Victoria.

The man in charge of Searchmasters is Jim Spilsbury of Spilsbury and Tindall Ltd., 120 East Cordova Street, Vancouver. The phone number there is 684-4131.

Higher Teacher Salaries, Canada Pension Plan Cause Boost

By BILL STAVDAL

Greater Victoria School Board Wednesday brought in a record 1966 budget of $12,973,645—more than 11 per cent higher than last year's.

Higher teacher salaries plus contributions to the new Canada Pension Plan will cause most of the increase.

What the new budget will cost the average home-owner won't be known until the provincial government announces what its grant will be.

The school board began the first of several meetings Wednesday night, trying to pare costs. But the final budget will remain substantially unaltered.

The 1966 draft budget is $1,321,402 higher than last year's $11,652,243. The increase represents 11.34 per cent over 1965.

The bill for teacher salaries is $8,102,507, up $860,745, or 11.8 per cent.

George Curran, chairman of the school board finance committee, pointed out that the board would hire an expected 58 more teachers next September.

In addition, 1,023 district teachers gained an average 5.4-per-cent salary increase for 1966.

The Canada Pension Plan will add an estimated $109,000 to the tax bill this year. This item alone caused a 47-per-cent jump in administration costs.

Almost every estimate is up, reflecting the school district's annual addition of about 1,000 new pupils.

Improvements in the quality of education account for a small part of the enlarged budget. Laboratory equipment expenditure will jump from $13,084 last year, to $27,765, in line with modernized science courses in the high schools.

The curriculum and special services branch, which supplies teaching aids, has had its allotment hiked from $8,320 to $14,320.

A new allocation of $7,150 has been made for special and remedial education.

The board will also spend more on computerized classroom timetables and add a $5,000 item for microfilming its records.

Both their budgets will be increased over 1965's for the same reasons Greater Victoria's is.

Choice of U.S. Promoters Protested

Centenary Chief Stalks Out

By A. H. MURPHY
City Hall Reporter

President W. C. Dodsworth resigned and walked out of a meeting of the Greater Victoria Canadian Centennial Society Wednesday, protesting a decision to bring in a U.S. firm to stage the district's 100th birthday party.

The Oak Bay councillor said in his letter of resignation, which he read to the City Hall meeting of the society, that he sensed massive public protest against the decision, and was forced to agree with it.

Coun. Dodsworth was not present at the Jan. 18 meeting at which a majority of members agreed to have the celebration handled by the John B. Rogers Producing Co. of Ohio.

In the normal course of events, the president would have signed the contract at Wednesday's meeting on behalf of the society.

However, before the meeting he had indicated that he did not intend to add his signature and make the document legal until he had been assured that the district intermunicipal committee approved.

The Rogers company offered two plans, both of which would cover consultations for the provincial centennial celebration this year and direction and staging of a 10-day historical pageant in 1967.

First plan would cost the district $59,36' and the second one, which would include more intensive consultation and direction in 1966, $63,460.

Local Show $39,000

An alternative plan to the Rogers presentation was presented on Jan. 18 by Bastion Theatre. The local group outlined a proposal for a big outdoor pageant coupled with an indoor entertainment, the whole budgeted at about $39,000.

Following the meeting Wednesday, Coun. Dodsworth said briefly: "I think our local people could and should put on this show."

Prior to the surprise resignation, members of the society did some soul-searching about a sure source of funds for any celebration, outside or local.

It was recalled that the Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee had recommended that its member municipalities agree to match the 40-cents per capita provincial grant with a similar one of their own.

Sharing Commitment

Dodnworth

"It's a fact of life, I'm afraid, that Saanich council is diametrically and unanimously opposed to bringing in an outside firm for this celebration.

"There's a feeling that there is only so much money available for a celebration, in view of the fact that centennial stadium is going to cost more than we thought, and that costs should be kept down for these fun and games, as they have been called," he said.

Decision of the committee on Jan. 18 was that services of the Rogers company be engaged as a consultant in 1966 and producer in 1967, with a recommendation that the Bastion Theatre be engaged to produce the indoor show.

However, not all municipalities have agreed, and the upshot of the Wednesday meeting was the decision to seek a firm commitment on this vital question before any further action was taken.

Professionalism

This decision was championed by Ald. Michael Griffin, who was chairman of the meeting at which it was made.

It was, he said, simply a matter of getting a professionally competent firm to do a good job.

There was no intention to exclude local people, the alderman said. On the contrary, their services would be solicited. Furthermore, there was the angle of returns. He was sure that the city's retailers would want a share in the commercial side of the celebration, and Rogers was providing this.

Ald. Griffin flayed the people who resented the hiring of three Americans as directors and business manager.

"We are eager enough to see American dollars come into our community. In fact, our whole tourist business is based on this. But when some people see a few dollars going in the other direction, they think it a sin," he said.

Gunner Recalls McBride

A retired Sooke logger remembers the opening of the Legislature 51 years ago. E. A. (Tod) McLennan was one of the gunners who fired the 15-gun salute.

Mr. McLennan was with the 5th Regiment, Canadian Garrison Artillery, a forerunner of the regiment whose battery will fire today's salute.

★ ★ ★

"It was a nice day," Mr. McLennan said Wednesday, recalling the sunshine of that day long ago.

In the photo the old post office, the Belmont building, the Union Club and the tower of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church are clearly recognizable.

"That was a good winter, 1914-1915," Mr. McLennan said. "The following year the big snowfall came."

Sir Richard McBride was premier and Sir Frank Barnard was lieutenant-governor that opening day, he said.

"General Currie was the commanding officer of our militia garrison," he said, "but by then he had left for overseas with the first contingent."

Mr. McLennan himself went overseas later with the Second Canadian Mounted Rifles.

The present officer commanding Victoria's artillery battery, Major T. G. Dalzell, said Wednesday he would have four gun detachments at the Causeway to fire the 15-gun salute for today's opening of the Legislature.

Capt. A. E. Sherwin, who is in charge of today's gunners, said he believed the predecessors of his regiment first fired the salute at the opening of the Legislature on July 27, 1878. The unit is now called the 5 (BC) Field Battery, RCA.

★ ★ ★

Major Dalzell said the gunners would use low-sound ammunition today. "It's easier on windows and globe street lights," he said.

Reporters Ordered Out

Dutch Treat Ahead On Court Expenses

The city solicitor, T. P. O'Grady, was ordered Wednesday to prepare a draft agreement which will set out the share each of the municipalities of Greater Victoria will pay toward the cost of the central magistrate's court in Centennial Square.

The decision was reached at the second of two closed-door meetings of representatives from Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

The draft agreement will be submitted to councils of each of the four municipalities for approval.

Reporters were asked to leave another meeting at City Hall Wednesday at which Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich conferred with city aldermen and Mayor Toone on the Victoria-Saanich Elk-Beaver Lake park agreement now in preparation.

Mayor Toone, who chaired the meeting said the talks were purely exploratory. Following the gathering he said that efforts to "create and improve the recreation area at Elk Lake" would be continued and that further discussions would be required.

Under the terms of a Saanich proposal for joint administration of the area Victoria will be required to dedicate the land as a park.

Saanich will undertake to spend the equivalent of half a mill on the tax rate ($580,000) over a period of 10 years, and plans for the development of the park will be approved by a joint committee of representatives from both municipalities.

'Army' Ready

Mothers March Monday

An army of 2,700 marching mothers will call on Greater Victoria homes and businesses from 4 to 7 p.m. Monday in a one-night blitz for funds for the Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C., Vancouver Island branch.

Canvassers are still needed in the areas of Christie Point, Central Junior High School, the Del Monte-Claremont-Haliburton district of Elk Lake, Royal Athletic Park, Victoria High School, Oak Bay Avenue and Bank Street. Volunteers may apply by phone at 388-5196.

The foundation finances programs in vocational training, speech and hearing, medical and social rehabilitation for persons who are physically handicapped.

Prints on Show

Modern and old prints by European masters will receive a one-day showing today at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. Show will be open between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. and 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

Fee Finish Funny

The great fee fight at the University of Victoria ended in comedy Wednesday.

Gordon Pollard, the student who announced he would face expulsion rather than knuckle under to the administration's ultimatum to pay up by 4 p.m., had his $56 fee increase paid anonymously.

Bursar Robert McQueen told a surprised Mr. Pollard there was nothing he could do about it.

HE'S AMUSED

Both chagrined and amused, the fourth-year arts student said:

"I appreciate the gesture, but it's put me in a most embarrassing position."

All but a dozen of the university's 2,980 students were fully paid up by 4 p.m. Wednesday. An administration spokesman said nearly all the dozen are either students in financial trouble or Christmas drop-outs who haven't bothered to tell the registrar.

ISSUE'S CORE

Heart of the issue was a $56 fee increase announced last year. In the fall the student council spearheaded a campaign for withholding of the $56 until mid-March, in an effort to prevent further increases.

Later the council changed its mind and advised students to pay the $56 today, a gesture timed to coincide with opening of the Legislature.

COMPROMISED

The administration also compromised and waived a portion of its late fee fine. But the university announced this week that anyone who wasn't paid up by 4 p.m. Wednesday would face expulsion.

"The whole thing has degenerated into a Barnum and Bailey affair," Mr. Pollard said Wednesday.

TV Stolen

Police said entry was gained through an unlocked door.

Planning Costs Up

Victoria will be required to contribute $11,700, an increase of $150 from last year, to the costs of the Capital Region Planning Board.

Assessments are made on a population basis. Saanich will be asked for $10,440; Oak Bay for $3,630; Esquimalt, $2,580; Central Saanich, $630; Sidney, $390, and North Saanich, $600.

Pianist Accepts Academy Offer

By WILLIAM THOMAS

Pianist Dwight Peltzer has accepted an invitation to join the teaching staff of the Philadelphia Academy of Music as assistant to Gary Graffman.

Mr. Peltzer is presently teaching piano at the Victoria School of Music. He will take up his new post in September.

He will also offer a lecture recital at Temple University, Philadelphia.

His tour program will include late Schubert, Mozart and some modern piano works.

Mr. Peltzer specializes in modern works and will offer courses at the Philadelphia Academy in 20th-century music.

He will also spend a day and a half in Vancouver and possibly a few days in the Cariboo.

MICRO SAFETY AND

All over the world groups gather on the night of Robert Burns' birthday and Victoria was no exception. The Burns Club members and friends gathered at Holyrood House on Tuesday evening to honor the memory of the Scottish bard. Following the Selkirk Grace a typical Scottish dinner, Scotch broth, mauchlin salad, The Haggis, roast Bubbly Jock, baked tatties, mashed neeps, green peas, Scottish delight, ait cakes and kebbuck were served. Then there was a program of songs, recitations and Highland dancing. Club piper, Fred Allnutt, piped in the haggis borne by Prof. K. W. Gordon, Rev. H. H. McAllister gave the address to The Haggis and Alderman Robert Baird gave the Immortal Memory. Pictured from left to right, Alderman and Mrs. Robert Baird, Mr. and Mrs. A. ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Should I be worried about our 15-year-old daughter? Cathy is a nice girl, no beauty, but wholesome-looking and with a nice figure. She is a good student, a better than average musician, and she loves to read.

Cathy will not wear make-up, not even lipstick. Her skin is fair and she looks awfully pale at times. I have told her a little make-up would improve her looks but she's not interested.

Cathy has never been asked out by a boy and unless she is play-acting she couldn't care less. I guess what worries me is that my daughter has no S.A. (sex appeal).

My friends say I should push her more and not let her retreat into a shell. They also feel I should enroll Cathy in a charm school. My husband says we should leave her alone and be happy she is not out getting pregnant like some girls her age.

What is your advice?—MOTHER OF A SHRINKING VIOLET

—Dear Mother: I say you should leave her alone and be happy she is not out getting pregnant like some girls her age.

★ ★ ★

Dear Ann Landers: Who do you think you are anyway? You set yourself up as Miss Know-it-All and half your answers are so out of date they sound like part of the Dead Sea Scrolls. I read your opinion on sending out wedding announcements two days after I had sent out 200 and I'm furious with you.

You are wrong about a wedding announcement being a pitch for a gift. We could not afford a large wedding but we did want to share our good news with our closest friends.

You owe it to all brides who send out announcements to change your advice. I have checked two etiquette books and they both say a wedding announcement does NOT call for a gift.—NO FRIEND OF YOURS

Dear No Friend: The person who wrote asked me how I felt about wedding announcements. I said: "Since you are asking me how I feel I will tell you. In my opinion a wedding announcement is a naked pitch for a gift."

This was a personal opinion and I so described it. Furthermore, I feel the same way about birth announcements, graduation announcements—the whole pestiferous announcement syndrome.

People who want to go by the etiquette books should please go look in the etiquette books and not ask me what I think.

Dear Ann Landers: My brother and I were discussing liquor at dinner tonight with mom and dad. I told them I had read in your column that it is not good to insist that teen-agers not touch a drop because such prohibition may decide them to go hog wild when they get to be 21. Your advice, as I remember it, was to teach teen teens to drink in moderation.

Dad says I am mistaken and that you would not print anything like that. Please say you did, Ann. We have a bet riding on you answer.—JACK

Dear Jack: Pay up, Bub. More people go hog wild because they started drinking "in moderation" than because they didn't touch a drop when they were young.

Alcoholism has reached epidemic proportions in this country and one of the reasons is that people are drinking earlier (and more) than they used to. The best protection against alcoholism is to drink something else instead.

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

No matter how often you read about someone burning houses and sometimes themselves by smoking in bed you hardly ever associate yourself with the disaster. At least I don't.

But recently I came a little too close for comfort to this sort of thing.

It happened on a trip to California a short time ago.

Grace Long of the B.C. Ferries and I were travelling south together and stopped in Seattle a day en route. So that we would be close to the airport for the early morning take-off, we stayed at the Hyatt House Hotel just a stone's throw away.

A little after 2 a.m. I was awakened by a terrific pounding on my door. Still half asleep, I opened the door to a hotel clerk armed with a fire extinguisher ready to shoot. "It's not in here" he said and with that was gone down the hall.

It took a few seconds for me to really waken to the fact that there must be a fire nearby.

Opening the door into Grace's room (I could hear she was up). I asked what was happening. "I don't know—but I heard a terrific crash in the room on the other side of mine a few minutes ago," she said.

Naturally we were curious. We opened the door into the hall to see a man being dragged out of a room and being propped up against the wall.

Then the activity really started and Grace and I had a time keeping up with the goings on in the hall and outside on the patio.

First came the mattress out the glass door to the patio and then the fire engine arrived. The mattress, even though it must have been sprayed with extinguisher, burst into flames but was quickly doused by the fire hoses from the truck.

There wasn't much sleep for the rest of that night and I was thankful we were on the ground floor.

Wash Basin $181.50

While we were in Hollywood for the B.C. Game dinner put on by the B.C. Ferries, Grace and I did a fair amount of window shopping.

There was the day we went shopping for my telephone shower. If you don't know what kind of a shower that is (and there probably is another name), it is the kind that Mrs. Ross had installed in Government House when it was rebuilt after the fire.

We had been told that the hardware store where we wanted to go was a very short mile. For the first time in my life I've heard an American minimize something. We must have pounded that pavement for at least 40 long blocks.

But we had a heyday in the hardware store. The bathroom fixtures were enough to shake you and I certainly believe this business about bathrooms being very important rooms in the States right now.

One particular line impressed us. It was of French porcelain with roses, cornflowers, etc., painted on. A wash basin in this pretty pattern was priced at $181.50—the box to hold facial tissue was $33 and a match box at $4.95 was about the most inexpensive item.

We browsed here until the doors closed and left in a little dazed condition. However, when your limit is $25 shopping items to bring back I had a good part of my quota tied up in the telephone shower.

Desert Riders

I was lucky in meeting Nina Roy on my first trip to Palm Springs.

Nina is quite a person. She nurses down south in the winter and mans the information bureau at Lake Louise hotel in the summer. Nina worked with the Brewsters before going to the hotel and became the first licensed woman trail guide in Canada.

Nina has kept up with her riding and through this I had a most pleasant morning out on the desert. She took me as her guest to the Desert Riders (the oldest riding club in Palm Springs) weekly morning breakfast.

It was fun. After breakfast—scrambled eggs, sausage, hash brown and pancakes—they had themselves a ball singing to the guitar played by the chap who did the catering.

These Desert Riders, like many of their fellow countrymen, don't stand on any ceremony. Of course the talk was horsey—Texas Walkers, Texas this and that, which didn't mean anything to me. We must have different names for them up here.

After the breakfast, a rather charming person came up to me and said, "If you're from Victoria, maybe you know the Homers. Please say hello to Joan when you get back. I'm Katie Schiller from Wyoming and I'm a good friend of her mother." Then as she walked away, she called over her shoulder "My husband used to know Sally Benning very well."

New Home in B.C.

Another interesting couple I met were Slim and Henrietta Barnard. They do the TV show, The Happy Wanderer for the Ford Motor Company. Don't think the program comes up here but is interesting. I believe, Ron Worley in his zeal for promoting B.C., had either been on their show or was going to be.

The Barnards are terribly keen about the place they bought on Cortez Island last fall and are looking forward to a visit there come summer.

Fancy Stuff

There was some pretty fancy stuff in the Palm Spring shops. Bright orange, bright green and bright flamingo pink were the main colors. Shoes, also pretty fancy, followed these colors, although there were plenty of other shades, too. Bathing caps were glamorous with shirred tulle at $7.50.

Thanks to Nina I did a few other touristy things, like visiting date farms—at one place I watched a 15-minute film on the romance and sex life of a date. And now I know all about dates.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Higgins cut their wedding cake at the reception held at the Uplands Golf Club following their marriage in St. Aidan's Church. Mrs. Higgins is the former Carole Coxworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Coxworth, 2608 Dunlevy, and her groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Higgins of Parksville. The young couple are living in Nanaimo. —(Chevrons)

Blue and Yellow Theme For Pensioners' Lunch

GANGES, B.C. — Flower arrangements in blue and yellow, and lighted tapers, on tables in St. George's Hall, made an attractive setting for the annual luncheon of Old Age Pensioners Organization, Branch 32.

Covers were laid for 115 and seated at the head table with the president, Mr. Fred Goddard, were: secretary, Mrs. Elsie Thacker, Archdeacon and Mrs. G. H. Holmes, Ven. Dr. R. B. Horsfield and Mrs. Horsefield, were special guests, Mrs. Lillian Browne of White Rock, Provincial Secretary OAPO; Mrs. Phillis Johnson, Milne's Landing, Provincial Steward for the Islands; Mr. C. Edwards, Sidney Branch; Rev. E. W. and Mrs. MacQuarrie.

Following luncheon presentations were made to Mrs. B. L. Krebs, Mrs. Stanley Kitchener, Mrs. Van Buskirk and Mrs. Joan Hayward in appreciation of their untiring efforts during the year as members of the refreshment committee. An excellent full-course turkey dinner, prepared by this committee, was served with the assistance of members.

On arrival, each lady guest was presented with a yellow chrysanthemum boutonniere by young Janet Wood. One lucky recipient, Mrs. J. R. Geer, being the winner of a one-year subscription to "Driftwood," local weekly newspaper, courtesy of the publisher. Mrs. Nels Westin was at the door.

Interesting films were later shown by Archdeacon Holmes. Next meeting will be held on Feb. 17.

Anglican Women Asked To Assist Boys' Home

Mrs. W. R. Osler reported the purchase of a house on Pembroke Street, to be known as "St. Chad's Home for Boys," when the diocesan board of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church met in the parish hall of St. Matthias' Church. She appealed for furnishings and announced that a couple is needed to take over supervision of the home. An "open house" may be held later.

There were 175 members present at the meeting which was preceded by a service of Holy Communion in the church. This was conducted by Canon J. Rogers, assisted by Rev. A. W. R. Ashley.

Mrs. F. A. Goodwin presided at the meeting. Four new life members were welcomed. They are Mrs. R. Howard, Duncan; Mrs. D. Garnham, St. John's, Victoria; Mrs. A. Owen and Mrs. G. Stokes, St. Matthias', Victoria.

It was decided that the memorial for Miss A. Wollaston would take the form of a perpetual light for the chancel of St. David's-by-the-Sea Church. Miss Wollaston was one of the early members of the church and a tireless worker for the church furnishings group.

Treasurer Miss Dora Brown reported two months' receipts of $15,961.39 and disbursements of $12,279.34. The endowment fund stands at $469.85, care of the elderly fund at $6,981.96, and legacy fund at $18,023.06.

Mrs. C. Edgecombe announced that the annual meeting of the Caroline Macklem Home would be held on Friday and that one of the residents had presented the home with an electric organ for the chapel. This would shortly be dedicated.

It was voted to join the Victoria Council of Women, Welfare Council, Anglican Theological Guild and John Howard Society.

Educational secretary Mrs. Neville Life and Rev. Gordon Walker discussed the new study curriculum. A question period followed. They reported that a rally for young people, 16 and over, would be held on Feb. 7 from 7:45 to 9:45 p.m.

On a motion from extra cents secretary Mrs. C. T. Skinner, it was agreed to donate $200 for insulation and heating of the Good Shepherd Mission.

Dorcas secretary Mrs. J. A. Andrews reported on packages sent to Caledonia and asked for socks, mittens and toques. It was voted to send $150 from Dorcas funds to the hospital at Pangritung.

Social service secretary Mrs. H. N. Street appealed for two crib mattresses and books for the library of the Wilkinson Road correctional institute. Reports were also made by Miss D. Lucas, Comox deanery, and Mrs. T. Hughes, prayer partner. The latter noted that the World Day of Prayer would be observed by the Victoria Council of Churches on Feb. 25.

Mrs. Anne Welton seconded all reports and Mrs. H. R. McDonald thanked Canon Rogers, Rev. Ashley and Rev. Walker for their assistance.

After 'Internal' Troubles

Grain Shipping Crisis Ending

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the newly-formed Committee on West Coast Grain Shipments said Wednesday he expects shipments to improve soon, if the weather improves.

He described them as "internal," and said:

NO STATEMENTS

"The committee will be issuing no public statements."

Spokesman for the West Coast Grain Elevators referred queries to Mr. Riddell, saying it had been agreed he would make all public statements.

Mr. Riddell, who retired recently as assistant chief commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board, was named chairman of the committee Wednesday by Finance Minister Sharp in Ottawa.

'BREAKTHROUGH'

Mr. Sharp said the committee is made up of representatives of the two major railways, the Wheat Board and the grain terminal companies.

Mr. Riddell said in an interview that the grain elevators "are operating to capacity in terms of the cars available."

He said there has been "some difficulty getting cars to the West Coast" because of severely cold weather on the Prairies.

Riddell

Mr. Riddell said that with any kind of luck, there should be a "breakthrough in the situation soon."

MORE MEETINGS

The committee, he said, will continue to hold meetings to discuss problems and difficulties of shipping the grain.

Other than the weather, the problems are "all internal," he said.

The announcement of Mr. Riddell's appointment was made after a meeting Tuesday between representatives of the grain elevators, the railway companies, the wheat board, and wheat commissioner W. C. McNamara.

SHORT MEETING

It lasted less than an hour, and at the end of it Mr. McNamara flew back to Winnipeg without comment.

Others who attended the conference refused to comment, saying any statement would have to come from Mr. McNamara.

Opportunities Long, But—

Mining Town Awful Short

By CARL LEWIS

CHIBOUGAMAU, Que. (CP) This boom town, a hub of mining operations, is short on women and long on opportunity.

Chibougamau, situated 500 miles north of Montreal, owes its existence to copper and gold deposits.

Despite its remote location, the community lives up to its name — which is pronounced Shy-boo-ga-moh and means, in Cree Indian, "meeting place." It is the northern terminus for a Canadian National Railways line and two bus lines and also is linked with points to the south by an airline.

ACTIVITY

It is also the centre of a flurry of activity and employment created by the mines which surround it.

Nearby is Lake Dore, known as the valley of copper. Here are located the Merrill Island Mining Co.; the Patino Mining Corp. with its Copper - Rand mine; Jaculet; Portage and Quebec-Chibougamau with its goldfields operations.

GOLD MINE

Also in the area are Campbell-Chibougamau, with its Cedar Bay and Henderson mines, and Norbeau Quebec, a gold producer north of town.

All the major copper producers work three shifts a day, seven days a week. Each produces more than 2,000 tons of ore a day and employment underground runs to more than 500 men at each mine.

NO UNEMPLOYMENT

Unemployment is unknown in Chibougamau and all who wish to work are made welcome. An inexperienced man is paid $2.15 an hour.

If he shows ability, each mine has a training program. The course teaches the miner to look after himself. He is taught safety, scaling, drilling, rock bolting and blasting and other related subjects. After the course the basic rate is $2.39 an hour with incentive bonuses added which, if he proves able, can double the basic rate.

NO WOMEN

Harry Pyke, general superintendent of the Patino group, said:

"Naturally we have an overabundance of single men up here. Somehow the business girls down south never think of this area for progress; possibly never heard of it.

FOUR AT A TIME

"But we use all kinds of business-trained staff, clerical, stenographic, and secretarial, accounting, business machines, filers and so forth. The best way for girls to come here would be for, say, four of them to come together and take an apartment. They all would be employed in short order."

Despite its frontier aspects, the town, like its mining product, is being refined.

Chibougamau, with a population of 9,000, recently opened a $250,000 city hall and civic centre. Germain M. Julien, the town's manager and secretary-treasurer, predicted that the community would number 20,000 persons within 10 years.

Older residents say that 15 years ago Chibougamau was nothing but moose pasture. It's a far cry from that today.

MODERN

Streets now are wide and paved and lined by modern homes. The Anglican, Roman Catholic and United churches all have built churches. There are schools, a library, recreational areas and a general hospital.

But Chibougamau is not resting on its laurels. A new mining site, that of Albanel Minerals Ltd., with 42,000,000 tons of iron ore to be mined in an open pit, is opening up.

PEOPLE WANTED

Manager Julien, commenting on the present and planned operations, asked: "Do you realize what this means? We'll need people, a lot of people, to help us."

Resettlement For Islanders

AUCKLAND (AP)—About half the people of the Tokelau Islands have agreed to be resettled in New Zealand, Minister of Island Territories Ralph Hanan said Wednesday. He said the movement of islanders to New Zealand's north islands will be made over two years. The islands are about 2,000 miles north of New Zealand and consist of three atolls. They no longer can support the population of 1,835.

Couple Say Privacy Invaded

Bedroom Bugged to Water Hens

Carl Hamberger, 36, and his wife, Mae, now residents of Barrington, R.I., seek $125,000 damages in an invasion-of-privacy suit against Clifford C. Eastman.

Hamberger told a jury Wednesday he and his wife used to discuss private or business matters only in the bedroom because they did not want their children to hear them.

The couple says an electronic device for transmitting and recording sounds was concealed in the bedroom of a home they rented from Eastman in Gilford, N.H., from October, 1961, to October, 1962.

Eastman says he had an electronic device in the cellar of the house to monitor a water pump to be sure there was a constant supply of water for his 11,000 chickens.

The jury was told an electronic device was found in a hot-air register two feet from the head of the couple's bed.

Dying Girl Pours Out Moving Sentiments

An 11-year-old Brentwood girl, who wrote of the heartbreak of war with an understanding beyond her years, will receive a posthumous award for her essay tonight.

Maureen Dorran died Dec. 28 of cancer, just two weeks after being notified she was a contest winner.

The contest was put on by the South Vancouver Island zone of the Royal Canadian Legion. Four other successful prizes at 8 p.m. today in the Legion's Britannia Branch from zone commander S. J. Mayzes.

★ ★ ★

First prize in the senior section of the Remembrance Day essay contest will go to Marian Cyril of Malvern House School, with second prize going to William Smith of Mount View High.

★ ★ ★

"She was looking forward to the presentation of the awards," Thomas Clements, chairman of the contest committee, said Wednesday. "Her last outing was to the Remembrance Day ceremonies at the Sidney Cenotaph."

Here is Maureen Dorran's essay, entitled What Remembrance Day Means to Me:

"The picture was one of an elderly woman dressed in black. In her hand she held a Rosary and she was kneeling in prayer at the foot of a grave, which was one of many hundreds, arranged in neat, white, orderly rows.

"I was looking through a reference book for some information about Remembrance Day when I came across the picture. The caption at the side of the picture told me that it was a Dutch cemetery called Bergen-op-Zoom. This lady was one of many people who flock to the cemetery on Remembrance Day to pay tribute to many brave Canadian soldiers who gave their lives for the freedom of Holland.

"On Remembrance Day, the men who fought and died in the Allied armies in both of the wars are especially remembered. Their families, friends and comrades will march to the Cenotaph where the names of the dead are inscribed. They will leave flowers, and many will cry in the silence and feel very sad when they think of their husbands, or brothers, or fathers who were killed.

"The only things I know about war are what I have heard from my parents or read in books, but I know that it is a terrible thing. On Remembrance Day I will go to my church and I will remember all the things that I have been taught about these brave men. My life would have been different if they had not gone to war. Perhaps my country would not have been allowed to not be free. Perhaps my parents and teachers would teach me the right things. Perhaps I would not have been able to attend my church.

"In my prayers I will remember these men and also the Canadians who, even today, are keeping the peace in Germany and Cyprus, and other parts of the world. Perhaps when I am older I can be of service to my country and help to keep the peace. Whilst I am younger I can still help my country in small ways. I can help to be kind to children from other countries and races. I can also learn to show tolerance if these children are of different color or have a different way of life from mine.

★ ★ ★

"If we each try to do our own part in keeping peace in the world, not only on Remembrance Day, but every day of the year, we, like the lady at Bergen-op-Zoom, will show that we too have not forgotten."

Suspect Released

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A murder suspect held in connection with the stabbing death of Mrs. Eileen Hall, 74, has been released by RCMP.

A police spokesman said the suspect was released Tuesday night after spending several hours in custody.

The body of Mrs. Hall was found Monday in the rear of her jewelry store. The dead woman had a discolored eye and a neck wound which could have been caused by a sharp instrument.

Lost Rings Worth $900

A purse containing three rings worth more than $900 and $70 cash was lost by a Vancouver woman in a city hotel Monday.

Mrs. W. B. Johnson told police she left the purse in the hotel lobby while she went to see what was delaying her husband in parking their car.

B.C. Foresters On Board

D. R. Glew and E. Knight, both foresters in the B.C. Forest Service, were appointed Wednesday as the government's two representatives on the five-man board of examiners.

Panda to Russia for Love No No Not Nyet Chi-Chi

LONDON — British zoo officials will try again soon to arrange a match between London's lonely female giant panda, Chi-Chi, and a male panda in Moscow.

The Moscow zoo's An-An is one of the few male giant pandas behind bars. Most are in China, but Peking has shown no interest in Chi-Chi's problems.

Plans were made in 1964 for Chi-Chi and An-An to mate. Then An-An turned up his nose and the Russians admitted: "The manliness of our panda seems to be in some doubt."

With that doubt apparently now dispelled, Moscow has invited a London zoo man to discuss mating plans once more.

SALISBURY, Rhodesia—Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith has become a much-travelled "corpse." News organizations in the city were plagued by telephone calls all of which started "is it true that . . .?" Mr. Smith had been shot? Mr. Smith was in Cape Town?" Mr. Smith was in Malawi? In fact Mr. Smith spent the day quietly on his farm at Selukwe.

PEORIA, Ill. — Healthy for the first 114 years of his life, Thomas Kidde has applied for medical care. Social security officers said Kidde's application lists his birth date as Aug. 31, 1851, in Mobile, Ala. Born in slavery, he was the youngest of 16 children and fathered 16 by his five wives.

House Opens Today In Pomp, Pageantry

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

The golden mace, symbol of legislative authority, will be removed from a vault in the Legislative Buildings this morning and polished up in readiness for the afternoon opening of the third session of the 27th Legislative Assembly.

This job is left until the last minute because government officials are always jittery about the handling of this 11-pound, gold-plated, sterling silver staff worth between $3,000 and $4,000.

The mace will be drawn from a vault in the deputy provincial secretary's office by Denzil Ashby, who is entering his 10th session as sergeant-at-arms.

It is handled by no one but the sergeant-at-arms or his deputies.

STRICT SECURITY

But special security measures will also be taken during the session to ensure protection of the mace, which is the symbol of the authority of the Crown, the legislature and the Speaker of the House.

The mace, plated with 24-karat gold, bears the B.C. coat-of-arms, the Canadian coat-of-arms and scenes depicting B.C.'s forestry, mining, agriculture and fishing industries.

A CROWDED 'HOUSE'

Hundreds of politicians, dignitaries and civic leaders from all parts of the province will be here for the formal opening ceremony.

15-GUN SALUTE

A 15-gun salute will be fired from the Causeway as Mr. Pearkes' party nears the legislature. The lieutenant-governor will take the royal salute and inspect a guard of honor before entering the Legislative Buildings.

Premier Bennett will meet the lieutenant-governor at the entrance to the rotunda at 3 p.m. and the party will proceed to the executive chamber.

BENNETT SETTLES IN

The Premier will then take his place in the House.

Speaker William Murray will enter, preceded by the sergeant-at-arms carrying the mace on his right shoulder and followed by the clerk, law clerk and clerk assistant.

The door will then be closed and barred, until after prayers are said.

—Ian McKain

William Oberg prepares corridor sign

The lieutenant-governor and his procession will enter the House, and Mr. Pearkes will then read the Speech from the Throne, outlining the government's accomplishments and its plans for the 1966-67 fiscal year which starts April 1.

Mr. Pearkes will then retire from the House.

The government will introduce its first bill and give it first reading. Then Premier Bennett will move that the lieutenant-governor's speech be taken into consideration at the next sitting of the House.

This motion will be seconded by Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

Then, with the tabling of probably more than a dozen reports from the various cabinet ministers, the House will rise for the day and MLAs from the government and two opposition parties will get down to the serious business of politics.

Machinery Museum Gets Grant

A $25,000 grant was approved by the provincial cabinet Wednesday toward the cost of building a B.C. farm machinery museum adjacent to Fort Langley.

It will be an answer to the prayers of Alex Hope of Langley, president of the B.C. Farm Machinery Museum Association, which has been trying for many years to find backing for a museum to house a collection of turn-of-the-century farm equipment.

Mr. Hope and two other members of the association appealed to the provincial cabinet Dec. 17 for a $25,000 grant to match the $10,000 they had already collected, along with an assurance of a $15,000 grant from the federal government.

FARM EQUIPMENT

The delegation said the collection of old-fashioned farm equipment was scattered around on several farms, exposed to the weather and deteriorating rapidly.

A cabinet order-in-council Wednesday authorized the $25,000 to be taken from the consolidated revenue fund.

Barbados Eyes Independence

BRIDGETOWN (AP)—The Barbados Senate approved a resolution calling for independence from Britain this year. The vote was 17 to 3.

The resolution was adopted earlier by the lower House of Assembley.

Tax Revolution Needed For Schools, Hospitals

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

A "total revolution" must be brought about in the financing of hospital care and education costs in British Columbia, says B.C. Liberal leader Ray Perrault.

Reached in Vancouver Wednesday during the second day of the five-man Liberal caucus, he said it was time for the federal and provincial governments to assume a heavier role in providing services for the people, leaving local property taxes to pay for services to property.

BOLSTER SERVICES

"We think that the emphasis certainly will have to be on improvement of services to people and opportunities to people," said Mr. Perrault.

"We think there has to be a total revolution in our approach to hospital care in B.C., and in the matter of education costs.

"For some time we have emphasized the need to reform the whole local tax structure, making local taxes applicable to services to property and services to people being borne by senior governments," he said.

Perrault

The Liberal leader said he realized the question of hospital financing was a major problem on Vancouver Island. The Grits will bring proposals into the House "relating to the entire operation of hospitals"—including capital and operating costs, he said.

He said there shoud also be more opportunities provided "in the area of education, vocational training and evening study for older people."

WELFARE

Liberal policies will also relate to senior citizens and "the critical problems which continue to exist in the areas of social welfare and child care—they are going to relate to the whole status of young people in B.C. today."

Details of the Liberal policy hammered out in the Vancouver caucus will be dealt with by the various members of the party as the session progresses, Mr. Perrault said.

Bill Scott, Lighthouse Philosopher Insists:

'I'm Far More Crank Than Communist'

By JERRY BOULTREE

Bill Scott's a devout coward—the sort of fellow who has throughout his lifetime been expendable, but has somehow survived.

"I'm a born runner — but I can't resist a spot of fun, like the other night with Tim Buck. I've got a lot of kid in me still. I like excitement," he said.

Bill Scott is the fellow who was heaved out of Tim (Communist Party of Canada) Buck's meeting in Holyrood House Saturday night.

Extols Red Ideas

He called the party leader a "fascist Communist" — and then the fun began.

At present he's writing a series of articles extolling the virtues of life in Red China under the present Communist regime.

Six of the articles have been written, and they'll be published in an English-language magazine put out in Hong Kong by "a fine old gentleman" who doesn't think Chairman Mao is all that bad.

Things Are Better

"But I'm not a Communist. Honestly, I'm not. I'm far more crank than Communist, and I think even the RCMP know that by now," Bill Scott laughs.

In fact, he laughs a great deal.

"I really don't care what people say about me. You see, I was conditions in China before the present regime took over. And I saw them again on my trip there last fall.

"I'm a humanist. I know their present conditions are a thousand times better than they were just after, and before the war," he explained.

Knows China Well

"To my simple mind it means that the present regime is best for them — and the facts are undeniable."

Bill Scott has known China and the Chinese for many years. As a young man in his early 20s (he's in his 70s now) he was sent by the British government to the China coast as an engineer to repair damaged lighthouses.

He lived in Shanghai, on and off, until after the Japanese occupation, and, when the Japanese weren't keeping him in prison, he plied his skills up and down the coast.

The main theme of the articles is that China has got to be reckoned with.

This is borne out by statistics he has wedged into practically every one of the series—such as the statement that there are 100,000,000 Chinese in colleges and schools and, within a few years, 10,000,000 of these will be top-flight professors, teachers, scientists.

Mr. Scott refers to this generally as the "education bomb."

Hydrogen Blast

"To my mind it's a deal more significant than the American hydrogen bomb," he commented.

Mr. Scott admitted quite freely that he had "had it up to here" with anti-American propaganda in China.

"I got so sick of it, I could have screamed. They're overdoing the anti-American bit, and I told them so. But then, the Americans themselves are so fogged by propaganda and TV commercials (really no more than propaganda favoring capitalism) that they've lost the ability to reason," he said.

Entertaining

"One's as bad as the other, I'll grant you that. But I think the Chinese form of propaganda is more entertaining," Mr. Scott said lightly.

"The point is this: The Chinese propaganda is not hate propaganda. It may look that way to an American, but then the Americans have withdrawn themselves entirely from the mainland Chinese, and really have no idea how or what they think.

"Chinese propaganda is brought about by fear. Not fear of the Americans so much as fear of regressing to what China was when it was run by capitalists."

Children Froze

"I saw hundreds of children freezing to death — bodies floating in the river — filth and squalor and degradation — and all of it in the name of capitalism."

"That was Shanghai before the war."

Now the Chinese know where they are going, they have direction and courage and determination — and a great desire to avoid the pitfalls that were their lot when they were controlled by the great free nations, he said.

Daffy Ducks B.C.-Bound

CALGARY (CP) — About 850 of Calgary's 4,000 daffy wintering ducks have been caught and shipped to the West Coast in freight compartments aboard passenger airliners, federal biologist Bill Thurlow said Wednesday.

Mr. Thurlow, biologist for the Canadian Wildlife Service, said he and his five-man crew expect to reduce the large flock by half. The transport program, started Sunday, will "continue until the end of the week."

The biologist said his orders are "to get the ducks out" of Calgary and to a normal wintering area, such as near Vancouver.

DANGER TO AIRCRAFT

With the ducks concentrating in the east-end industrial part of the city, they are considered a danger to aircraft using nearby glide paths at McCall field airport, said Mr. Thurlow.

Last year about $4,000 was spent feeding the ducks. "The cost of moving them is negligible compared with the cost of losing a DC-8 and possibly lives." There have been several aircraft accidents caused by ducks in the U.S., he said.

COULD GROW

Also, biologists fear the wintering duck population could grow to 50,000 birds in a few years. Fed by wildlife enthusiasts, they might become biologically dependent on man.

About 5,000 of the estimated 10,000 ducks that wintered here this year were scared southwardby explosive noisemakers set along the banks of the Bow River. But the die-hard ducks refused to budge.

Kept on Job

Given another deferment from retirement because his services are still needed is Reginald Clements, chief conciliation officer for labor relations branch of provincial department of labor. He was originally due to retire April 30, 1965, but cabinet Wednesday postponed his retirement period for three more months, beginning Feb. 1, 1966.

War Diamonds

TOKYO (UPI) — An estimated $18,000,000 worth of diamonds donated to the Japanese National Treasury during the Second World War will be auctioned off starting this fall.

The diamonds, donated by individuals to support the war, have been stored in an underground vault for more than 20 years.

Two ways. Kotex napkins are softer on the outside because of their unique covering. It's smoother, gentler, downier—but very strong. They're softer on the inside too, thanks to multiple layers of featherlight filler. Try them. They're softer. 4 proportioned sizes—Regular, Super, Slenderline, Maternity.

TV TALK

By JIM TAYLOR

Maybe it's because I'm a full-time sports writer and part-time TV writer, but NBC's coverage of the Bing Crosby golf tournament on the weekend infuriated me.

Part of the trouble was poor direction; the other part was a man named Ralph Kiner.

Now, it is up to the director to pick his shots and handle the timing so nothing is missed. But on Sunday afternoon, when Arnold Palmer was making his great charge at winner Don Massingale, they managed to miss showing Palmer's birdie putt on 16, and his birdie on 18 which broke a second-place tie.

And you know why they missed the last one? Because Ralph Kiner (better he should stay in baseball) was busily asking inane questions of Massingale.

Kiner is a rotten interviewer, and he speaks as though he knows it. Talking to Jack Nicklaus, he managed to avoid completely the wildest story of the day—Nicklaus, one of the golf's big three, taking a nine on one hole. Kiner said it was a seven.

Maybe some day television will smarten up and realize that good athletes don't necessarily make good announcers. The best announcer in the business is ABC's Chris Schenkel, but I don't expect him to shoot a 67.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

When a defender holds a sure trump winner, declarer has two options: leave him with the winner and go about his own business, or lead trumps and compel the defender to spend that winner. In the 1966 Team Trials at San Francisco, two declarers failed to exercise the right option.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	4 ♡	All Pass

Opening lead: Club three

After East has opened one club, a takeout double could put South on the road to the fine four spade contract — and did at some tables in the Team trials. But the immediate leap to four hearts is a reasonable gambit that could pay dividends in some circumstances. And even though it seems at first glance that declarer will lose one trick in each suit, the heart game can in fact be made against any defence.

Neverthless, four hearts needs careful planning on the automatic club lead. Declarer ruffs the second club, peels off three top hearts and finds the 4-2 division. What now?

On general principles, it could be correct to abandon trumps after the third round and go about establishing spades—essential if the losing diamond finesse is to be avoided. This plan would certainly be recommended if West—instead of East—held the trump winner, since it is important to get to the spades before West can lead a diamond. But the fact that East holds the master trump alters the situation. East should be compelled to take his trump trick now, since he cannot attack diamonds with advantage. After a fourth round of trumps, East can do no better than return a club, which declarer ruffs. South lays down the spade ace and when the king drops, he has no more problems. He sets up the long spades and provides a parking place for the losing diamond.

At two tables where declarer tackled spades after playing only three rounds of trumps, the contract evaporated. West won the second spade and returned a diamond —and declarer had no way to dodge the diamond loser.

$3,000 DOWN

This excellent business is for sale for the first time, at a very reasonable price. Located on a busy Plaza, it has a large built-in trade from employees from other stores. Business has increased by about $2000 per year for 5 years and is still improving. It nets around $7,000 to $8,000 a year. Store and equipment is as modern as tomorrow. Barbers investigate this now — its the buy of a lifetime at the full price of $12,500.00 with $3,000 down. Call John James, 382-2157 anytime.

A HOME TO BE LIVED IN

In this well planned home there's ample space for privacy — or togetherness. The three bedrooms are away from the living area; a den or guest bedroom is near the entrance, the kitchen bright and cheerful with a good eating area, has a family room several steps down that opens onto a patio. There is a bright daylight basement that can be further developed into a games room or more bedrooms. For the living room, dining room and hall you may select your wall-to-wall carpeting or if you prefer oak floors will be laid. See for yourself the convenience of this new home. Asking $23,500. Bell-Ringing an Exacting Art, And It's a Fascinating Job

Every Tuesday and Sunday for 30 years, E. W. Izard has climbed the 72 spiral steps in the bell tower of Christ Church Cathedral.

FASCINATES HIM

He is a master bell-ringer, in charge of the belfry at the cathedral, one of only five churches in Canada which regularly has its bells rung by hand.

On Tuesdays—practice days—and Sundays, he stands with seven other bell-ringers in a circle to practice the complex, fascinating art of ringing church bells.

Bell ringing has fascinated him for more than 60 years. He took it up in England in 1901.

He has trained a son, a daughter and five grandsons to ring bells, and there are five Izards among the cathedral's 11 bell-ringers.

There are seven tons of bells in the tower and they are considered "rung"—in the technical sense—when swung through the complete arc from mouth-up to mouthup position.

'CHIMING'

A sound may be obtained from a bell hanging mouth down, by moving it enough to get the clapper to tap the side, but this is known to ringers as "chiming."

Chiming does not extract the full sound of a bell but ringing does.

Tunes played on the huge bells are called changes, and can only be played if each of the eight ringers counts carefully and has full control of his bell.

Lack of rope-sight on the part of a ringer may lead to something as minute as a bell rung a fraction of a second off time, which will set the hearer's teeth on edge.

Or it may lead to a ringer being hoisted up in the air 25 feet by his rope, possibly to crack his skull on the ceiling.

A full peal of bells involves 5,040 changes—each ringer must pull his bell that number of times in a different order each time.

'UNIQUE'

It has been done only once at Christ Church Cathedral, in 1936, and took three hours. There were no mistakes. It would not have counted as a peal had there been any.

"The bells of course add something unique to the cathedral," says Dean Brian Whitlow.

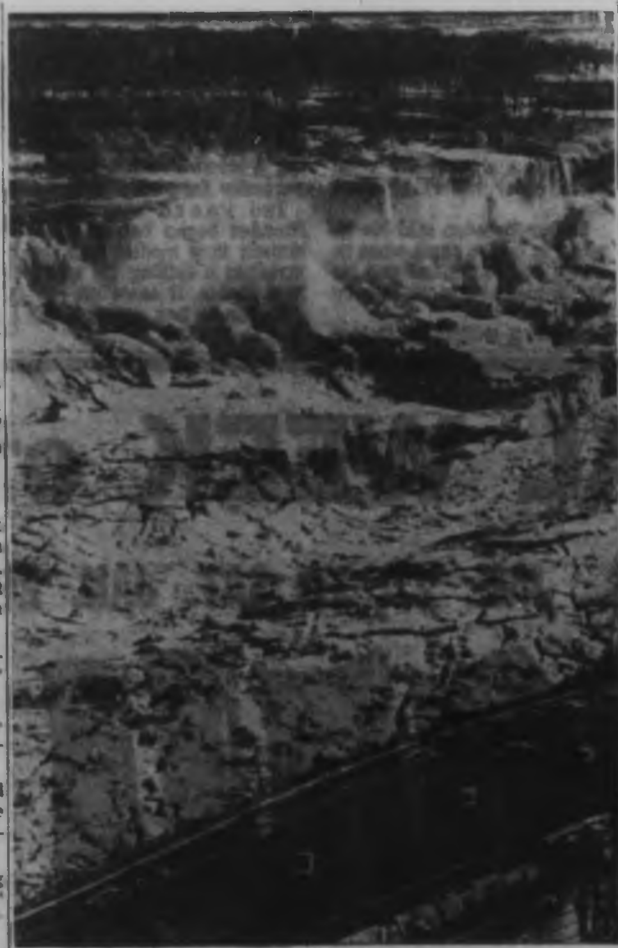
"There is a great deal of tradition attached to them, particularly around Christmastime.

"At the New Year, the old year is rung out with the change called the Nine Tailors, traditionally played for a death.

"Then the bells will be rung to welcome in the New Year."

Transit Cost May Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — A city finance study suggests a five-cent increase in subway and bus fares to 20 cents and a 10-cent-a-ride taxi tax. The study was made by a staff of the temporary commission on city finances and has been turned over to Mayor John V. Lindsay's task force on unification of transportation. The study, which favors a merger of various city transportation facilities, also suggests an increase in ferry fares to 15 cents from the present five cents.



Natural Ice Bridge

Poison Used, Says Doctor

TACOMA (AP) — A Tacoma neurologist testified in the assault trial of Dr. Robert E. Boehme Wednesday that in his opinion Boehme's pretty wife, Mary, had been poisoned by an injection the night of June 30 in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Dr. L. Stanley Durkin, hospital staff doctor, treated the woman after she was injured the night before in an accident at the Port Orchard Yacht Club. He was the second doctor to testify as the trial entered its third day.

Dr. Boehme, 45, Port Orchard physician, is charged with first degree assault and accused of entering the hospital the night of June 30 and injecting his wife with a massive dose of a toxic substance.

The prosecution cleared a major hurdle Tuesday when the court ruled that medical witnesses would be permitted to testify. The ruling by Superior Judge Hardyn B. Soule followed a long legal battle between the state and Frank A. Peters, Boehme's attorney, who protested the decision.

INJECTION

Dr. Durkin testified he left his 33-year-old patient in a vastly improved condition at 9 p.m. on June 30 but received a call a half-hour later saying she was dying.

He said he saw a spot of blood on her right hip, indicating she had been given a recent injection. The blood, he said, was not yet dry.

"It was obvious to me, now, that I was not dealing with a head injury, but my patient in some manner had been poisoned," he said.

"My patient had been assaulted not only once but at least twice and possibly more during my observation of her."

INTRAVENOUS

He said Mary Boehme, when he reached her, "was not breathing. She looked terminal. She was dying."

Dr. Durkin testified he feared that a bottle of fluid being fed intravenously to Mrs. Boehme also might have been "injected with this noxious poison."

He ordered the bottle removed, labeled and saved. He then called in several other specialists for consultation.

Ailing Herds Get Feed

The provincial and federal governments have agreed to buy $5,000 worth of clean feed for three Grand Forks farmers whose dairy herds had been contaminated by pesticide residue.

Agriculture Minister Frank Richter said the provincial government had tested the new feed free of charge to ensure that it was not contaminated.

NO PRODUCTION

The contaminated herds have been on the clean feed for several weeks, but it will be several more weeks before they can be returned to production of No. 1 fluid milk, said Mr. Richter.

In the meantime, the farmers are allowed to sell skim milk from their herds but must dispose of the cream, where the pesticide residue is concentrated.

With the free replacement, financial loss to the three farmers will be the difference between the price they would have received had their feed been free of pesticide.

LONDON — Mary Rusell, 60-year-old mother of five, and Ray Wood, a 25-year-old miner, each won £155,047 ($465,141) for five-shilling (15-cent) bets in a soccer pool.

Parish Priest Tips on Horses

LONDON (AP)—Rory is the most popular columnist in the parish magazine of St. Mary Magdalen Roman Catholic church in Brockley. He gives a weekly message — tips on horses.

Rev. Brendan Fox, 62-year-old parish priest, finally disclosed he was Rory.

The white haired pastor said the secret of his successful system was "an easy one—just a matter of knowing the right people."

"I know little about form and naturally would never have the time to spend working it all out."

In addition to printing selections in the magazine to help circulation, the Augustinian priest operates a de luxe tip service in aid of the parish building fund.

A five - shilling (75 cent) postal order will bring a hot tip.

Father Brendan said his interest in horses came when he was a boy in Ireland and his father took him to the Galway Plate.

"I put a shilling on Golden Fleect and it came up—at 20-to-1," he said. "Since becoming a priest I've had little opportunity for racegoing."

Two years ago, Father Brendan began betting again himself in a modest way, by investing a shilling (15 cents) in a double. It came up.

So far he has run the shilling to £7 ($21).

But Chef Refuses Royal Request

Meg Wants Her Cookbook Back

Her request went to Leo Groden, 52, former chef at Margaret's London home, Kensington Palace. He left the palace recently "for an easier job," explaining that he hadn't enough staff for the size of the household.

When Groden left he took with him the cookbook containing the menus of all the meals served at Kensington Palace last year. The palace wrote him that the Princess wants the book returned.

"I don't know what to do," the chef said. "All the menus are the result of my brains and skill. I have written back saying that I can't let her have the book because it is my livelihood."

Garden Notes

Celosia Returns

By M. V. CHESNUT

It is interesting, looking back over the years, to see how certain kinds of plants come from obscurity into garden popularity, and after enjoying a brief vogue, are replaced with new "hit parade" plants. It seems there are fashions in plants, as with hobble skirts, cloche hats and bell-bottom trousers. And, as with the bell-bottoms, sometimes they make a comeback; a good example here is the bedding geranium, so popular in Victorian days and now enjoying a new vogue with the coming of new, dwarf, ever-blooming varieties.

Salvia, too, was at one time almost never seen in home gardens. Today, to fill the need for an inexpensive bedding plant which would remain in bloom all summer, salvia plants are sold by the millions every spring, and because of this new popularity, plant breeders were encouraged to develop a dozen new salvia colors to augment the original scarlet flower.

* * *

It is a risky business to forecast trends and vogues, but if I read my crystal ball correctly, the upcoming plant for garden bedding and specimen planting is the celosia. Gradually, more and more of these delightful plants are being set out in parks and home gardens, and as with the salvia, new forms and glowing new colors are appearing in the seed catalogues and on the bedding plant stalls.

Celosia is an annual member of the Amaranthus family and first cousin to the common and pernicious, pigweed. Not so very many years ago, about the only celosia you saw was a compact, red-flowered houseplant affectionately known as a Cockscomb; today they are available in a dozen brilliant colors and in several different forms, and in heights ranging from 8 inches to 4 feet.

There are two broad classifications: the crested type, which bear large but tightly-knit flowers, in the characteristic cockscomb shape, and the plumed type with a loose, feathery inflorence rather like that of Pampas Grass but highly colored.

In the crested or cockscomb varieties, one of the best is Fireglow, which won an All-American award in 1964. It makes a neat plant about a foot tall with huge combs in an orange-carmine shade. Toreador, 20 inches tall, bears a flower fully 12 inches across, a velvet crown of bright red with scarlet highlights. Yellow Toreador is identical except for the color, while Festival is a flaming red and yellow bicolor on neat 14-inch plants.

* * *

Takeo Sakata, Japan's leading plant breeder, has turned out a baker's dozen of new colors, uniform in size, about a foot tall and with combs 10 inches across. Among his latest creations are Empress in crimson with bronze foliage, Rose Empress in rose pink, Empress Imp in crimson, Gladiator Imp in golden yellow and Kardinal Imp in orange scarlet.

Celosias of the plume type are again divided into Dwarf Feather or Lilliput and Giant Plumosa. The dwarfs run 10 to 12 inches in height, each with a feathery plume surrounded by smaller feathers. Some good varieties are Golden Feather, yellow; Fiery Feather, scarlet; Golden Gem, light orange; Orange Gem, orange-scarlet, and Silver Feather, sparkling silvery white, new last year.

* * *

The Plumosa or Giant Plume type run 2 to 4 feet tall, making showy, branching plants, each branch clothed for half its length with long, silky plumes. Some prize-winners in this class are Forest Fire, orange scarlet; Golden Fleece, yellow; Petit Guy, bright rose; Purple Plume, crimson purple, and Pride of Castle Gould, scarlet and orange bicolor.

All the celosias are very free blooming, bright and effective in beds and borders and long-lasting as cut flowers, while the giant plume types are exceptionally interesting in modern floral arrangements. Like Pampas Grass plumes, too, the feathery flowers can be dried for winter bouquets.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

American 'Handles' Philip

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Prince Philip will have a visitor from Hollywood this week—Henry Rogers of the public relations firm of Rogers and Cowan. "I'm still in a daze," said Henry showing me a sheaf of clippings from the British newspapers, which to his surprise approved of an American press relations expert, taking over the handling of Prince Philip's 11-day tour in this country in March.

* * *

"I am going to London to discuss the details of the trip with the prince," Henry told me. He has an appointment at Buckingham Palace and, he says, "I will also see the editors of the London papers to make certain they will get everything they want in the way of co-operation for their reporters and photographers on the tour." He is also visiting the seven cities to be visited by Prince Philip in the United States. With the prince's aide, Colonel William Heald, and Colonel James Carraras.

* * *

Rogers' normal job is to take care of Shirley MacLaine, Doris Day, Kirk Douglas, Audrey Hepburn, Playboy, Proctor and Gamble's TV and radio, the Fiat Company and the Millinery Manufacturers of America, to mention just a few of his clients.

* * *

The reason a Hollywood press agent was chosen for this delicate task is that Prince Philip's visit is personal rather than official, and because of this the British Information Services in the U.S. are not involved.

* * *

The prince has agreed to give short press conferences at the airport of each city. The press and photographers will be welcomed at all the public functions.

"It's my responsibility," Rogers said, "that the press is served well. There will be very few private affairs. A luncheon in Palm Springs for about 60 people at the home of Lew Taubman, with whom the prince will be staying. President Eisenhower will be present. Nathan Cummings in Chicago will have a private reception for the prince before the big banquet to raise money for the charities sponsored by Philip and Variety International."

* * *

Here in Los Angeles George Getty, son of richest-man-in-the-world, Paul Getty, will give a private reception at the Beverly Hilton before the big banquet here. "The only industry event for the prince," said Rogers, "is the luncheon at 20th Century-Fox for 300 stars and film executives, hosted by Darryl and Richard Zanuck. They will put on a show, with Bing Crosby in command, a cowboy and Indian scene from Bing's last picture, Stage Coach. The CBS television show has been dropped and the prince will not appear on television except when he is interviewed by the press. He was invited to appear on Meet the Press, but Colonel Heald vetoed this, because it is primarily a political show."

* * *

Pat Neal's husband, Roald Dahl, has been racing through a film script in Hollywood, to return to his family as soon as possible in England. Roald has a commitment here with the Mirisch Brothers. He was asked if he would like to stay longer, but gave a firm no. His chief work interest right now is the writing of books for children . . . As for Pat, she is not planning to return to her career. The great difficulty for her is remembering names. The part of the brain that performs this function is dormant, and whether it will ever return, the doctors do not know.

* * *

Audrey Hepburn had so looked forward to giving a sister or a brother to son Sean. It was sad when she lost the expected child, but Audrey is not strong and it was a risky thing for her having even the first child.

* * *

The palpitating question in Hollywood this week is whether William Holden's friendship or romance with Victoria Shaw—no one seems to know for sure, except Bill, I guess—will carry over, now that they have finished working together in Alvarez Kelly. Bill has taken off for somewhere in the Indian Ocean. So I would say that whatever it was, it isn't any more.

DR. STUART ROSENBERG Pinpoints Values

Science Not Enough

Much of our spiritual trouble is based upon the false idea that science alone can help solve the problems which confront us.

This is just not true.

We will never begin to solve our problems unless we recognize that their solution lies in an entirely different realm.

* * *

If we looked at life from a spiritual viewpoint, perhaps we'd fine the proper direction we ought to be facing.

Yet, look at us!

We have knowledge, but we do not have wisdom. One may go to a library and in a very few hours learn by himself what it took previous generations a lifetime to accomplish.

We have facts and figures, but we do not know how to use them in order to create a happier life.

We have houses—beautiful houses, luxurious houses, domestic palaces; but very few have homes. A house is the product of brick and stone. A home is the creation of a spiritually-minded person.

* * *

We have medicine, but not health. Anti-biotics and wonder drugs are at our beck and call; but health, true wholesomeness, depends upon the way we cultivate our spiritual life.

One out of every five people in hospital today is a mental case. Many of these people have lost their direction. Some are there because they could not face tragedy; others did not know how to handle failure, still others did not know what to make of their success.

In almost every case, however, deep down, their problem is a spiritual one, not an organic one.

* * *

We have speed. We can cross the continent between dawn and dusk, in a bare seven hours. We have speed, but we lack direction. Speed is the product of scientific testing in a laboratory. How to apply our newfound physical powers—this is still a spiritual problem.

And these become more of a problem for those who have been educated during the last 30 or 40 years. Many have been misled. Over this period, from public school through university, Western education has been geared principally to the proposition that "knowledge is power."

* * *

One day, while lecturing to a university class in philosophy, I tried an experiment. Without warning I posed the immense question: "What is truth?"

Most students gave such typical answers: "Truth consists of facts that are real, meaningful and which can be practically demonstrated. Two plus two equals four"—this, I was told, was an example of a truth.

Or the law of gravity in operation—that, too, was an example of a truth.

Truth, I was told, again and again, consists of data that can be visibly demonstrated and which are universally valid, everywhere in the world.

* * *

I then quoted the 23rd psalm: "The Lord is My Shepherd, I shall not want." And I asked the question: "Can this statement also be called true?"

Here the intellectual fun began. The realists among them shrivelled up their noses. There was a raising of an eyebrow, here and there.

Finally, one student announced: "How can anything that has never been seen, touched, heard, felt or tasted be called true? Only that which we know through our senses can be tested and validated."

* * *

I must have disengaged a number of "scientific" backbones, for I began to explain an attitude toward life which may be summed up in a phrase: "Seeing is not believing; believing is seeing."

Indeed, this is the direction we need to follow, if some of our most intricate human problems are to find a solution in our own lives.

No one ever saw love, but love is true or it is not love. No one ever measured with scientific instruments the qualities of devotion or of loyalty to a great cause.

* * *

No eyes, no ears and no hands can measure the truth that man was made to love and not to hate, to build and not to destroy, to heal and not to ravage. The greatest, sublimest, profoundest truths of life must ultimately be taken on faith.

Indeed, even science requires a gaith in man's ability to use his mind rationally so that what he sees he will report honestly and what he knows he may come some day to understand.

* * *

We know that we have a mind to use, but we forget that we have a heart, too. In the last decades we have been acting as if we were only mind—as if only science were "true." That is why our direction has often taken us away from life and brought us closer to death and destruction.

Pascal was profoundly right; he taught us something that we have overlooked: "The heart has its reasons which reason does not know."

Election Unlikely

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

The legislative session opening today may go down in history as one of the most cockeyed British Columbia has ever seen.

The two opposition parties have virtually no hope of unseating the powerful Social Credit government, yet both New Democrats and Liberals have prepared for this session as though future government may hinge upon what happens in the next few months.

Liberals plan a mid-session provincial convention here so they will be heady if an election is called. And the NDP extended its normal two-day pre-session caucus to three days this year to further consolidate strategy. (For other Legislative stories: Pages 8, 9, 27.)

Opposition Leader Strachan jumped the gun, to let the public know two days ahead of the Throne Speech what his party feels the government should do this year. Reporters observed that the NDP had even drawn up its own 12-member shadow cabinet, just in case.

Meanwhile, there were no leaks on what could be expected in the Speech from the Throne.

Island Editor

A smokey ruin is all that remains this morning of a growing iron mining and milling operation on northern Vancouver Island.

It raged on Wednesday, smashing through the main mill, melting valuable machinery, turning the big building to ash.

JOBS GONE

The loss in equipment and structure is estimated at $1,000,000. Also probably gone are jobs of up to 50 men.

The underground mining operation had been struggling toward full production.

BEACH CAMP

A trucking firm from Port Hardy had been taking ore from the mill to Beach Camp near Port McNeill, for shipment to Japan for about one year.

The operation was rapidly reaching its anticipated 12,000 tons-a-month production.

Then the fire came.

OIL HEATER

One report from Port McNeill said the fire started in the pressure plant, when the bottom fell out of an oil heater.

All men at the mill were mobilised in a vain effort to stop the fire.

BIG CRUSHER

Beach Camp is about one mile south of the Empire mine site. Big ships arrive about once a season to take iron ore to the Japanese market.

When the ore came out of the hole at the pithead, it was crushed by two big crushers, and was then shipped down a big tram to the mill.

FINE POWDER

There, another set of giant crushers ground the rock into a fine powder.

It is impossible for the mine to continue to ship because of its loss of equipment, and doubtful whether much work can be done at all until the mill is replaced.

The company has a 50-year lease with Quatsino Copper-Gold Mines on the property.

Intriguing Scandal In Special Report

It is now accepted that the outlaws and gangsters, paid handsomely to set the scene for de Gaulle's original accession to power, are responsible for this latest outrage.

Moroccans Blame Frenchmen

RABAT (Reuters) — The Moroccan state radio Wednesday accused France of behaving disgracefully over the Ben Barka affair and of trying to put the blame on Morocco.

* * *

It said the investigation showed the disappearance of Moroccan Opposition Leader Mehdi Ben Barka in Paris last October to be the work of police, spies, counterspies and gangsters—all of them French.

The broadcaster added that France was looking for a "Sacrificial beast" and had turned the spotlight on innocent Morocco to divert attention from France.

* * *

The commentator said French Ambassador Robert Gilet asked King Hassen last November to dismiss his interior minister, Gen. Mohammed Oufkir, on the ground that he took a personal hand in Ben Barka's disappearance.

He said this was revolting for Morocco's dignity and offensive to its honor, and added that Oufkir had nothing to do with the kidnapping.

No Break Indicated By Paris

PARIS (UPI)—The French government charged publicly again Wednesday that Morocco's interior minister engineered the kidnapping in Paris of Moroccan leftist leader Mehdi Ben Barka. It said this was why the French ambassador to Rabat was recalled last weekend.

* * *

French police and judicial authorities have received "the clearest orders" to bring to trial everyone connected with the kidnapping, the government said.

* * *

However, responsible French government sources said there is no question of breaking diplomatic relations or of halting $40,000,000 in economic aid, although the aid agreements might be "reviewed" when they come up for renewal in a few months time.

Rolling Hills Copper

'Seized' Core Raises Howl

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Attorney-General Robert Bonner's statement Thursday that the drilling core of Rolling Hills Copper Mines Ltd. had been "seized" by the B.C. securities department raised a howl of protest Wednesday from the company's secretary-treasurer.

"A week ago we implored the Vancouver Stock Exchange and the B.C. Superintendent of Brokers to take possession of the single hole core from our new property near Pine Point," said Murray Pezzim.

"I cannot understand how Mr. Bonner can claim he has seized the core. We offered it to him."

WENT WILD

Mr. Pezzim explained that a week ago trading in Rolling Hills became out of hand because of insufficient stock on the market.

"I called upon Mr. Van Luven (president of the VSE) to help us control the market, and he advised me to call upon Mr. Bill Irwin (superintendent of brokers)."

RUMORS FLEW

"The next day rumors were flying and eventually the VSE stopped trading in the issue," went on Mr. Pezzim.

"It was at our request an official of the B.C. superintendent's office flew to Pine Point at the weekend to pick up what remained of the core. He did this and brought it back to Vancouver where it is now in the office of the assaying firm of J. R. Williams."

IN OFFICE

Earlier, Mr. Pezzim explained, a part of the core had already been air expressed from the property, and it too was in the Vancouver assay office.

The only information available about the cores, acording to Mr. Pezzim, were wired to a Vancouver reporting agency by Frank Avory of First Northern Exploration from whom Rolling Hills had recently bought the property. The wires claimed mineralization.

The drilling was done by Pa-

Haiphong Ready For Attack

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Communist Party Newspaper Pravda reported Wednesday that the principal North Vietnamese port of Haiphong has been partially evacuated and mobilized in anticipation of U.S. air strikes.

In its raids on North Viet Nam, the U.S. has never struck at Haiphong. The nearest raid, before the bombing was halted for the Christmas truce, was 13 miles away.

Reds Charge:

Mott Death 'Used' By West

MOSCOW (UPI) — Moscow Radio said Thursday that American tourist Newcomb Mott had slashed his throat with a razor "in a state of violent nervous disorder." It accused the West of trying to stir up the incident into a "political scandal."

The broadcast accused the "capitalist press and radio" of "giving a sensational new slant to the suicide" and said these media were even urging tourists to stop coming to the Soviet Union.

SOVIET LAW

"We welcome visitors," Moscow Radio said. "In fact we open the front door to them and courteously ask them not to use the window. Those who venture to cross our border will have to be held responsible before Soviet law."

All Eyes On Winters

Tax Vote Aimed At Liberal Split

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Conservatives moved Wednesday to overthrow the minority government with a non-confidence assault aimed at splitting the Liberal camp.

TAX ISSUE

The move, if successful, would repeal the Liberals' controversial 11 per cent sales tax on building materials and manufacturing machinery.

The Tories, who had earlier let it out that they would move non-confidence on the issue of integrity in government, switched to the sales tax at the last minute.

WINTERS WATCHED

The strategy is to smoke out Liberals who disagree with the tax that their government imposed two years ago.

Most eyes will be on him when the vote is counted in the Commons tonight.

THIRD TIME

It is the third non-confidence vote in a week and, again, it should be a close finish.

Moving non-confidence Wednesday night, Tory Marcel Lambert said he was sure that the Liberals—"in their heart of hearts"—would like to do away with the tax.

"We now give them the opportunity. This is the first step that the government can take, remove the tax.

"If this were done, it would remove at least one area of pressure in the inflationary trend in this country."

NO HINT

He said only that he was "taken back" by the Tories moving such a motion in the Throne speech, instead of in the budget debate in a few months' time.

Parliament Hill is swept with speculation that the sales tax may come off in the budget.

But informed sources here say the tax will, in fact, stay on and that the business community has learned to live with it and its less-than-feared effects.

While the vote may be close and the minority government will have to corral as many of its members as possible, the opposition is not expected to form the same, near-solid line

Backyard Billions

Don't Dig Yet Wait a While

The dirt in your yard is worth a billion dollars, and the President denounces price hikes, not in steel, but in plastics.

It's not science fiction.

* * *

It's all part of science's new horizons as described Wednesday by Dr. C. Guy Suits, vice-president of General Electric Co., before the House space and astronautics committee.

The dirt is the raw material of silicon, which scientists have purified to the point where it is a basic component of today's $6,000,000,000 computer industry.

* * *

Suits foresaw the day when plastics made from common carbon will be hardened to the point where they will become "the basic structural materials of our civilization."

In the future, he said, one of the commonest things of all—ocean water—may yield equal values.

* * *

If you excavate a small lot to a depth of 100 feet, Suits said, you would have the raw material for silicon which could be purified to a value of $1,000,000,000—a million times more than the value of the dirt as dirt.

But don't start digging yet, he cautioned, unless you don't care about money. Right now the cost of the processing probably would be at least $1,000,000,000, too.

Ready 'Within a Year'

Plastic Hearts Beat True

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—A substitute heart, made of plastics, is almost ready for placement in a heart patient's chest.

It is designed to do the pumping work of an ailing human heart, for days or weeks, and then easily could be removed. It has passed careful tests in animals, a surgeon said Wednesday.

* * *

The spare, powered by a bedside air pump, should be available for first human use within a month, said Dr. Michael E. Debakey of Baylor University Medical Centre, Houston. Its first trial in a suitable patient could come anytime "within a year."

The plastic heart is truly a spare, to be placed between a person's ribs. Plastic tubes take blood returning from the lungs and then pump it out through the body.

* * *

The spare heart thus can do any desired degree of the pumping work of the left ventricle, the chamber that sends blood flowing out of the heart. Pulses of air within linings in the tubes squeeze the blood along.

Debakey and substitute heart —AP

* * *

The air pump could later be made in miniature—and powered by battery, so the patient could easily walk and work with his substitute heart, Dr. Debakey said. A dog given an artificial heart was equipped with a small, portable air pump.

Dr. Debakey showed the latest design of the substitute heart at a press conference sponsored by the New York Heart Association and the American Heart Association.

* * *

The Baylor pump could help heart patients who need temporary aid, until their own hearts recover, and might benefit some persons who face constant danger of a severe heart attack.

If produced in quantity, the artificial heart might cost about $200 to $300, Dr. Debakey said.

Weird Session

This legislature's normal life runs until September, 1968, and there appears to be no issues on the horizon likely to bring on an election much before that.

* * *

Premier Bennett, who earlier predicted it would be a "vigorous" session which could possibly affect the timing of the next provincial election, reversed his field about mid-January by saying on at least two occasions that he had changed his mind. It would be a "friendly" session, he added.

An easing of the traditional hard line against the Liberal administration in Ottawa was also noticed in recent weeks.

* * *

Perhaps with a hope that B.C. might obtain a charter for a Bank of B.C. this year, the premier echoed Education Minister Peterson's appreciation of an announcement by Prime Minister Pearson that federal university per-capita grants would be increased from $2 to $5.

It seems certain there will be long debates this year on labor-management relations, effects of automation, the question of high car insurance rates, forest management problems and the government's new "close utilization" policy.

* * *

A bitter struggle is likely to ensue on the floor if the government decides to redistribute some of the existing provincial constituencies after a redistribution commission report is tabled in the House.

The government, comfortably settled in the driver's seat, will probably content itself with bringing in a number of housekeeping bills aimed at keeping up with the needs of a province rapidly outgrowing its own pants.

* * *

Every politician will have his day on the floor. Tempers will become frayed and the weeks will wear on. Eventually, near exhaustion, the legislators will begin ramming through a stack of bills and departmental estimates.

Around Easter, when everyone is tired of talking, the MLAs will draw their sessional cheques and go home.

* * *

It will then be all over for another year. Premier Bennett will reign supreme and some 3,500 civil servants in Victoria will get back to the serious business of running governmental departments and planning their 1966 vacations.

From Page 1

'Seized' Core

Earlier on Wednesday, Mr. Bonner said that the lifting of the core has not been a routine matter but he had no more to add at that time.

Mr. Irwin said that as the matter was now in the hands of the Attorney General's department it was to "some degree sub judice" and he was unable to comment.

"I am sick of the whole affair," said Mr. Pezzim. "Only a single hole has been drilled and so far as we are concerned it was merely to test the structure. It does not have any real meaning."

But the mining promoter was unable to explain how the rumors got around that created a mining fever and sent the stock of Rolling Hills within a few days from 45 cents to $3.00.

Ore Mill Ruined

The mill started work in 1957 with 2,000-ton capacity which was increased to 3,500-ton daily capacity.

Your Good Health

By JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Four years ago I was under great strain, was nervous, and had difficulty in sleeping. I was given Nembutal and took one each night and had a good sleep.

When I read in magazines and newspapers two years ago of the danger of taking this drug, and the terrible withdrawal consequences, nausea and convulsions, I went to my doctor, who is an eminent one, and asked him for something different.

He said, "One Nembutal has never hurt anyone. If it relaxes you and helps you, take it." I later consulted another doctor and he prescribed a different drug, but it makes my lips swell and after a time is nauseating.

So I am writing you to ask if you will suggest a less harmful sedative. I don't want to take barbiturates.—MRS. M. D.

It was only a year or two ago that I was talking to the doctor in charge of the government hospital at Lexington, Ky., a man of enormous skill and stature, and we talked about barbituates. His comment was this.

ADDICTION

"Yes, some people use excessive amounts of barbiturates. They take so much—and they can't get that much except by buying "bootleg" supplies—that they become addicts, and this certainly is dangerous.

"But what bothers me is this. The barbiturates, properly used, rank among the most useful medicines known to man.

DANGERS

"Certainly over-use is dangerous, but normal use is not. This publicity about the danger of over-use isn't going to be heeded by the addicts, but it is going to frighten people who are using safe amounts and they'll stop, and lose the benefit of one of our most useful medicines."

Mrs. M.D.: He might have been talking directly to you. He saw what would come of that spasm of publicity. Sure, I agree we musn't conceal the facts, even for what we regard as worthy motives. There IS such a thing as barbiturate poisoning—when people go hog wild.

SMALL DOSE

You were perfectly safe, and comfortable, when you followed your first doctor's advice—the doctor you called "eminent."

You then shopped around until you found a doctor who prescribed another drug, and it upset you. This doctor, I feel sure, did the best he could for you—in view of the fact that you insisted on another drug.

You're no addict. But why don't you go back to your first doctor, and stop worrying. You have just worried yourself into a tizzy. You confused proper use of this drug with over use. There's a world of difference.

Another Confidence Vote Today

as it did in the earlier votes on raising the old age pension.

Wednesday night, the New Democrats, who had opposed the imposition of the tax in Commons votes, weren't sure how they would vote this time.

CAOUETTE MAD

A special caucus was set up and leader T. C. Douglas declared: "We haven't made any decision."

Creditiste leader Real Caouette was incensed that the Tories had slipped in with a second non-confidence amendment before the Creditistes could move one.

"I am mad at the Tories taking the floor all the time," he sniffed.

"We had an amendment ready to move, that loans without interest should be made by the Bank of Canada to provinces, municipalities and school boards."

However, despite their anger at the Tories, the Creditistes were expected to vote with them against the government.

"I certainly will," said Caouette lieutenant Gilles Gregoire.

The five Socreds, once more, would vote to save the government. In this case, too, they are voting against the implementation of an election promise.

In the campaign, they wanted an increase in pensions to $100 but voted with the government twice in the past week against opposition attempts to raise them.

Socred leader Robert Thompson Wednesday night conceded that his party was against the tax in the campaign.

"But supporting the motion now won't bring about the intention of the motion, the abolition of the tax," he claimed. "It will just cause an election."

Another Socred, Bert Leboe, said: "We will vote just exactly as we have been voting, with very good reason.

"The only result is the defeat of the government and an election or some other constitutional confusion that would be bad for the country."

The crop of non-confidence votes is punctuating the throne speech debate, which enters its fifth day today.

Wednesday night, Mr. Lambert, former Diefenbaker cabinet minister, warned of the danger of inflation and added:

"I am warning that unless adequate steps are taken and people are made aware of what is happening, we are in for some rough bumps in relation to the maintenance of industrial activity in this country in the next several months."

Students Flee

WHITE ROCK (CP)—A number of students filed quickly out of Semiahmoo Senior Secondary School Monday when a fire broke out in a washroom.

Port Association May Fold

Health Group Falls Apart

PORT ALBERNI—Whether or not the Mental Health Association continues to function in the Alberni Valley depends on the response at the next meeting, scheduled for Feb. 3 at 8 p.m. in the Alberni Health Unit.

"Over the past year the organization has deteriorated until now there are not enough people available, able or willing to attend the meetings or assist the executive function," declared Robert A. Schoffield, president, in a letter to branch advisors.

Without community support and community interest the objectives of the association, research, training, volunteer services, social action and public education, cannot be carried out, he said.

★ ★ ★

A series of four lectures on child-rearing has been planned by Dr. S. E. Jensen of the Upper Island Health Unit in Nanaimo; but in order to carry this program out there must be sufficient response, Mr. Schoffield pointed out.

Union Bay News

Town Shocked by Death

By MARY MOORE

UNION BAY — This community was saddened by the death of Mrs. William Glover recently. She suffered a heart attack at her home and died almost immediately.

Clara Louise Glover was born in Nanaimo 56 years ago, and came to Union Bay with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. H. Bowden at the age of six. She lived here ever since.

ALERT BAY — The drowning of fisherman Harold Brownson last week was accidental, said Coroner Casper Peterson. The coroner said Mr. Brownson fell from a float about 30 miles east of here.

The auxiliary has already set aside funds for this project.

The judo club instructor is black-belt champion Murdo MacLeod. The club here has won several events in B.C.

Death Accident

DUNCAN—A coroner's jury at Duncan Wednesday found that the death of Michael John Ferguson, 15, Jan. 15, 1966 was accidental with no blame attached to anyone.

The boy died as the result of a gunshot wound, in a suite above Ordano's Boathouse, Cowichan Bay at approximately 12:40 a.m.

Nanaimo

Film Site Ready

NANAIMO MATCH

SEMI-FINAL

March 22 Victoria High and Shawnigan Lake will be on the screen.

March 29 and April 5 there will be the semi-finals of the Vancouver Island zone, and the final will be seen on April 12.

SCHOLARSHIP

'Step in Right Direction'

Adequate Legislation Needed

Pollution Foes Welcome Program

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Anti-pollutionists have welcomed an announcement by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. that a $1,000,000 program is being put into effect to reduce fly-ash and pollution.

* * *

Maurice Corbeil, speaking on behalf of the Alberni District Labor Council, said "it is our opinion that this is a step in the right direction, but we feel much more will have to be done to completely eliminate the air and water pollution in the Alberni Valley.

"It should be realized by all citizens that sporadic outbursts by groups of citizens, although helpful, will not solve the problem of pollution. The complete elimination of air and water pollution will require the constant attention of all interested groups, supported by adequate legislation."

Speaking for himself and Colin Wilson, co-organizer of Sunday's protest meeting, George McKnight said, "We welcome the company's statement and hope it will be successful.

* * *

"We do hope however that the program includes the exhaust of gases into the air, which is the cause of the odor, and which we feel is possibly the cause of throat irritation and discomfort.

"And also we hope the statement covers elimination of effluent in the Somass River and the Alberni Canal."

The two men, who are sponsoring an anti-pollution petition which they hope to present to the legislature, disassociated themselves from the silent parade, planned by resident Andy Bigg for Feb. 6.

Mr. McKnight said "While we recognize the right of any citizen to protest in any way within the law, our petition has no connection with these plans.

The petition is directed to the provincial government, and toward the elimination of all air and water pollution in B.C. by province-wide legislation.

* * *

"Despite the company's announced plans, the petition goes on." 2,000 signatures are now on the petition, and hopes are high that the 5,000 names set as an objective may be reached by the deadline, Feb. 12.

Mr. McKnight then turned his guns on the local chamber of commerce and accused the group of being "the poorest in B.C."

"I'd welcome the chance to tell them so," Mr. McKnight asserted. "They spend public money on the promotion of tourism, and then fail to act on the most serious tourist problem.

* * *

"They say they help promote industry here too," he contended, "but aside from at one time suggesting the erection of a grain elevator, I can't see what they have done.

"And at that, the elevator has never been built.

"I personally have suggested they look into the possibility of a furniture factory here. Good maple and alder is destroyed as loggers take out other trees for established industries. A furniture factory would make use of what is now destroyed, and would provide a valuable secondary industry."

Royston Vote

Trustees Level Warning

ROYSTON — Another vote on turning this area into a district municipality will probably be presented in May.

If voters don't approve the district status this time, they will probably have to find a new set of trustees.

Trustee Cecil Harper has already submitted his resignation to the board of the waterworks area, following defeat by nine votes of the municipality plan in December.

LEVELS WARNING

Chairman Don Richardson warned a Wednesday night meeting here if the vote does not pass next time, "more resignations will follow."

Mr. Richardson said the last vote "let trustees down badly." Because of it, he said water rates have gone up $1 to $1.50 this year, and may climb again in 1967.

QUESTIONS THROWN

At the meeting, residence had some questions that gave an indication of the reasons for failure of the plebiscite.

Is it true that sewage disposal can be forced on a municipality? Answer: No.

Road To 'Queen'

Rock work is being carried out at Kelsey Bay by public works department, to prepare for construction of ferry landing for the Queen of Prince Rupert. Ferry service will begin to Prince Rupert May 30. Crews are blasting away high cliffs and widening the narrow road from Kelsey Bay to the deep water point. — (Don Huntley)

Fishboat Founders

Daring Skipper Rescues Eight

By BOB PETHICK

TOFINO — The lives of eight men were saved in a daring rescue when their ship foundered in 50-mile-an-hour winds off Cox Point, five miles south of here Wednesday.

With 170 tons of herring aboard the 100-foot seine boat Atlantis had been weather bound in Tofino for 24 hours and had come out to make a run for the Anglo-B.C. Packing Company's reduction plant at Steveston on the Fraser River.

Malcolm Robertson, production manager at the plant who had been in touch with the crew since the vessel sunk said it apparently started taking water in the engine room.

HEAVY SEAS

Fighting high winds and heavy seas the fish packer Ernest Todd laid alongside the crippled Atlantis once it was found she could not stay afloat. The eight-man crew was taken aboard.

A few minutes later the Atlantis, valued at $125,000 with a $15,00 seine net aboard, slowly disappeared beneath the waves. She lies in 15 fathoms of water near Lennard Island.

INSURED

The crew, under command of Capt. Mirko Loncarich, was taken to Tofino. They are hoping to catch a plane to Vancouver today.

Production manager Robertson said there was insurance. He said the boat was capable of carrying 260 tons of herring. This is 30 tons less than she was carrying.

"We may never know exactly what happened," said Mr. Robertson.

SEINE NET

But as far as the Coast Guard is concerned the episode isn't finished.

They are concerned that the 300-fathom seine net aboard the Atlantis will break loose and float to the surface, causing navigation hazard. The keeper at nearby Lennard Island Light has been alerted to keep an eye out for the net and the Tofino lifeboat is standing by in case the net should surface.

Broken Date, Broken Hopes

Lake Cowichan Highway 'Not High on Priority List'

LAKE COWICHAN — Chamber of commerce president Allan Anderson told chamber members when he and three other delegates went to Victoria recently to keep an appointment with Highway Minister Gaglardi, they discovered work on Lake Cowichan Road is not an immediate project.

The minister was in Vancouver.

TRAFFIC HEAVY

Mr. Anderson said, "More than 36,000 tractor-trailer units pass over that road each year, and that is not counting smaller trucks and private cars."

He said: "Piecemeal patching is a waste of money."

* * *

Members learned something about high finance and centennial year celebrations.

Barry Anderson, Victoria, spoke on the functions of the Industrial Development Bank, and explained the differences of this system from a regular bank.

He said a man with a small business and a good idea could develop the plan with the help of the Industrial Development Bank.

BIRTHDAY OUTLINED

He said he wanted business people to sponsor a free breakfast and make pancakes.

MAY 7: A HOLIDAY?

He hoped businessmen would declare May 7 a holiday.

"Let's make that Saturday a day to forget our problems, and forget about making a buck," he said, "let's make it a real celebration of thanksgiving for the fact that we are British Columbians."

Snow Cripples Trees

Snow damage has crippled the interior beauty of Cathedral Grove on the Alberni-Parksville Highway. Smaller trees were snapped, branches were broken. Caretakers are sawing the wood to firewood length to prepare for a clean-up of the famed tourist attraction.—(Agnes Flett)

North Pacific Area

Declining Whales Object of Study

NANAIMO — Some whale populations are experiencing a decrease in their numbers in the north Pacific, and blue and fin whales will not be killed in 1967.

A whale specialist at the Nanaimo Biological Station Gordon Pike, estimated there are 15,000 to 20,000 fin whales in the north Pacific.

He said in the past two years there have four Japanese and three Russian factory ships in that area.

Japanese factory ships began working in the Bering Sea and Aleutians in 1954 and the Russians in 1959.

March 7 an expedition will leave Nanaimo to represent Canada in a joint whale and seal study with Japan, Russia and the U.S.

They will return June 30 after carrying out tests off the coasts of Alaska, B.C., Washington and Oregon.

DART MARKERS

The darts contain data which can be checked when the whale is finally caught.

FOUR COUNTRIES

Originally a treaty in 1911 ruled that seals should only be taken on the Russian islands of Robben and Commander, and the U.S. Pribilof Islands, Mr. Pike said.

Recently the Japanese have maintained seals can be better taken at sea, he added, and this will be studied during the expedition.

During 1966 several international conferences will be held among the four countries.

Also in February the ninth meeting of the North Pacific Fur Seal Commission will be held in Ottawa.

Twin Cities To Discuss Region Idea

PORT ALBERNI — Ald. Jim McFie, the city's representative on the regional district planning committee, has announced a publice meeting will be held Tuesday, in the First United Church hall at 8 p.m. to discuss the activities and functions of the proposed regional district.

The meeting is open to all residents of the Twin Cities and surrounding areas that would be included in the regional district if and when one if formed.

"Those attending will have an opportunity to ask questions and discuss the possibilities," Mr. McFie told city council.

School Aid Approved By Cabinet

Two up-Island school districts were given the green light by the provincial cabinet Wednesday to go ahead with school expansion programs.

One order-in-council indicated the government would pay $410,000 toward the estimated cost of building and equipping vocational training facilities in Courtenay Senior High School.

Another order-in-council granted permission for Vancouver Island North school district to borrow up to $7,800 for "emergent capital expenditures for school purposes."

* * *

The loan is to be obtained from a bank at not more than six per cent interest per annum, and repaid at $3,900 during the calendar year 1967, and $3,900 during the calendar year 1968.

Cowichan's Mini-Railway

Train Chugs 5,000 Miles

Relating the museum's first year of operation, one of the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum Society's principal directors, Gerald Wellburn, said at the annual society meeting a total of $12,656 was taken in at the gate, including 11,000 adults, and 6,000 children over six years of age.

* * *

Also visiting the museum were about 6,000 children under six years of age who did not have to pay admission.

The directors will consider raising the age for free admission to 16 years with the provision that youngsters are accompanied by adults.

* * *

It is hoped more signs will be installed along the Trans-Canada Highway and improvements will be carried out on the museum's site's trails and roads.

Various displays relating to the district's colorful past of the woodworking industry are being prepared now for the log museum building but because of the intricate work it will take a considerable time until all models will be completed.

Keeps Lady Rose Sailing

Barclay Sound Link Secured By $1,800 Grant

PORT ALBERNI — Thanks to provision of an $1,800 subsidy, residents of Bamfield, Ucluelet and other Barclay Sound areas can expect to continue to receive mail, food and other necessities by the operators of the Mv. Lady Rose.

Always a vital link for residents of Barclay Sound, Lady Rose has played an even more important part in the last couple of months with the failure of a trucking outfit which used to provide regular service to the Tofino-Ucluelet area.

"This subsidy means we will be able to carry on," a spokesman for the Alberni Marine Transportation Company reported happily.

TOURIST ROUTE

In the summer time, Lady Rose carries hundreds of tourists and local people on trips that offer the ultimate in rugged beauty. But in winter, only passengers who are forced to do so travel the rough stretch of water the Lady Rose travels.

"Unfortunately, there are not enough passengers and freight to make up the difference during the winter months," a company official said. "Yet mail and food are essential.

ROAD POOR

"The road to Bamfield is not fit for public transport service. All freight for the people there has to go with us. Right now, we are carrying freight to Ucluelet too. Although the road is greatly improved, the trucking outfit set their rates too low to provide for the better equipment and the extra maintenance such a tough road demands.

Because of the heavy snows over the holiday season, many who went home to the Tofino and Ucluelet areas at Christmas found they could not get back by road. Emergency measures were called for.

EXTRA RUN

"We were swamped with phone calls and finally put on an extra run, and brought out some 90 passengers who had to return to school, college and business," the company spokesman reported.

Now, thanks to the subsidy, there is no danger of those on Lady Rose's regular run being deprived of their most constant and reliable means of transportation, at least for another year.

Lady Rose makes the run Tuesdays and Thursdays to Bamfield and return, and on Monday and Friday to Ucluelet. In the summer an additional round trip to Ucluelet goes out on Wednesday.

Alberni Sikhs Honor Shastri

PORT ALBERNI—A memorial service for the late Indian Prime Minister Shastri will be held by the East Indian community here Sunday.

Mayors and councils of the Twin Cities were among those receiving invitations to attend the ceremony to be held in the Sikh Temple, Twelfth Avenue North, from 11 to 1 p.m., Sunday.

All over the world groups gather on the night of Robert Burns' birthday and Victoria was no exception. The Burns Club members and friends gathered at Holyrood House on Tuesday evening to honor the memory of the Scottish bard. Following the Selkirk Grace a typical Scottish dinner, Scotch broth, mauchlin salad, The Haggis, roast Bubbly Jock, baked tatties, mashed neeps, green peas, Scottish delight, ait cakes and kebbuck were served. Then there was a program of songs, recitations and Highland dancing. Club piper, Fred Allnutt, piped in the haggis borne by Prof. K. W. Gordon, Rev. H. H. McAllister gave the address to The Haggis and Alderman Robert Baird gave the Immortal Memory. Pictured from left to right, Alderman and Mrs. Robert Baird, Mr. and Mrs. A. ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Should I be worried about our 15-year-old daughter? Cathy is a nice girl, no beauty, but wholesome-looking and with a nice figure. She is a good student, a better than average musician, and she loves to read.

Cathy will not wear make-up, not even lipstick. Her skin is fair and she looks awfully pale at times. I have told her a little make-up would improve her looks but she's not interested.

Cathy has never been asked out by a boy and unless she is play-acting she couldn't care less. I guess what worries me is that my daughter has no S.A. (sex appeal).

My friends say I should push her more and not let her retreat into a shell. They also feel I should enroll Cathy in a charm school. My husband says we should leave her alone and be happy she is not out getting pregnant like some girls her age.

What is your advice?—MOTHER OF A SHRINKING VIOLET

—Dear Mother: I say you should leave her alone and be happy she is not out getting pregnant like some girls her age.

★ ★ ★

Dear Ann Landers: Who do you think you are anyway? You set yourself up as Miss Know-it-All and half your answers are so out of date they sound like part of the Dead Sea Scrolls. I read your opinion on sending out wedding announcements two days after I had sent out 200 and I'm furious with you.

You are wrong about a wedding announcement being a pitch for a gift. We could not afford a large wedding but we did want to share our good news with our closest friends.

You owe it to all brides who send out announcements to change your advice. I have checked two etiquette books and they both say a wedding announcement does NOT call for a gift.—NO FRIEND OF YOURS

Dear No Friend: The person who wrote asked me how I felt about wedding announcements. I said: "Since you are asking me how I feel I will tell you. In my opinion a wedding announcement is a naked pitch for a gift."

This was a personal opinion and I so described it. Furthermore, I feel the same way about birth announcements, graduation announcements—the whole pestiferous announcement syndrome.

People who want to go by the etiquette books should please go look in the etiquette books and not ask me what I think.

Dear Ann Landers: My brother and I were discussing liquor at dinner tonight with mom and dad. I told them I had read in your column that it is not good to insist that teen-agers not touch a drop because such prohibition may decide them to go hog wild when they get to be 21. Your advice, as I remember it, was to teach teen teens to drink in moderation.

Dad says I am mistaken and that you would not print anything like that. Please say you did, Ann. We have a bet riding on you answer.—JACK

Dear Jack: Pay up, Bub. More people go hog wild because they started drinking "in moderation" than because they didn't touch a drop when they were young.

Alcoholism has reached epidemic proportions in this country and one of the reasons is that people are drinking earlier (and more) than they used to. The best protection against alcoholism is to drink something else instead.

Bride-Elect Honored

Mrs. Harold Brown and Mrs. J. Wallace entertained at a shower in the Cadboro Bay home of the latter in honor of bride-elect, Miss Marion Williams.

Other guests were: Mrs. A. Currie, Mrs. J. Currie, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. J. Jefferies, Mrs. D. Campbell, Mrs. D. Finlay, Mrs. J. Robertson, Mrs. E. Hall, Mrs. D. Smith, Mrs. R. Agnew, Mrs. W. Hamilton, Mrs. G. Robertson, Mrs. T. Pagdin, Mrs. M. Hoffman, Mrs. A. Coffey, Mrs. N. Wharf, Mrs. L. Clough, Mrs. R. Stevens, and the Misses Nessie Wallace, Lindsay Agnew, Jean Robertson, Lynn Evans, Myra Hall and Joan Smith.

Election Unlikely

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

The legislative session opening today may go down in history as one of the most cock-eyed British Columbia has ever seen.

The two opposition parties have virtually no hope of unseating the powerful Social Credit government, yet both New Democrats and Liberals have prepared for this session as though future government may hinge upon what happens in the next few months.

Liberals plan a mid-session provincial convention here so they will be ready if an election is called. And the NDP extended its normal two-day pre-session caucus to three days this year to further consolidate strategy. (For other Legislative stories: Pages 8, 9, 27.)

Opposition Leader Strachan jumped the gun, to let the public know two days ahead of the throne speech what his party feels the government should do this year. Reporters observed that the NDP had even drawn up its own 12-member shadow cabinet, just in case.

Meanwhile, there were no leaks on what could be expected in the Speech from the Throne.

Empire Iron Mine

FIRE RUINS ORE MILL

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

A smokey ruin is all that remains this morning of a growing iron mining and milling operation on northern Vancouver Island.

Wednesday, it raged on, smashing through the main mill, melting valuable machinery, turning the big building to ash.

JOBS GONE

The loss in equipment and structure is estimated at $1,000,000. Also probably gone are jobs of up to 50 men.

The underground mining operation had been struggling toward full production.

BEACH CAMP

A trucking firm from Port Hardy had been taking ore from the mill to Beach Camp near Port McNeill, for shipment to Japan.

The operation was rapidly reaching its anticipated 12,000 tons-a-month production.

Then the fire came.

OIL HEATER

One report from Port McNeill said the fire started in the pressure plant, when the bottom fell out of an oil heater.

All men at the mill were mobilized in a vain effort to stop the fire.

BIG CRUSHER

Beach Camp is about one mile south of the Empire mine site. Big ships arrive about once a season to take iron ore to the Japanese market.

When the ore came out of the hol. at the pithead, it was crushed by two big crushers, and was then shipped down a big tram to the mill.

FINE POWDER

There, another set of giant crushers ground the rock into a fine powder.

It is impossible for the mine to continue to ship because of its loss of equipment, and doubtful whether much work can be done at all, until the mill is replaced.

The company has a 50-year lease with Quatsino Copper-Gold Mines on the property.

Rolling Hills Copper

'Seized' Core Raises Howl

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Attorney-General Robert Bonner's statement Thursday that the drilling core of Rolling Hills Copper Mines Ltd. had been "seized" by the B.C. securities department raised a howl of protest Wednesday from the company's secretary-treasurer.

"A week ago we implored the Vancouver Stock Exchange and the B.C. Superintendent of Brokers to take possession of the single hole core from our new property near Pine Point," said Murray Pezzim.

"I cannot understand how Mr. Bonner can claim he has seized the core. We offered it to him."

WENT WILD

Mr. Pezzim explained that a week ago trading in Rolling Hills became out of hand because of insufficient stock on the market.

"I called upon Mr. Van Luven (president of the VSE) to help us control the market, and he advised me to call upon Mr. Bill Irwin (superintendent of brokers)."

RUMORS FLEW

"The next day rumors were flying and eventually the VSE stopped trading in the issue," went on Mr. Pezzim.

"It was at our request an official of the B.C. superintendent's office flew to Pine Point at the weekend to pick up what remained of the core. He did this and brought it back to Vancouver where it is now in the office of the assaying firm of J. R. Williams."

IN OFFICE

Earlier, Mr. Pezzim explained, a part of the core had already been air expressed from the property, and it too was in the Vancouver assay office.

The only information available about the cores, acording to Mr. Pezzim, were wired to a Vancouver reporting agency by Frank Avory of First Northern Exploration from whom Rolling Hills had recently bought the property. The wires claimed mineralization.

The drilling was done by Pa-

Haiphong Ready For Attack

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Communist Party Newspaper Pravda reported Wednesday that the principal North Vietnamese port of Haiphong has been partially evacuated and mobilized in anticipation of U.S. air strikes.

In its raids on North Viet Nam, the U.S. has never struck at Haiphong. The nearest raid, before the bombing was halted for the Christmas truce, was 13 miles away.

Reds Charge:

Mott Death 'Used' By West

MOSCOW (UPI) — Moscow Radio said Thursday that American tourist Newcomb Mott had slashed his throat with a razor "in a state of violent nervous disorder." It accused the West of trying to stir up the incident into a "political scandal."

The broadcast accused the "capitalist press and radio" of "giving a sensational new slant to the suicide" and said these media were even urging tourists to stop coming to the Soviet Union.

SOVIET LAW

"We welcome visitors," Moscow Radio said. "In fact we open the front door to them and courteously ask them not to use the window. Those who venture to cross our border will have to be held responsible before Soviet law."

All Eyes On Winters

Tax Vote Aimed At Liberal Split

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Conservatives moved Wednesday to overthrow the minority government with a non-confidence assault aimed at splitting the Liberal camp.

The move, if successful, would repeal the Liberals' controversial 11 per cent sales tax on building materials and manufacturing machinery.

The Tories, who had earlier let it out that they would move non-confidence on the issue of integrity in government, switched to the sales tax at the last minute.

WINTERS WATCHED

The strategy is to smoke out Liberals who disagree with the tax that their government imposed two years ago.

Most eyes will be on him when the vote is counted in the Commons tonight.

THIRD TIME

It is the third non-confidence vote in a week and, again, it should be a close finish.

Moving non-confidence Wednesday night, Tory Marcel Lambert said he was sure that the Liberals—"in their heart of hearts"—would like to do away with the tax.

"We now give them the opportunity. This is the first step that the government can take, remove the tax.

NO HINT

He said only that he was "taken back" by the Tories moving such a motion in the Throne speech, instead of in the budget debate in a few months' time.

Parliament Hill is swept with speculation that the sales tax may come off in the budget.

But informed sources here say the tax will, in fact, stay on and that the business community has learned to live with it and its less-than-feared effects.

While the vote may be close and the minority government will have to corral as many of its members as possible, the opposition is not expected to form the same, near-solid line

Backyard Billions

Don't Dig Yet Wait a While

It's not science fiction.

It's all part of science's new horizons as described Wednesday by Dr. C. Guy Suits, vice-president of General Electric Co., before the House space and astronautics committee.

The dirt is the raw material of silicon, which scientists have purified to the point where it is a basic component of today's $6,000,000,000 computer industry.

★ ★ ★

Suits foresaw the day when plastics made from common carbon will be hardened to the point where they will become "the basic structural materials of our civilization."

In the future, he said, one of the commonest things of all—ocean water—may yield equal values.

If you excavate a small lot to a depth of 100 feet, Suits said, you would have the raw material for silicon which could be purified to a value of $1,000,000,000—a million times more than the value of the dirt as dirt.

But don't start digging yet, he cautioned, unless you don't care about money. Right now the cost of the processing probably would be at least $1,000,000,000, too.

Intriguing Scandal In Special Report

It is now accepted that the outlaws and gangsters, paid handsomely to set the scene for de Gaulle's original accession to power, are responsible for this latest outrage.

Moroccans Blame Frenchmen

RABAT (Reuters) — The Moroccan state radio Wednesday accused France of behaving disgracefully over the Ben Barka affair and of trying to put the blame on Morocco.

★ ★ ★

It said the investigation showed the disappearance of Moroccan Opposition Leader Mehdi Ben Barka in Paris last October to be the work of police, spies, counterspies and gangsters—all of them French.

The broadcaster added that France was looking for a "sacrificial beast" and had turned the spotlight on innocent Morocco to divert attention from France.

The commentator said French Ambassador Robert Gilet asked King Hassen last November to dismiss his interior minister, Gen. Mohammed Oufkir, on the ground that he took a personal hand in Ben Barka's disappearance.

He said this was revolting for Morocco's dignity and offensive to its honor, and added that Oufkir had nothing to do with the kidnapping.

No Break Indicated By Paris

PARIS (UPI)—The French government charged publicly again Wednesday that Morocco's interior minister engineered the kidnapping in Paris of Moroccan leftist leader Mehdi Ben Barka. It said this was why the French ambassador to Rabat was recalled last weekend.

★ ★ ★

French police and judicial authorities have received "the clearest orders" to bring to trial everyone connected with the kidnapping, the government said.

★ ★ ★

However, responsible French government sources said there is no question of breaking diplomatic relations or of halting $40,000,000 in economic aid, although the aid agreements might be "reviewed" when they come up for renewal in a few months time.

Ready 'Within a Year'

Plastic Hearts Beat True

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—A substitute heart, made of plastics, is almost ready for placement in a heart patient's chest.

It is designed to do the pumping work of an ailing human heart, for days or weeks, and then easily could be removed. It has passed careful tests in animals, a surgeon said Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

The spare, powered by a bedside air pump, should be available for first human use within a month, said Dr. Michael E. Debakey of Baylor University Medical Centre, Houston. Its first trial in a suitable patient could come anytime "within a year."

The plastic heart is truly a spare, to be placed between a person's ribs. Plastic tubes take blood returning from the lungs and then pump it out through the body.

★ ★ ★

—AP

Debakey and substitute heart

★ ★ ★

The air pump could later be made in miniature and powered by battery, so the patient could easily walk and work with his substitute heart, Dr. Debakey said. A dog given an artificial heart was equipped with a small, portable air pump.

Dr. Debakey showed the latest design of the substitute heart at a press conference sponsored by the New York Heart Association and the American Heart Association.

The Baylor pump could help heart patients who need temporary aid, until their own hearts recover, and might benefit some persons who face constant danger of a severe heart attack.

If produced in quantity, the artificial heart might cost about $200 to $300, Dr. Debakey said.

Another Confidence Vote Today

as it did in the earlier votes on raising the old age pension.

Wednesday night, the New Democrats, who had opposed the imposition of the tax in Commons votes, weren't sure how they would vote this time.

CAOUETTE MAD

A special caucus was set up and leader T. C. Douglas declared: "We haven't made any decision."

Creditiste leader Real Caouette was incensed that the Tories had slipped in with a second non-confidence amendment before the Creditistes could move one.

"I am mad at the Tories taking the floor all the time," he sniffed.

"We had an amendment ready to move, that loans without interest should be made by the Bank of Canada to provinces, municipalities and school boards."

However, despite their anger at the Tories, the Creditistes were expected to vote with them against the government.

"I certainly will," said Caouette lieutenant Gilles Gregoire.

The five Socreds, once more, would vote to save the government. In this case, too, they are voting against the implementation of an election promise.

In the campaign, they wanted an increase in pensions to $100 but voted with the government twice in the past week against opposition attempts to raise them.

Socred leader Robert Thompson Wednesday night conceded that his party was against the tax in the campaign.

"But supporting the motion now won't bring about the intention of the motion, the abolition of the tax," he claimed. "It will just cause an election."

Another Socred, Bert Lehoe, said: "We will vote just exactly as we have been voting, with very good reason.

"The only result is the defeat of the government and an election or some other constitutional confusion that would be bad for the country."

The crop of non-confidence votes is punctuating the throne speech debate, which enters its fifth day today.

Wednesday night, Mr. Lambert, former Diefenbaker cabinet minister, warned of the danger of inflation and added:

"I am warning that unless adequate steps are taken and people are made aware of what is happening, we are in for some rough bumps in relation to the maintenance of industrial activity in this country in the next several months."

Students Flee

WHITE ROCK (CP)—A number of students filed quickly out of Semiahmoo Senior Secondary School Monday when a fire broke out in a washroom.

Weird Session

This legislature's normal life runs until September, 1968, and there appears to be no issues on the horizon likely to bring on an election much before that.

* * *

Premier Bennett, who earlier predicted it would be a "vigorous" session which could possibly affect the timing of the next provincial election, reversed his field about mid-January by saying on at least two occasions that he had changed his mind. It would be a "friendly" session, he added.

An easing of the traditional hard line against the Liberal administration in Ottawa was also noticed in recent weeks.

* * *

Perhaps with a hope that B.C. might obtain a charter for a Bank of B.C. this year, the premier echoed Education Minister Peterson's appreciation of an announcement by Prime Minister Pearson that federal university per-capita grants would be increased from $2 to $5.

It seems certain there will be long debates this year on labor-management relations, effects of automation, the question of high car insurance rates, forest management problems and the government's new "close utilization" policy.

* * *

A bitter struggle is likely to ensue on the floor if the government decides to redistribute some of the existing provincial constituencies after a redistribution commission report is tabled in the House.

The government, comfortably settled in the driver's seat, will probably content itself with bringing in a number of housekeeping bills aimed at keeping up with the needs of a province rapidly outgrowing its own pants.

* * *

Every politician will have his day on the floor. Tempers will become frayed and the weeks will wear on. Eventually, near exhaustion, the legislators will begin ramming through a stack of bills and departmental estimates.

Around Easter, when everyone is tired of talking, the MLAs will draw their sessional cheques and go home.

* * *

It will then be all over for another year. Premier Bennett will reign supreme and some 3,500 civil servants in Victoria will get back to the serious business of running governmental departments and planning their 1966 vacations.

'Seized' Core

cific Diamond Drilling, a Vancouver company.

Earlier on Wednesday, Mr. Bonner said that the lifting of the core has not been a routine matter but he had no more to add at that time.

Mr. Irwin said that as the matter was now in the hands of the Attorney General's department it was to "some degree sub judice" and he was unable to comment.

"I am sick of the whole affair," said Mr. Pezzim. "Only a single hole has been drilled and so far as we are concerned it was merely to test the structure. It does not have any real meaning."

But the mining promoter was unable to explain how the rumors got around that created a mining fever and sent the stock of Rolling Hills within a few days from 45 cents to $3.00.

Ore Mill Ruined

The mill started work in 1957 with 2,000-ton capacity which was increased to 3,500-ton daily capacity.

By JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Four years ago I was under great strain, was nervous, and had difficulty in sleeping. I was given Nembutal and took one each night and had a good sleep.

When I read in magazines and newspapers two years ago of the danger of taking this drug, and the terrible withdrawal consequences, nausea and convulsions, I went to my doctor, who is an eminent one, and asked him for something different.

He said, "One Nembutal has never hurt anyone. It it relaxes you and helps you, take it." I later consulted another doctor and he prescribed a different drug, but it makes my lips swell and after a time is nauseating.

So I am writing you to ask if you will suggest a less harmful sedative. I don't want to take barbiturates.—MRS. M. D.

It was only a year or two ago that I was talking to the doctor in charge of the government hospital at Lexington, Ky., a man of enormous skill and stature, and we talked about barbituates. His comment was this.

ADDICTION

"Yes, some people use excessive amounts of barbiturates. They take so much—and they can't get that much except by buying "bootleg" supplies—that they become addicts, and this certainly is dangerous.

"But what bothers me is this. The barbiturates, properly used, rank among the most useful medicines known to man.

DANGERS

"Certainly over-use is dangerous, but normal use is not. This publicity about the danger of over-use isn't going to be heeded by the addicts, but it is going to frighten people who are using safe amounts and they'll stop, and lose the benefit of one of our most useful medicines."

Mrs. M.D.: He might have been talking directly to you. He saw what would come of that spasm of publicity. Sure, I agree we musn't conceal the facts, even for what we regard as worthy motives. There IS such a thing as barbiturate poisoning—when people go hog wild.

SMALL DOSE

You were perfectly safe, and comfortable, when you followed your first doctor's advice—the doctor you called "eminent."

You then shopped around until you found a doctor who prescribed another drug, and it upset you. This doctor, I feel sure, did the best he could for you—in view of the fact that you insisted on another drug.

You're no 'addict. But why don't you go back to your first doctor, and stop worrying. You have just worried yourself into a tizzy. You confused proper use of this drug with over use. There's a world of difference.
